“A Win-Win Compromise Regarding Roxbury Park Renovation” [Issue #650]

Regarding Roxbury Park, [I suggest the City Council] give serious consideration to the concept described in Gerald Lunn’s guest editorial in [last week’s] Beverly Hills Weekly. I believe that concept, which provides near-ideal solutions to the issues raised by residents and city staff, was never adequately presented to the community.

Please leave Roxbury Park Community Center alone.

The residents of Beverly Hills have been using it for decades and there is no need to change anything. I can see the need for changes if the center is too small, is in decay or the people simply don’t like it. However, since none of that is an issue, it is time to rethink about what is really needed.

The center seems to be the perfect size for the many activities that are held there. The courtyard is beautiful and the building itself is historically grand. People who have been using the center over the years can identify it with certain moments in their lives. Why change it in favor of something that is not in the best interests of our community?

When you tear down your past, you alter the future in ways unknown. The people of Beverly Hills are proud of what they have. All others envy it all. Let’s keep it that way.

“Beverly Hills prepares for L.A. Marathon; street closures Sunday” [Issue #650]

It seems to me that the Southern California annual marathon that has been going through Los Angeles AND Beverly Hills should be known as the “LA/BH” Marathon, if they want to continue through Beverly Hills.

If that is asking “too much” then tell them to go through some other city.

Metro’s Final EIR recommends tunneling under Beverly High

After months of anticipation, Metro released its Final Environmental Impact Report and Statement (EIR/EIS) Monday recommending a Westside Subway Extension alignment that would require tunneling under Beverly High.

The Metro board could make its final decision on the subway alignment as early as April 26. First, Metro will hold a series of public “open house” meetings, including one on March 29 at Temple Emanuel in Beverly Hills from 5 to 7:30 p.m.

The EIR recommends locating the Century City station at Constellation Boulevard and Avenue of the Stars instead of on Santa Monica Boulevard, based on Metro’s geotechnical studies and projected ridership. Metro’s geotechnical reports released last October recommended the Constellation Boulevard station based on the absence of active earthquake faults.

Experts retained by Metro determined stations at Santa Monica Boulevard and Avenue of the Stars or Santa Monica Boulevard and Century Park East would not be viable options because of their location in active fault zones. Experts said strands of the active Santa Monica fault were found under the intersection of Santa Monica Boulevard and Avenue of the Stars, the preferred station location for

Brien announces goals in first speech as mayor

In his first speech as mayor, Willie Brien Tuesday night announced goals to encourage greater public participation in civic affairs and to improve communication between the City and its residents.

"I want you to be heard," Brien said. "To that end, I will be having town hall meetings hosted in a variety of locations across the city, and I will use all the available media platforms to communicate and invite you to tell me what's on your mind. This year I want to have a conversation about public service, about a healthy business community and about residents' goals."

Former Governor Gray Davis administered Brien's oath of office as Brien's wife Connie Agnew, two of their children, Brent and Ashley, and his mother Honeybear Brien looked on during the City Council's reorganization meeting at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences.

In his speech, Brien outlined goals for encouraging greater resident participation in civic activities including expanding the City's internship program for college students, developing a summer internship program for high school students, encouraging higher voter turnout in municipal elections, launching a new interactive website, and reaching out to community members with the help of civic leaders, including Weekly columnist Rudy Cole.

"I grew up in a family that placed public service above everything else," Brien said. "My grandfather Chief Justice Earl Warren once said, 'The greatest reward for doing is the opportunity to do more.' I want to thank the community for granting me this opportunity to do more and serve Beverly Hills as your mayor."

Vice Mayor John Mirisch was sworn in by Councilmember Lili Bosse. In his speech, Mirisch emphasized the importance of connecting with Beverly Hills' history and with one another.

"We are all connected and we must not forget the ties that bind us, the residents of Beverly Hills, together," Mirisch said. "There are plenty of connections to strengthen and forge and yes, repair as we move forward with a word I feel best embodies the spirit of our community, and that word is 'together.' We're all in this together, and we can't remind ourselves of it often enough. In the coming year I'm looking forward to more real connectedness and more authentic connections for all of us within our wonderful community."

One issue likely to affect the entire community is the recent release of Metro's Westside Subway Extension Final EIR that recommends tunneling under Beverly High.

"Now is the time to have the backs of our schools," Mirisch said. "We cannot stand by idly while a massive public agency attempts to violate our high school and quite literally undermine the ability of our district to serve future generations of Beverly Hills children. I promise I will do whatever I can to stand by our schools and protect them against this unconscionable bait-and-switch and against those who would put the interests of well-heeled developers above those of school children."

Brien, too, addressed the subway issue in his speech.

"Metro chose to overlook the scientific analysis provided by the City's experts," Brien said. "Our analysis and data show there are safety concerns that Metro has not addressed. As mayor I plan to vigorously defend our high school. This issue will be taken up by the council at the earliest opportunity, which will be our next closed session meeting. At that time we will be evaluating our options, including legal action."

Before handing the gavel to Brien, outgoing Mayor Barry Brucker was honored with a standing ovation.

"Beverly Hills is a city rich with diversity and our diversity is our strength," Brucker said. "We are a community of passionate residents and premiere businesses dedicated to upholding our integrity and values, preserving our unique character and protecting our quality of life. We are a community that cares about our schools, our seniors, our public safety, our culture, and our historic legacy. We are Beverly Hills, the finest small city in America."

most of the Beverly Hills community.

In a media conference call Monday, Metro said their reports had been analyzed at three levels: by consultant Parsons Brinkerhoff that prepared the study, an independent tunnel advisory panel, and a group of independent reviewers.

In response to Metro's geotechnical reports, the City of Beverly Hills commissioned two peer reviews of the report, one by Exponent, Inc. that was released in February and another by Shannon & Wilson, Inc. that was released earlier this month.

The Exponent report said Metro's reports made no attempt to quantify or qualitatively assess the potential risks of potential hazards associated with the subway tunneling project. Exponent said more study was needed in order to select an alignment for the 9-mile subway extension.

The Shannon & Wilson report said studies of the Constellation station were not as thorough as studies done at Santa Monica Boulevard, and do "not indicate, nor fully negate, the presence of faulting." Shannon & Wilson recommended comparable geological and geotechnical work at Constellation Boulevard.

Metro's reports also stated active faults extend beneath Beverly High's campus. The BHUSD contracted Leighton Consultants to conduct an independent on-site investigation that involved soils borings and trenching across the campus. As of February, no active faults were found. The report has not yet been released.

Metro Westside Subway Extension Project

Director David Mieger said review of the Exponent and Shannon & Wilson reports was not yet complete but he was confident it would be reviewed and reported to the board in advance of the board meeting on April 26.

Regarding the not-yet-released report from BHUSD, Mieger said, "We don't know the timing of that. If we receive it, we will certainly ask our consultants to look at it and provide a report on it."

Mayor Barry Brucker expressed shock that Metro's analysis of the Exponent report, which was sent to Metro in February, was not completed prior to the release of the EIR.

"I would hope Metro board members insist that any final EIR review must include an analysis and response to the scientific report from Exponent," Brucker said. "It would be irresponsible for any of these Metro board members to duck from addressing this report."

BHUSD released a prepared statement from attorney Kevin Brogan criticizing Metro for its EIR process and for releasing the EIR before BHUSD's report became available.

Mieger said Metro wanted to get its report out as soon as it was ready.

"We don't want to sit on it or hold it back; we want to get it out so it's part of the debate and discussion people are considering," Mieger said. "Our board will certainly have the opportunity to decide if they're ready to make a decision in April [but] they don't always make decisions at one board meeting. Sometimes they [take] more than one meeting

With respect to ridership, Mieger said Metro’s studies forecast 8,600 weekday boardings at Constellation Boulevard compared with 5,500 projected weekday boardings at Santa Monica Boulevard. Mieger said the U.S. Department of Transportation checked the analysis for accuracy and to make sure there was no bias in the analysis.

Board of Education President Brian Goldberg declined comment, referring the Weekly to public affairs firm Sitrick and Company, which issued the Brogan statement.

Beverly High plagued by false fire alarms

A series of intentional false fire alarms at Beverly High is disrupting class time, frustrating school district officials and burdening the Beverly Hills Fire Department.

As of last Friday afternoon, Fire Chief Tim Scranton said the fire department had been dispatched 12 times in a two-week period beginning March 2 as a result of false fire alarms at the high school. Prior to that between March 16, 2011 and March 2, 2012, Scranton said there were a total of 12 false fire alarms at the high school.

Scranton said as soon as an alert of a false alarm reaches the dispatch center, it is considered an emergency response. He said the BHFD arrived on scene a number of times out of the 12 dispatch calls in the past two weeks, but some calls were canceled by the district while the fire department was en route. Scranton said he could not provide precise data before the Weekly’s deadline because the fire department is currently transitioning to a new computer aided dispatch records management system.

“We absolutely will respond no question because we never know if it’s [a] real [emergency] or not,” Scranton said.

Superintendent Gary Woods said it appears multiple students have been falsely pulling the alarm pull stations, based on multiple pull stations being set off in a short period of time. As of Tuesday, none of the perpetrators had been identified, Woods said.

“We’ve had a number of students over the last week or so intentionally pull the fire alarms to disrupt school activities,” Woods said. “That’s been very disappointing for us and we’ve warned the students how serious this is.”

On March 14, Principal Carter Paysinger issued a memo to high school faculty to read “These false alarms have created unsafe conditions for the staff and students of Beverly Hills High School. The [BHUSD], Beverly Hills Police Department, and Beverly Hills Fire Department recognize that these false alarms are a criminal act. Any student identified as responsible for causing a false alarm and putting the safety of others at risk will be subject to immediate arrest and possible expulsion from school,” the memo said.

Adding to the problem, the school district has struggled to shut off the alarms in a timely manner. The alarm reportedly rang for approximately one hour on March 15.

Woods said the school’s alarm system has been malfunctioning due to connectivity and wiring issues. He said the district made some repairs over the weekend and testing was taking place on Tuesday.

“I think [the system is] in a much better state now than it was a week ago,” Woods said.

WeHo City Council condemns "Shahs of Sunset" for negative stereotypes

Just one day after the airing of Shahs of Sunset's second episode, the West Hollywood City Council voted 4-1 to condemn the show for perpetuating negative stereotypes about Iranian Americans.

Councilmember John Heilman initiated the resolution condemning the reality show.

"As members of the LGBT community, I think we all are particularly concerned about stereotypes of our own community. We also have to be concerned about negative stereotypes about other people who live and do work in the West Hollywood community," Heilman said. "It is a big problem of the Iranian American community being stereotyped and unfortunately this show adds to it and we hope that Bravo will reconsider their support for that programming."

Identifying himself as a resident during public comment, West Hollywood Planning Commissioner David Aghaei said he supported the resolution.

"To see a program like this come on the air and grossly misrepresent our community and all we've contributed and all we stand for is kind of disheartening," Aghaei said.

John Heilman

Councilmember John D'Amico voted no on the resolution. "We wanted to present an exciting group of friends who live interesting and dynamic lives as well as give an inside look at their culture and rituals," Chloe Ellers, a Bravo spokesperson said in a statement. "We are hoping to entertain and engage our viewers. This group of friends does not represent an entire nationality."

Shahs of Sunset focuses on six Persian friends with a glamorous lifestyle living and working on the Westside. Several cast members, four of whom were profiled in Beverly Hills Weekly Issue #647, attended Beverly High.

multiple alarm pull stations had been pulled at the same time. To shut the alarm off, each pull station and the entire system needed to be reset.

As a deterrent to future false alarms, Woods said the district would be installing non-toxic paint on some of the pulls.

"These are provided by the manufacturer to coat the hand of the person who pulls the alarm for up to eight hours with a bright colored paint," Woods said.

Scranton acknowledged responding to false alarms is not the best use of the fire department's time.

"We want to work with our partners in the [school district] but this takes extremely limited and valuable resources away from other people who may actually need it," Scranton said. "We also in our city have a false alarm fee schedule that becomes quite expensive when you have multiple false alarms. My point is we take this very seriously."

The City's Assistant Director of Administrative Services, Noel Marquis, said the finance department sends out bills for false alarm fines at the end of the month, when it receives data from BHFD. The information related to false alarms at BHUSD in March was not available from BHFD before the Weekly's deadline due to the department's system upgrade.

Based on the City's fee schedule for false alarms, the first offense costs $123.10 but is waived once per calendar year if an alarm user awareness class is successfully completed, the second offense costs $246.20, and the third and any subsequent offenses cost $369.40 each. The goal of the false alarm reduction program, Marquis said, is to change alarm user behavior through education, not through fines and fees.

Public Works Commission forms subcommittee for fiscal responsibility

The Public Works Commission has established a subcommittee to look for ways to reduce costs in the Public Works Department, particularly in the area of engaging outside contractors.

"The Commission will be exploring ways of getting further involved in some of the fiscal related activities of the Public Works Department, with a [goal of] reducing costs and being responsible stewards of the people's money," Commission Chair Peter Foldvary said.

Commission Vice Chair Joe Shooshani and Commissioner Barry Pressman will serve on the new committee, which will initially meet with department staff to determine areas in which the Commission can help with cost savings.

According to Foldvary, those areas might include the conceptual phase of capital improvement projects, the negotiation phase, or early stages of engaging consultants for projects.

Vice Mayor John Mirisch has advocated for involving the Public Works Commission in negotiating City contracts in the past. The City Council's vote in September to award the contract to build a compressed natural gas fueling station to the sole bidder of the project was one recent case that prompted Mirisch to suggest seeking the Commission's assistance.

"With [the City Council's] support [the Public Works Commission has] effected tremendous savings in the past," Mirisch said. "One of the classic examples was on the renewal of the waste hauling contract [with Crown Disposal]. Staff had recommended accepting the contract as it was and I certainly didn't feel they had done as good a job as they could have when it came to trying to negotiate the best value. That view was shared by the Public Works Commission."

The Weekly reported in Issue #586 that the Commission's involvement in negotiations for that no-bid contract in December 2010 led to over $3.9 million in savings over the six-year life of the contract.

"By having [the Commission] more actively involved in the process, it will hopefully avoid situations where we're not getting the best value for money on the basis sometimes of staff recommendations," Mirisch said.

New mayor for Beverly Hills

And quick notes about our village

By Rudy Cole

First, a reminder of an open-to-the-public, no-cost, great event: This Sunday you can meet the legendary Fred Hayman as he signs copies of the book on his life written by Rose Apodaca, who will speak and answer questions. Mayor Dr. Willie Brien will open the reception and there will be time for questions. Councilmember, and close Hayman friend, Lili Bosse will also participate. (Light refreshments.)

Two p.m., council chambers, city hall, free parking in library garage.

Despite some feeble and ill advised efforts to portray our current council as somehow divided and dysfunctional, our four city fathers and one mother, displayed their more obvious unity on issues, and ability to work well together, at the annual mayoral induction Tuesday.

Nominating and seconding the election of Mayor Dr. Willie Brien were Councilmembers Lili Bosse and John Mirisch. The same collegiality existed when Mirisch was elected vice mayor.

All five councilmembers made it as clear as they possibly could: They opposed tunneling under the high school and southwest areas of our city to accommodate the Century City, Constellation route choice.

To argue that there is some disagreement or lack of vigor among the five city leaders, or less a commitment to opposing the route than the school board, is divisive and not in our community's interests. It is the more rational voices that are most likely to be heard.

What is the prognosis on avoiding tunneling? Not good. But also far from over. What did trouble me was a factually flawed and politically inadvisable statement issued by the school district's public relations firm for the school's subway issue lawyer.

The MTA report released this week was their consultant's draft environment impact report. It contained their panel of experts findings on, among other issues, safety factors, in recommending the Constellation instead of the Santa Monica Boulevard choice.

That report is far from final and does not even become advisory until it is certified by the Metro Board of Directors. Before that, the MTA must hold public hearings and accept responses and challenges, which it is now doing.

The school district's lawyer hardly won friends among the MTA decision makers by labeling the scientific study as one more example of a route that "benefits politically connected developers at the expense of everyone else."

Who authorized the school's lawyer to make personal attacks on the very people we hope to convince not to select the Century City alternative?

Are the elected and appointed MTA board members going to love us for these personal attacks when we appear to plead our case, including our own County Supervisor Zev Yaroslavsky, one of the most respected elected officials ever to serve us? This was not productive or helpful.

Why was a hired lawyer even speaking for our board? The more rational voice would have been School Supt. Dr. Gary Woods. He is just as opposed to the route as anyone, but comes off more believable and professional.

When the board or board president can't voice the district's view, they should make sure that only Dr. Woods is their spokesperson.

No, this report does not yet represent MTA board policy and we will have ample time to plead our case during the public hearings.

It should also be noted that the MTA has not rushed to judgment. The route decision was supposed to be made earlier this year but will now not be decided until late in April, or even later.

I oppose going under our high school. Despite valid arguments that subways all over the world run without hazards under residential, commercial areas and even schools, the seismic risks in our area are too uncertain to possibly endanger our kids' safety.

In the interests of actually completing the Westside extension, the MTA would be well advised to select Santa Monica Boulevard and not Constellation. We are really talking about a one city block difference for Century City—not worth all this agony and increased costs.

However, there are voices of opportunism who are far more interested in using this battle to advance their own political interests than in preventing a bad route choice. Some others are trying to preempt the conflict to settle other and older scores with some members of our council and county officials. You have to wonder if they really care about the safety of our schools or our community.

This council is totally united, and so are the responsible voices in our city.

As for the induction itself, there were excellent uses of videos to list past accomplishments and future plans. Outgoing Mayor Barry Brucker's great year has previously been reported in our publication, but let me add one note: He always treated everyone who came to the council podium with respect and courtesy, even when under attack. He was an outstanding presiding officer.

Our new mayor, Dr. Willie Brien, was described by one speaker as one of our village's busiest leaders. Although quite true, he has enormous energy and an ability to really listen to voices in the community and our professional staff. This should be an exciting and productive year, but confrontation and high levels of emotion are not his style.

Dr. Brien made mention of the historical uniqueness of his mayoral election: being the grandson of former California Governor Earl Warren who later served with such distinction and compassion as Chief Justice of the United States. However, Dr. Brien did not and has not used his grandfather, whom he obviously admired and loved, in any exploitive manner. What does surprise me is the lack of media attention to the historic connection.

There was a small army of former mayors at the induction and we had the pleasure of bringing Janet Salter who helped us relive the great service of the late former mayor Maxwell Hillary Salter. Max also always added a note of humor to this solemn evening. Also spotted Chief Deputy Los Angeles County District Attorney Jackie Lacey; a true community legend, City National Bank's Bram Goldsmith; and my favorite reader, Honeybear Brien. (Wonderful food was catered by Giacomino Drago and his restaurants.)

Some historical notes about mayoral ceremonies: It wasn't until Dr. Charles Aronberg was inducted that these events were open to the whole community.

Dr. Aronberg had his at the city library and costs were paid from his own campaign funds, not by the city. Before Dr. Aronberg, the custom was to invite a few friends to your home for a post meeting reception.

After Dr. Aronberg, the installations became far more expansive, often with tents on Crescent or Rexford Drives, and at city expense. It moved to the Academy because of an understanding between the city and the AMPAS. They won approval for their new home, with exceptions to in-building parking requirements, to the dismay of neighbors, by agreeing to city use of their comfortable auditorium. This has not only benefited the city council but also the Maple Counseling Center, which holds an annual fundraiser at the venue.

True, you can spend wonderful weekends right here in our own village. Just tell everyone you are leaving town and check into one of our luxury hotels: Beverly Hilton, Montage Beverly Hills, Beverly Hills Hotel, the Peninsula or the Beverly Wilshire and enjoy the pleasures visitors will spend hours of travel time to experience: Then all those bed and sales tax dollars stay right here.

However, if you really want to escape and experience the joy of a totally pampered small vacation, with views we can't quite provide, one of two I would suggest on the ocean is the remarkable Ritz-Carlton in Laguna Niguel at Dana Point.

The route we prefer is the 405 to the 133 into Laguna Beach. A scenic drive that includes going through the art colony community. Without really rushing, we did it in just over an hour.

Then just follow the Coast Highway south, with some great sightings of the ocean, a few miles to the hotel entrance: Ritz-Carlton Drive.

If you haven't been there for some years, be prepared for some pleasant surprises. The hotel has undergone extensive remodeling from guest rooms to public assembly areas—restaurants and lounges. The Ritz-Carlton has everything an award-winning resort hotel should have from spas to a luxurious pool. You can also check out the up-to-date electronic tools available in rooms.

Dining is a real pleasure. The major restaurant venue, Raya, now has been moved to the ocean side. Long and narrow, the views are remarkable as is the food prepared by award-winning chef Marissa Gehrlach and sous chef Matt Boring. Suggest arriving just before Sunset.

The hotel has an incredible serve-the-guest culture that permeates from the moment you arrive, and a staffer greets you in the parking area, to reception and the bellman who helps you to your room. Not at all intrusive but truly guest friendly, cheerful and highly professional.

We had previously written about our other beach favorite, the Montage Laguna, which has the best Huevos Rancheros anywhere. But, of course, I have an historic connection. Although the Montage has a direct link to Beverly Hills—the magnificent Montage on North Canon, the Ritz-Carlton, then a Johnson Properties owned subsidiary, tried but failed to win approval for a hotel in Beverly Hills. Most people only remember that the city, by popular vote, denied an application by the Four Seasons. But a proposed hotel overlay zone also would have achieved plans for a Ritz-Carlton and a Gucci Hotel. The RC on North Bedford and Gucci at almost the same site as the Montage. (Four Seasons would have been on what is now Two Rodeo.)

My nominees for best wait staff in hotel restaurants, Circa 55 at the Beverly Hilton, and the reception team at Spago. We will name names next week and also some reader favorites.

Consumer note: "Friends" will note that I am now on Facebook, although quite reluctantly. I have yet to post any messages, but that too may come.

However, I could not have achieved this electronic miracle without the assistance of a tech specialist. More important, when I discover that the damn computer fails, the same young pro arrives to save us. He is good, well-trained and reasonable. So call Allen Ashouri at "Computer Repair Specialists" (310) 571-8878. (It might be best not to mention my name or he might assume you too are electronically retarded.)

Board of Education considers lockers for Beverly Vista

Beverly Vista students carrying around backpacks filled with heavy textbooks and supplies may soon have relief.

Last week, the Board of Education unanimously directed Chief Facilities Official Nelson Cayabyab to come back with a proposal to install 320 lockers for Beverly Vista middle school students. Depending on the size and quality of locker, Cayabyab said the lockers would cost between $30,000 and $150,000 plus approximately 15 percent of the cost of the lockers for installation.

Cayabyab will present a proposal to the Facilities Advisory Committee before it comes back before the board. President Brian Goldberg said the board would determine whether funding for the lockers would come from Measure E or another funding source.

When Beverly Vista reopened in 2002, it was designed without lockers. Currently, it is the only BHUSD K-8 school that does not provide lockers for its middle school students.

The location for lockers is still to be determined, but Cayabyab said they would all fit on the second floor of Building D. He suggested spacing them out to avoid a large concentration of students in one area of the school.

"I think it's terrifically important to put something in for the long term [rather] than cheaping out and putting something in that's going to be replaced in 10 to 15 years," Vice President Jake Manaster said. "I would also like to suggest [that since] this is a safety issue, it's going to go under Measure E."

Prior to the board's discussion, Beverly

Vista parent Dr. Michele Kalt introduced her son sixth grader Brandon Wolfe, who weighs 67 pounds and carries a 16-pound backpack.

"We really need lockers," Kalt said. "It's really important to us and our kids."

Citizens Oversight Committee annual report addresses legal expenditures, requests additional members

Woodrow Clark

The 2011 Citizens Oversight Committee Annual Report found BHUSD's Measure E bond program largely falls within parameters of the program, but raises concerns about legal expenditures and internal controls related to financial reporting.

COC Chair Woodrow Clark, Public Relations Committee Chair Howard Goldstein and Audit Committee Chair Joe Safier presented the annual report at the Board of Education meeting on March 13.

The COC's recommendations include investigating "latent defects existing at the various school sites where construction was performed under prior bond measures" and possibly initiating litigation to recover damages; continuing to assess geotechnical and seismic concerns; and bringing on three more COC members with an emphasis on construction or planning expertise to prepare for work related to upcoming construction projects at Horace Mann and Hawthorne.

Another recommendation, Clark said, pertains to making sure there is coordination between Measure E, the district's facilities master plan, and Superintendent Gary Woods' action plan for academics, athletics and the arts that was presented in the fall.

The COC contracted Christy White Accountancy (CWA) to perform financial and performance audits of the Measure E bond program for 2010-2011. CWA found the bond program complied with most requirements, but presented deficiencies in internal controls and concerns related to the level of legal expenditures that were made through June 30, 2011.

CWA found 26 of 91 Measure E expenditures tested had purchase orders dated after the invoice date, five were miscoded and one had no purchase order in place. Since the audit, the report says, the district has established a defined accounting system per project and created a detailed budget to create a check and balance between financial and projected project expenditures.

Through June 30, 2011, the BHUSD spent $2.7 million on legal fees, which included expenditures related to Strategic Concepts litigation and BHUSD's effort to fight the Metro Westside Subway Extension tunnel from going under Beverly High.

As of June 30, the BHUSD had spent in total $13.7 million out of the $334 million Measure E bond program.

Safier pointed out that since the report only dealt with expenditures through June

WILLIE'S YEAR

The Weekly's exclusive interview with Mayor Willie Brien By Melanie Anderson

After one term on the Board of Education and three years on the City Council, do you feel ready to be mayor?

I do. I think it will be a great year for me. I'm really honored to be the mayor of the city I grew up in, that my family and my children have grown up in. I really am ready. Certainly the last year as vice mayor, but also the last year working so closely with Mayor [Barry] Brucker will make this transition I think very seamless and very enjoyable.

In the Weekly's interview with Brucker last year in Issue #602, Brucker said, "My style I think is very similar to Mayor [Jimmy] Delshad's, which is being very inclusive." How do you think your style will compare with Brucker's?

I think we all have our own personalities and style, but I will tell you the passion that Mayor Brucker has for this community and has had from the time we were both in high school together, through our time together on the school board and certainly my last three years serving with him on the council, the passion we both have for this community is tremendous. The people that we care about in this community and the reason we are doing this is because of our love and passion for the community. I think you will see very little difference in terms of our energy levels for getting things done.

Do you plan to continue the "Meet the Mayor" sessions?

I plan to reach out to the community and one of the big things I would like to see is the community making sure they are being heard. It's easy to talk about transparency and it's easy to talk about the community speaking to the council, but the reality is a three-minute time period in front of the council every other week is really not the way to communicate. I'm looking forward to the opportunity to reach out and dialogue with the residents. I'm going to be looking at using a variety of different media to get messages out to the community. I'll also look forward to meeting with each of the homeowner groups on a regular basis. I will also have time scheduled so people can come in and meet with me here [at City Hall]. I also will be looking at reaching out to community leaders to host coffees in their homes to come talk to the mayor. As I go to the local restaurants or coffee shops, people can come up to me and I'll be very inclusive to having them sit down and chat.

It's amazing what can happen when you hear what the issues are. Once you identify those issues there are solutions that usually are fairly straightforward to make things better for people. I'm a caretaker and representative of the residents and the city, and I plan to listen to them and move things forward that improve their quality of life and their experience in Beverly Hills.

You are a Cedars-Sinai physician and you have also served as the medical center's chief of staff. How does your medical background affect your approach to City issues?

My medical background allows me to have a very planned approach to things. When items come up in medicine, you typically want to get a history, you want to do a physical exam, you order some tests, you come up with a presumptive diagnosis and a treatment plan. I think in government it's really not that different. You have to gather information, you want to gather input from all the constituents that are affected by something, and you take that information, examine it and process it. You come up with an assessment of the issues and then you come up with a plan to actually move the process forward, whatever that may be. I think my background in medicine allows me to do that. That's how I approach things [in a] very thoughtful, systematic way. I also believe that my temperament is such that there are very few things that are emergent in life. From a medical standpoint, when it's an emergency you act quickly. But most of the time you can actually take a step back and give some good thought to it, and recognize there are usually multiple sides to an issue. You want to gather all that information in making as informed a decision and as informed a plan as you can. I certainly do that when I vote on issues.

You chaired the government efficiency task force this past year. Is that going to be an ongoing priority?

It is. I had a great group of people that I worked with both from the community and from the staff. We made some major changes that I believe will position us very well for the future as we look to have businesses that are already in the community grow or remodel their existing spaces. Also of equal importance is to attract new businesses. We need to be a community where people say, "If you go to Beverly Hills, the processes are better and you can get through those processes in a much more timely fashion." That does a couple things. It moves people into a new business; it gets them to open their doors sooner. That's a benefit to them. Certainly as they generate revenue from their business, that's a benefit to the city. It also benefits the surrounding businesses, because no one likes to be next to somebody under construction or next to an empty store for a long time. The more stores are filled, the more the foot traffic is naturally going to be in the surrounding stores.

We made over 70 recommendations. Most of them have been implemented already, and we're going to continue implementing the remainder of them over the next year. We're going to continue to work with companies, new and existing, to make sure [the process] continues to be streamlined for them. I think this will make a big difference for the City of Beverly Hills in the long run. The same is true with the residents. People remodel their homes. No one wants to live next to a house under construction for a long time. People who are putting their money into remodeling their homes, they want to get it done. The sooner they get it done, typically the less it's going to cost them in additional cost overruns, time and changes.

Tell us about some other goals for the coming year.

Our tourism and visitors coming into the city [have] continued to improve and grow over the last couple years in part because of the economy. We [have] created a tremendous number of activities within the business triangle in the city [including] our jazz concerts we have in Beverly Canon Gardens. That's been very well received. We're going to expand that. We're going to work on our technology applications to help people get around the cultural areas in the city, as well as make sure that they know [when and] where activities are occurring, things like our Concours [d'Elegance] at Greystone, our Rodeo Drive Father's Day Concours, Chinese New Year on Rodeo Drive, and Walk of Style [awards]. These types of events are going to continue to be publicized and pushed through technology to make sure that not only our residents but [also our] visitors know [about them].

One of the other things I'm pushing hard for is a regional approach to keeping and bringing visitors into the Westside through the Westside Council of Governments. When you look at what we're creating here with our great hotels; Canon Drive, which is a remarkable street of fabulous restaurants; with the new parking structure that was built [on Crescent Drive]; the CVB and Chamber [of Commerce] building at 9400 [Santa Monica Boulevard] coming online this year; the Annenberg [Cultural Center] that will be near completed in early to mid 2013, this will become a cultural destination for people in the Westside. You also have great opportunities to attract people who are staying in other local cities [like] West Hollywood, Santa Monica, Culver City, parts of Los Angeles, and we ought to be working together to share with people all of the cultural aspects of the Westside. I worked this last year closely with the Getty and the Pacific Standard Time event they did in the region. It was successful. We need to grow those types of events. There's no reason why someone that comes to Beverly Hills shouldn't spend their time here and when they want to go somewhere else, we should say the Getty's a great place, the Geffen's a great place, Santa Monica and the beach is a beautiful place to go visit, or people in West Hollywood would say they want to come take a picture by the Beverly Hills sign. We need to work more collaboratively to share with them that this is an incredible region on the Westside.

Southern California Edison recently recognized the City for its efforts with plug-in vehicles. Do you plan to bring forward more green initiatives?

We will. Part of that was passing some of the ordinances about green buildings.

Any new building, residence and the like that are built in the city have to meet certain standards. I also would very much like to see us work again with the Westside Council of Governments to come up with a bike plan for the region. It's green, it's healthy, sustainable and while it has some challenges to it from city to city, I think we started moving in that direction in terms of at least a good educational program. Now we need to look at some of the other opportunities to create a bike-friendly route from Los Angeles through the surrounding cities including Beverly Hills all the way down to the beach.

Roxbury Park has become a highly charged issue. How will you make sure the project moves forward in an inclusive manner?

I [currently] chair the liaison for Roxbury Park. We've had two meetings since the mayor assigned [the project] to the Recreation and Parks liaison, which Dr. [Julian] Gold [and I] had been on for the past year. We have worked really hard on being inclusive. We are creating better ways to inform the community when we're having these liaison meetings. Anybody who has come to the liaison meetings, we're keeping a list and we're getting the information out to make sure they know when the next meeting is. We've encouraged the community to make sure that if they want to be on the list they let us know. We want the input. [To get on the list, call (310) 288-2220.]

A couple of things we have made very clear: This will be a smaller project. This will be a project that does not take away green space. If there are ways to look at adding green space, we'd like to do that. I believe this very strongly—and I believe my colleagues do, too—that we are going to get this right for our seniors, we're going to get it right for our children, and right for our youth sports, and we're going to do it in a way that is compatible with the community. Roxbury Park is a blend of an active [and a passive] park. We need to maintain that balance and also make sure that the residents and the community around there do not have negative impacts.

I would hope that we will have the conceptual plan through community involvement and to the council within six months. I believe it's going to be important that the liaison take some of the recommendations back to the council at certain break points. It's important not only to have input from residents and the community but also from councilmembers. We're going to do that in a way that is effective in getting to the end goal, which is a facility that meets the standards that our community deserves, [while] by the same token keeping in mind this is a community center and it is not the Taj Mahal, and we need to be mindful of the financial impacts as well.

City salaries and benefits also made headlines last year. What are you going to do to make City compensation and pensions more sustainable?

We're finishing up our negotiations with our fire department now. We hope that will be completed soon. Our police negotiations are done, so we made tremendous changes in terms of the pension obligations going forward and it was [from] working with the police and the fire associations. They got it. The best way to negotiate with people is with respect, keeping in mind that they have their concerns and issues. These people serve the community as a whole. They do a great job and I have the utmost respect for them and their associations, but also the way they handled themselves in the union negotiations. This was not easy for them.

In addition to that, we have looked at reducing our OPEB [Other Post-Employment Benefits] liabilities in the future. We've also come up with the Alternative Retirement Medical Plan (ARMP) [that gives current non-safety employees the opportunity to opt out of their existing benefit in exchange for a defined contribution plan or a one-time lump sum payout]. Dr. Scott Miller, our CFO, did a great job of that. We are a model for cities around the state and country now. These are things that were voluntary for our non-public safety. We're looking at expanding possibly to our public safety, but it's voluntary and the impact is [potentially] hundreds of millions of dollars saved to the city over the next 30 years [depending on level of participation]. We're actually doing what most politicians don't do, [which] is we're dealing with the future today. That's something I think the entire council worked very hard on, and will protect this community for decades to come. I think we will see an expanse of that in the ensuing year as we roll this out and offer it to public safety and some of the other enrollment periods for our non-public safety people who did not choose to go into this the first time around. [The City reported 58 percent participation when the program was first offered to non-public safety employees in 2010.]

When it comes time for negotiating with non-public safety unions, is the City going to be working on more sustainable pensions?

Absolutely. The model is set. I will negotiate with our other labor unions showing them the same respect that they have shown us over the years.

At the Roxbury Park community meeting in January, you said, "In the future, I feel like I need to do a better job in responding to rumors and untruths because you as residents deserve better." What do you plan to do to stand up to hostile media in town?

I'm going to take the concept of hostile media off the table in the sense that I believe that people have the right to speak their minds. I believe that they can express it any way they want. I think this community is very smart and they understand when things sometimes get or appear to be skewed. The bigger issue really is not about hostility; it's about how do we share the information and the facts to the community and how do we hear from them so we can address their concerns and questions so the facts get out there and they understand it? It goes back to what I said before. The key in the next year for me is making sure that the community is being heard. That means listening to what they're saying and addressing their concerns by giving them facts.

I am a straight shooter. When people come to me and ask a question I'll give them an answer. If I don't have the answer I'll go find out the answer to their questions. I don't like playing games. I just like telling it the way it is. I believe that overall we all agree far more about things in this community than we don't agree on. All I would ask is when people have questions, if they see something that doesn't make sense, or that they're concerned it doesn't sound like something that Willie Brien would say or do, talk to me, ask me. I'll let people know the facts, and I'll let them know the opinions that I have, and they'll know the reasons I'm making the decision in that way.

This is a great city to live in and raise a family. We ought to be talking about the positive things in the city. When we do have challenges or disagreements, we'll work to come up with the best solution. Let's do it in a way that's respectful, not [by] name-calling and throwing barbs at people. Sometimes we're going to disagree. That's democracy. I believe at the end of the day people who live in the City care about keeping the City great.

Tell us about your family.

I have a fantastic wife [Connie Agnew] who is an obstetrician and gynecologist. She specializes in perinatology, which is high-risk obstetrics. She is on staff at Cedars-Sinai. Last year, residents voted for her to receive the Apple Award for resident education, which she loved. Her passion is horseback riding. She's incredibly supportive of the things I do and is patient with the things I do. We've been married since 1984.

We have four great kids. My oldest [son Will Brien] graduated from Beverly High [where he was an all-CIF tennis player]. He went to Yale as an undergraduate and now is at Harvard Law School. He absolutely loves the study of law. My second son [Brent] is a graduate of Carnegie Mellon University, and he is going to the University of Minnesota Law School. He played football in high school and college. While he was in college he started a company [Brien Financial Services]. He and a group of college students spun it into four companies and sold it. He did consulting around the country on weekends. Then he started a [not-for-profit] consumer protection company for people who have no voice and sometimes are taken advantage of by larger companies. He's thinking about intellectual property or some sort of consumer law. My third child Kelly is a senior at University of Colorado at Boulder. She loves life, and she is a kind, energetic young lady. She will be graduating with a degree in psychology. She's looking at marriage and family counseling after that. My youngest daughter is Ashley, [who] is graduating [from high school] and going to Duke University next year. She was a varsity tennis player for all four years. She's a national equestrian. She does hunter jumpers. She was a year-end winner for several competitions for Los Angeles County, for San Fernando Valley and the western United States, and she'll ride in college. My mother [Honeybear Brien] still lives in Beverly Hills and is active in the community.

One year from now, what do you want to be able to say about your term as mayor?

I hope people will look back and say, "Willie Brien and the council listened to us. He continued to improve the quality of life and experience that we have in the city from a residential standpoint. From a fiscal standpoint he continued to work to grow the economic base and kept us strong while maintaining the character of the community, and that this continues to be a fantastic place to live."

30, 2011, the $6.65-million settlement with Johnson Controls, Inc. was not part of the audit. The settlement was related to dealings former Facilities Director Karen Christiansen had with the company. The Board of Education since reimbursed the Measure E fund with $2.5 million from the settlement.

Board member Lisa Korbatov said the district did not anticipate the fight with Metro, but "I want to clarify for the community, we're doing the best we can with the hand we've been dealt."

Korbatov said results of Metro's geotechnical reports required the district to trench a larger part of the campus than had been anticipated, but the district would likely have had to trench anyway in preparation for Measure E construction.

Clark said the COC would also like to clarify categorization of expenditures, since sometimes engineering and technical services, like in the case of trenching, end up in the legal fees category.

The COC's report is available at bhUSD.org. Click on the "Measure E" tab under the "About Us" menu.

BHHS Softball Team Shuts Out Malibu

Beverly High routed Malibu, 12-0, in a ninth-place semifinal of the St. Monica Catholic High School Ninth Annual Softball Classic March 9 at Beverly High as freshman Shyra Costas had two of the Normans' four hits and allowed one hit over three innings.

Costas (3-2) struck out five batters and walked one, allowing only Devin Dimattia's second-inning single.

Costas singled leading off the third inning and scored on Lexi Silgiber's single. Her other hit came during Beverly Hills' five-run second inning and drove in Leora Hakim, who walked.

Elena Rust had the Normans' other hit, singling in the second and scoring the second of her three runs.

Beverly Hills batters drew 18 walks, with 10 of them scoring.

Leah Shapiro pitched two hitless innings of relief for the Normans, retiring all six batters she faced, striking out three.

The game was called after 4 ½ innings because of the 10-run rule.

Fleshing Out the Details for an Amazing Roxbury Park

By Gerald Lunn

Last week I discussed the advantages that would result from locating a new community center along Olympic Boulevard in the northeast quadrant of Roxbury Park. Such advantages include the following:

1. Allowing use of the existing building while the new building is constructed.
2. The ability to create a much larger (and higher quality) green space in the southern portion of the park.
3. Screening approximately one half of the current frontage along Olympic, thus reducing the noise and air pollution affecting the park by approximately 50 percent.
4. Reducing the impact of construction on neighboring residents.
5. Creating a greener view from Olympic Boulevard by screening the western and northern façades of the new building with lush evergreen trees, such as Italian Cypress. Such trees would also have a beneficial effect on air quality and reduce energy costs during the summer.
6. Providing ample permit parking for people who live near the park.
7. Greatly reducing traffic on Roxbury, by providing underground parking close to Olympic.

Locating a new building along Olympic would provide numerous advantages, but there are significant details that would need to be addressed. Battle lines have already been formed with respect to some of these details, but I am hopeful that by thinking outside the box we can find solutions that enable compromise.

The existing community center does not have enough windows and doors that take advantage of the beauty of the park. A new building along Olympic could be shaped around a lush beautifully landscaped exterior courtyard south of the building. The courtyard could be viewed and accessed through large windows and glass doors. The courtyard could contain a landmark fountain (preferably paid for from the City's fine art fund), and a wheelchair friendly area.

Although building a new structure along Olympic would permit a lot more square footage than the existing site, that does not mean that the square footage could not be the same or less than that of the existing building. My sense is that the current building is rarely used at full capacity—at any given time there are almost always a few rooms that are not being used or that are larger than what is needed. With a thoughtful design that includes movable walls, it would be possible to create a more functional building with less square footage than the existing building. The goal should be to build a space that efficiently meets the needs of the community. If this can be done with a smaller building using movable walls, then we could save both money and green space.

Personally, I would like to see a new multipurpose room that is roughly the same size as the current multipurpose room, and that can be easily divided into three or more smaller rooms. I would also love to see a configuration that allows seniors to choose to dine inside (with a view of the courtyard) or outside, and provisions for others to enjoy this space when seniors are not using it.

I would also like to see a kitchen that will meet all legal requirements for a robust senior lunch program, taking into account that the number of seniors is expected to grow significantly in future years.

I also believe that a second floor along part of the building might be desirable, but I see no need for the new building to exceed 30 feet in height, even though a taller building could be screened using fast-growing cypress trees. On the other hand, a more vertical building would result in additional green space, so I think that it would be worthwhile to ask an architect to provide analysis as to how to strike an optimum balance among the three interrelated considerations, i.e. maximizing green space, keeping the height at a level that does not overwhelm the site and making sure that the new building is large enough to meet all foreseeable needs. I would also suggest that the architects leave some adjacent space open as green space that could, at such future time, be used to expand the building. Thinking ahead in this manner could save millions of dollars in the long run, either because future needs dictate a larger building or because it turns out that the additional square footage is unnecessary because the movable walls concept allows a smaller building to meet all needs.

I would also suggest that the City Council give careful consideration to the suggestion of Health and Safety Commission Chair Debra Judelson that the new community center serve as a disaster relief center in the event of a major earthquake. To this end, it would make sense to have a room on a second floor or in a basement where the City could store food, water and medical supplies. It would also make sense to insist on a design that significantly exceeds current earthquake standards, so that, ideally, this will be the first building in our City's history that will never need to suck up millions of dollars for seismic retrofitting.

I have heard some objections to the idea of underground parking. Some people are concerned that this would be unsafe or become a haven for drug trafficking. I would suggest a single level of underground parking, that would basically go under the area currently occupied by the two lawn bowling/croquet fields that are now located along the northeast section of the park. Such parking area should be well lit and have high ceilings. There should be cameras at the car entrance, and there should be an entrance on the west end to be used for city vehicles only, so that maintenance vehicles and equipment can be stored underground instead of eating up hundreds of square feet of green space as they now do.

I estimate that at least 125 spaces could be sited in this underground parking area, and that with adequate cameras (hooked up to the BHPD monitoring center) and call boxes we could make this the safest underground parking lot in our city. But this is Beverly Hills, and we can afford to provide the best. To this end, I would also suggest that there be at least two valets available during operating hours to assist seniors and others who need assistance. Some seniors can afford drivers, and some cannot. Some seniors need a cane or walker when they exit their cars. Some seniors use wheelchairs. Let's be humane and spend the relatively paltry amount that it would cost to provide valet parking to our seniors and additional security for all users.

This configuration would preserve most of the existing diagonal parking along Roxbury—the only diagonal parking that would go away would be one or two of the existing 46 diagonal spaces. Such one or two lost spaces would need to be used to add a new southbound lane on Roxbury. There would also need to be a loss of a narrow strip of land just east of the building to widen Roxbury by three or four feet to accommodate the new southbound lane. I don't like any loss of green space, but believe that it would be worth it in order to greatly reduce traffic along Roxbury. By having a dedicated turn lane along the west side of Roxbury that leads to the underground parking lot, we could make it as safe and easy as possible to access the parking structure. It should also be noted that in exchange for this small loss of green space we could turn the existing parking lot and adjacent maintenance area into green space, which would be adjacent to the green space that can be created when the existing building is demolished. As noted last week, the green space at the southern portion of the park would greatly exceed what is there now, both in terms of quantity and quality. Ideally, someone standing near the center of this area would feel like she is standing in an actual forest.

This plan would preserve at least 45 of the existing diagonal spaces along Roxbury. I would suggest that some of this be reserved as permit parking for people who live on Roxbury and whose apartments offer no parking. I feel bad for these people. After a hard day at work, they should not have to spend 10 or 20 minutes or more trying to find a parking space. And who needs the extra traffic and exhaust fumes?

I would also suggest that serious consideration be given to demolishing the existing building north of where the tennis courts are currently located and moving the functions of such building to the new community center. Such existing building is mediocre in all respects, and removing it would create major opportunities to improve the overall configuration, as well as save on future energy and maintenance costs.

I also believe that some thought should be given to providing for reasonably scaled public performances, such as symphonies at sunset on Saturdays during the summer, where 100 or so families could sit on blankets just south of the new building and enjoy classical music at decibels that would not offend nearby residents. Such events would create decades of satisfaction for generations of residents. It would cost very little to try this on a trial basis and see how it goes. Maybe it's time for a “Woofstock” for humans?

I would also suggest that the City spend whatever it takes to fix the irrigation problems at the park, as well as provide safe, interesting playgrounds for toddlers and younger children.

Now I want to discuss some features that I believe should NOT be included at Roxbury.

First, the idea of a large basketball facility simply does not make sense at this time. The school district appears ready to start building additional gymnasiums, and I would suggest that the City wait to see if this actually happens. And if it does not happen, then the City should acquire new property for such a gym, using the tens of millions of dollars of potential budget savings that I will identify in my next guest column.

Second, it appears that almost no one wants a climbing wall or large banquets.

Finally, there is one additional seemingly insurmountable problem, which arises from the fact that the City has barely enough money to build a new community center, and there are other major defects in Roxbury Park that cry out for attention, such as poor drainage and substandard playgrounds. Also, there are other parks in Beverly Hills that need attention.

COMING NEXT TIME: I will discuss how to surmount such budget constraints.
