"9900 Wilshire Project is on the road to approval" [Issue 445]

I wish those who supported the Montage Hotel had to listen to the construction work going on at off-hours. Many times I've heard the back-and-forth of trucks at four o'clock in the morning, or the banging that starts around midnight on a Saturdays. And even if transporting materials cannot be done during the day, couldn't it begin earlier in the evening?

I also wonder what work hours the city will allow when construction begins on the Foothill and Third project, and others (and yes there are apartments and homes nearby the industrial area).

Richard Baker Beverly Hills

The Hilton has been running an expensive public relations campaign to support their proposal. It must have been great since it convinced [former Mayor Max] Salter and his friends and the Courier that what is good for the Hilton is good for Beverly Hills. If only it were true. According to Mr. Salter's recent letter, Beverly Hills will receive $700 million over 30 years if this project is built. No evidence presented. Assuming it is true, if there are no condos the city will receive $640 million. The city does not need the condos. The Hilton needs them to pay for their extravaganza.

The Hilton is paying for a traffic light at Merv Griffin Way and Santa Monica Blvd. If they didn't, no one at the Hilton and the 9900 Project would ever be able to leave. There are two left-turn lanes already at the Santa Monica [and Wilshire Blvd.] intersection. Another east lane will be a bottleneck because there are only two lanes after crossing Santa Monica. The Hilton is putting an adjacent lane next to their property heading west? That will be interesting. Merv Griffin Way and Whittier Drive are essentially aligned now.

The Hilton plot plan looks lovely from above. But we live on the same level and from the ground it looks like a closed compound. I would limit the height of the buildings on Wilshire and Santa Monica to 95 feet, like the current buildings. If the project needs all those condos, forget them and just build a Waldorf Astoria along Wilshire. And bring back Trader Vic's. Can Mr. Salter explain how the Beverly Hilton Revitalization Plan is going to improve the quality of our life?

"PITCH" PERFECT DODGER STADIUM

Temple Emanuel Cantor Yonah Kliger, a 1989 Beverly High graduate, sang "God Bless America" at Dodger Stadium on April 13 in connection with the team's Jewish Community Day, before the Los Angeles Dodgers' 1-0 loss to the San Diego Padres.

Kliger's No. 32 jersey bears the number worn by the legendary Dodger pitcher Sandy Koufax, who Kliger described as "the greatest Jew to honored Masons' Award Beverly High

Halimi, Kopeikin

English teacher Michelle Halimi and Beverly High student Hannah Kopeikin '08 were named the first annual recipients of the Mason's Award. The Award is given to one student and one teacher "for going above and beyond what their duties require." The award ceremony was held the night of April 15 at the Ionic Lodge on Cienega Blvd.

Hannah Kopeikin

Halimi was awarded $1,000 and Kopeikin was given a $2,500 as a scholarship.

This is Halimi's second year as a teacher at Beverly. The 2002 Beverly graduate has pioneered a number of community service programs at the school, including the Freedom Writers program. According to Assistant Principal Rick Barclay, she ultimately wants to become a superintendent.

"[Halimi] is incredibly active and tries for every possible way to assist the community," Barclay said.

Kopeikin is a senior at Beverly and has been involved in a number of organizations, including the Superintendent's Round Table, Site Council and the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC).

"We have the opportunity to be on a lot of boards and a lot of meetings, and a face that we constantly kept seeing, who was very active in the school, was Hannah," Barclay said.

Both winners were selected by a team of Beverly High's principal and assistant principals, though Barclay said they plan to open the nomination process up to the staff in the coming year. Another change for next year is that the student winner will have to have declared education as his or her intended college major.

Stepenosky chairs WASC accreditation committee

Former Beverly High Principal Dan Stepenosky chaired a five-person WASC accreditation committee, which spent April 6-9 touring the School of International Business (SIB) in the Kearny High Educational Complex in San Diego.

WASC - the Western Association of Schools and Colleges – is one of six regional organizations that accredit schools, thus certifying they are performing at an acceptable level.

As chair of the committee, Stepenosky conducted a pre-visit and after deliberating with the rest of the committee ultimately authored the report that recommends to WASC whether or not the school should be accredited and for how long. Accreditations can be given in terms of up to six years.

The Kearny High Educational Complex is made up of four autonomous, comprehensive high schools, including SIB, each geared toward a particular business area, which were created after the closure of Kearny High School in 2004. The majority of communities served by SIB contain apartments and homes inhabited by low income, working-class families.

"In three short years they've really turned the school around," Stepenosky said. "It's exciting, it energizes you," Stepenosky said. "And for me, I really enjoy working on the curriculum because [working in human resources] I don't get that involved with curriculum on a daily basis."

Stepenosky currently serves as an Assistant Superintendent in the Las Virgenes Unified School District.

Administrative hearing looks at BHUSD layoff process

Seeing a room full of generally younger academic-types shifting in their seats, doodling in their notebooks and passing notes to their friends, an outsider might think he is looking into a classroom of students counting down the minutes until the bell rings.

"Everybody's getting sick of sitting still," Jesse Meyen said, about an hour into the proceedings.

However, it might surprise that outsider to learn that Meyen is actually a recently hired math teacher at Hawthorne - that, far from counting down the minutes, he was anxiously trying to turn back the clock, trying to see if the lavoff notice he received March 11 was just a tragic mistake.

Meyen was just one of the 35 certificated teachers to have been pink-slipped last month as a result of statewide budget cuts, and one of some 25 who attended the April 15 administrative hearing to determine whether or not any mistake was made on the District's part in distributing layoff notices.

Lavoffs are determined by a combination of the teacher's seniority, credential status and the program areas the District is seeking to cut. Pink-slipped teachers generally have fewer than two years of seniority, but a teacher with only one year may be able to keep his job over another one-year teacher if he is credentialed in another area that has a shortage of teachers.

For example, David Foldvary is one of two middle school social studies teachers being laid off, but his Spanish teaching credential could give him the leg up if a space opens in the Spanish department.

Determining the list of seniority can be a complicated process, and mistakes can happen in balancing the two factors among a staff of over 300 teachers district-wide.

The hearing consisted of an argument made by the District's attorney, Aaron O'Donnell, which involved hearing testimony from Assistant Superintendent of Human Resources Sal Gumina and Human Resources Coordinator Nora Roque, confirming the rationale behind individual layoffs. Roque's is the only administrative position being affected by the cuts - her position will be downgraded it title.

Following this, the California Teacher's Association attorney acting on behalf of the teachers, Larry Trygstad, made his arguments for the rehiring of a number of certificated teachers.

One of his arguments was in favor of rehiring those teachers who had been laid off as more of a precautionary measure, rather than a necessity. BHEA President Chris Busheé said in an earlier interview this is actually a common practice among school districts and BHUSD acted with restraint in only giving notice for an additional 10.5 positions.

Trygstad also argued that temporary or long-term substitute teachers whose original teachers have officially handed in their resignation notices, should have their classification changed to that of a permanent teacher, with their seniority terms beginning the workday after the original teacher resigned. If this were to happen in the three cases put on the record, with three more teachers on the seniority list, the most senior on the list could be rehired.

One such teacher – Jessica DeZure – was the first to bring her case to the judge. If her official date of hire was changed from the day she was promoted to temporary status, to the day she was hired as a long-term substitute about two months earlier, she could be considered more senior than two other teachers, she said.

However, in the course of her testimony. it was revealed that, though she holds two Masters degrees in English education and performing arts, DeZure was still working on getting her English teaching credential and had not received notice that her application for an emergency credential had been approved. On the other hand, though DeZure was unsure of the status of his emergency credential, she said one of her rival teachers was also working on his English credential.

Afi Kashanian holds a multiple subject elementary school credential, and claimed she was never given the opportunity to obtain a local authorization to teach certain middle school subjects, as fellow Horace Mann teacher Jumi Yang had done. Kashanian argued that this authorization would have placed her higher on the seniority list.

Jill Coley, a newly tenured teacher who is one of two K-12 English Learners (EL) specialists and who also has a single-subject credential in English, listed seven certificated staff members who hold the same credential but whose seniority date is the same or later than hers. The district's attorney did not offer any evidence to contradict her tes-

Today should have been a good day for Mayen, who had discovered the day before that he had passed the test to receive his 6-8 Math credential in California (he had taught the same subject in Minnesota for three years before coming to Beverly Hills).

However, because he didn't receive the results until after March 15 - the date by which the District had to make all final layoff decisions – they could not be put forth at the hearing.

Majority of Council agrees to Hilton 'A' Building

In a consensus of the Council, the City Council agreed accept Councilmember Linda Briskman's scenario for the Beverly Hilton Revitalization

Project, thus ensuring the construction of an "A" Building on the corner of Wilshire Blvd. and Merv Griffin Way, at the Council's formal meeting on April 15.

The Council heard comments from the public and from the developer, but perhaps most importantly they heard from both City Chief Financial Officer Scott Miller and Cal Hollis, a real estate consultant hired by City staff, that the project without an A Building of condos will not be financially viable.

"We believe overall [the removal of the A Building leads to] approximately a 15 percent reduction in value," Hollis said. "That essentially represents the profit for the project, so the diminution of the value results in the project's not getting any profits at all."

Briskman, and Councilmembers Frank Fenton and Jimmy Delshad were in favor of Briskman's iteration of the

"The entitlements for 9900 Wilshire and the Hilton signal a major aesthetic improvement to the western gateway of our city, which has long been looked upon as a concrete jungle," Briskman said."

Brucker's rival plan would have eliminated the A Building and created a 260-foot-wide B Building - about a third larger than that in Briskman's plan - to be able to accommodate for the minimum number of necessary resi-

L.A. Beware. BH Is Taking The Street

And chamber has two big wins By Rudy Cole

Beverly Hills has some of the most diligent and effective code enforcement officers to be found anywhere, hopefully Los Angeles doesn't or that city's gendarmes might arrive at our city hall with citations made out to our mayor and city manager.

In what may come as a surprise to Los Angeles city officials, Beverly Hills has invaded and taken as its own city property owned by our Big Sister.

You've seen those signs that are intended to promote our village: "Eat" and "Shop" and "Dine" and even "Play" in Beverly Hills? Some overly enthusiastic installing contractor decided they were nice enough to share with Los Angeles and sans permit hung them on the 800 South Robertson block.

What makes this even more amusing is that the councilman for the Los Angeles district that surrounds us to the east and west, Jack Weiss, has his field office at 822 South Robertson, three doors from one of the "Play" signs.

That section of Robertson has been the source of confusion for decades. On the west Beverly Hills, side of the street, the numbers are 300 south, but on the east, 800. The Los Angeles section ends at Gregory, but not the confusion.

The Blockbuster on the corner of Gregory is actually the first business on the east side within our borders, but the signs in their parking lot advise you to call the Los Angeles police if your auto is towed!

Jurisdictional confusion doesn't begin or end with municipalities. The east, Los Angeles side of Robertson, has a shop called Beverly Hills Kitty. I assume it sells children's toys, and although the sign said they were "open" they were closed. So, we were unable to ask if they knew what city they were South Robertson is not the only confusing address problem. Just one block north of Wilshire an enterprising property owner solved an address dilemma.

The same owner has two attached buildings: One in Beverly Hills, the other in Los Angeles. His Beverly Hills building, constructed under code, is two floors and the Los Angeles one four. That edifice should have been 400 North Robertson and very confusing for visitors wondering what happened to the whole 300 North block. Apparently the post office, not our planning department, came to the rescue and the Los Angeles building is now 240 North Robertson. Cedars-Sinai Medical Group is the primary renter.

However, the most confusing address puzzle is on our eastern borders. Assume you have an office at 8383 Wilshire, one of our largest, and you have a visitor driving from downtown. If they check the building numbers in Los Angeles just before entering our city they can only assume their destination is a mile away. Suddenly, the addresses go from 6500 West Wilshire to 8200 - totally missing is the 7000 block. Now, that's what I call regional planning.

As for those eat, live, play dine signs, I think I may be in a very small minority. Even one of our pioneer land and business owners, Ken Norian, loves them. (Ken's family owned and operated the great Premier Market on North Canon and his late father-in-law, Archie Dickranian, was a major player in city life.)

I just don't like them. Well intended, obviously, but we have such strict rules on signage, with a long tradition of not approaching overt commercialization, the signs seem, how shall I put this delicately, tacky.

Historically, city councils have rejected banner type signs used to promote events, even those sponsored by the city. Our codes limit exterior sign designs, most of which require Architectural Commission approval, and woe on the merchant who places any kind of sign on city property, including the sidewalk outside his store. These rules, and the diligent enforcement by the Department of Building and Safety, preserve our image of sophistication and taste. These signs do not.

Instead, why is it taking so long to set up visitor's booths or kiosks in the triangle? Properly designed and staffed, this could be a major asset in directing tourists and visitors to our shops, restaurants and hotels and have some real impact. As for the one that urges us to "Play in Beverly Hills," I'm not exactly sure where one goes to "play." Lawn bowling is on the way out.

Although most of its members and officers are unfazed by the hits our Chamber of Commerce has been taking recently, some frankly of the self-inflicted kind, the organization has had some very solid achievements

First, the Chamber brought back into the tent some of the great city leaders who resigned in protest some years back. Frequent readers know the story, but to refresh, and for the record, the city council created a very prestigious organization with the unassuming name of "Marketing Committee" some years before the current CEO, Dan Walsh, was hired, But the then Chamber CEO and the Chamber board, insisted that funding for the committee should be cut and given to the Chamber. The Marketing Committee promptly disbanded and their entire board resigned from the Chamber of Commerce.

Included in the departure were such icons as Jerry Magnin, a long time retailer on Rodeo and former city commissioner, Ali Kasikci, then managing director of the Peninsula, Richard Rosenzweig, a past president of the Chamber and one of the city's most influential leaders, and the legendary Fred Hayman, one of our most famous citizens, dubbed the father of Rodeo Drive. Not exactly a group of malcontents.

Aside from the turf battle and the loss of funding, the Marketing Committee and its executive director, understood something that seemed to have escaped past councils and the Chamber: We didn't need to spend millions on the "brand," for a city already known throughout the world and instead of promoting name recognition alone, we needed to find more reasons for people to come to Beverly

In any case, we need to credit Walsh and the current Chamber leaders for ending the rift. In a major achievement, Kasikci, now managing director of the soon to open Montage Beverly Hills, Rosenzweig and Hayman have all returned as members of the Chamber's board of directors.

Another, even more surprising achievement, was Walsh's ability to bring together almost every manager and managing director of our competing hotels to a summit on hotel issues. Included, in the same room were gms of the Peninsula, Montage, Beverly Wilshire, Beverly Hills, Beverly Hilton, Luxe and even some of the boutique, smaller operations. The only missing hotel was L' Hermitage.

Proponents of the massive 40-story building next to the high school may be in for a political surprise. Despite his attendance at a luncheon honoring the architect for the project, the district councilmember, Jack Weiss, may not become a cheerleader for the massive development. Sources have told us it would be "wrong to assume" that Weiss has signed on in support prior to a venting of the hearing process. Many city and school leaders have expressed Beverly Hills concerns too. One of the lawyers for the developer is former mayor, Thomas Levyn.

There was a time, when Jimmy Murphy's restaurant occupied the space, that there was talk of trying to annex the land to Beverly Hills. Had that happened, forty floors would never have even been considered.

Clipper injuries may have frustrated team owner Donald T. Sterling hopes for his team, but it has not dampened his commitment to some worthwhile community efforts.

The Sterling Foundation will sponsor a "World Wide Holocaust Remembrance Day" on Sunday, May 4 1:45 p.m. at Pan Pacific Park. Participating will be Lt. Gov. John Garamendi, Israel Consul General Jacob Dayan, Los Angeles Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa and chair emeritus Jona Goldrich.

LOCAL HERO: Paul Bernstein came to a recent city council meeting with a question: How and why had three large trees been removed from city property on Canon adjacent to the former gas station? No one had a quick answer, but evidently the service station property is going to be developed and there was a permit that included payment of a bond, an arrangement the city's tree expert later told Paul was "beneficial" to the city and would result in a satisfactory replacement. However, for his diligence and willingness to act as a possible "whistle blower." Paul is this week's Local Hero. As for what is planned for the land and why the trees had to be removed now, we are still working on it - more later.

Councilmember Nancy Krasne consistently voted against the many facets the project's approval entailed, insisting the approval process had not been given ample time for consideration and should not have come before the Council until after the General Plan was approved.

Councilmember Jimmy Delshad broke his pattern of consistent support with an 11th-hour motion to postpone the vote on the development agreement so the ad-hoc committee could renegotiate the deal to get more money for the City. The motion was denied and the development agreement approved, both in 3-2 votes with Krasne and Delshad voting against.

The project will include the demolition of the existing 228,000-square-foot former department store building and associated parking structure and the replacement of the structures with a mixed-use project. The project includes 235 condominium units in two buildings, two commercial buildings consisting of 16,441 square feet of retail and restaurant space with environmentally sensitive or "green" features on an eight-acre site. The project site is bounded by the Los Angeles Country Club on the west, Wilshire Blvd. to the north, Merv Griffin Way to the east and Santa Monica Blvd. to the south.

Example: Bonnie, age 75, funds a $10,000 charitable gift annuity with cash. Based on her age, the American Heart Association will pay her a guaranteed annuity rate of 7.1%. The payments are fixed and guaranteed. Thus, Bonnie will receive $710 each year for the rest of her life. Of that amount, $474 will be tax-free and $236 will be ordinary income. In approximately 12 years, the entire annuity will become ordinary income. In addition, Bonnie will be entitled to an income tax charitable deduction of $4,319 in the year she funds the annuity. COVERSTORY GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS

Public Works Commission Chair Howard Fisher talks dirty about wastewater

By Lauren Gabbaian

Tell us about the Public Works Commission.

The Public W o r k s C o m m i s s i o n works with essentially public buildings, so we don't get involved with any of the current projects going on. We build city halls and we build municipal buildings like the vehicle maintenance facility, which is just about finished, at least the shell's finished. And we're the ones who keep the entire infrastructure running in the city. Everything from the water that comes to you, we get the water up from the source, the streets, the street lights, the street signs. Everything you ever think about, but if it was disrupted for two minutes, you would be very [inconvenienced]. People just expect to turn the tap, and water, clean water, drinkable water, is going to flow and flow well. You expect the traffic lights to work, you expect the roads to be in pretty good condition, the sidewalks to be in pretty good shape.

How does the Commission work to make it all happen?

The commission doesn't have a direct role, it's an advisory role for City Council. It's an information-gathering role. So we'll look at special projects. For example we're looking at bus stops right now – what to do about them? do you put shelters up? do you put benches? What other resources might you add to bus stops.

Sometimes there are joint projects. Rec and Parks and Public Works are looking at a couple of the gateways, just to give the City some input as to what can be done with them. Mike Blumenfeld [interviewed in issue 438] and I recently were talking with Deputy City Manager Dave Lightner about the Santa Monica gateway. There's a situation there with T-Lots. On Santa Monica Blvd. and Doheney Drive between the east and westbound lanes, there's a triangle area, and there's a fence around it. So the question is why do we have that and Santa Monica has this nice work of art? And the answer is, that triangle piece is actually part of the railroad property that stopped there.

And that triangle is private, so that triangle is technically private property. Everybody's in a standstill because there were very minor levels of arsenic there from the railroad ties that used to be there. It's an insignificant amount, but nobody in the state government who's responsible wants to tell us what to do.

What is the Public Works Commission planning right now?

Right now we're evaluating some of the utility rates that we deal with, the water rates, the water discharge rates. And that was one of the reasons we went down to Hyperion [Waste Water Treatment Plant]. Our city pays a fee to L.A. who runs a plant for processing. Some people have talked about why don't we have our own [waste] water treatment plant here? And after seeing the inner-workings of a treatment plant, I think we probably have less than four residents in this entire town of 35,000 that would want a plant here. It treats raw sewage, separates out hard particles from the flow and it treats the flow and it has open-air tanks. We don't have the land for it and we really don't want it in the middle of town and they're incredibly expensive to run, but some people have said, But we should have this.

One of the things we learned today is over the last 25 years since they've gone through the heavy-duty treating they do, when they first did testing, they were down to about 11 or 12 species of fish and mollusks and organisms, we're now up to about 170-plus and counting. There's been a tremendous revitalization

How has the practice of public works changed over the years?

It's really just fascinating to see what happens after you put water down the drain so to speak, or flush a toilet. People don't realize what a huge cost infrastructure is and how recently all the rules have changed. Up until [about] 1950 we were dumping raw sewage just in the Bay. And we didn't get high-level water treatment until the '80s.

What kinds of new technology is the City using in Public Works?

The City's constantly doing things to be on the cutting edge. These smart water meters, which we're going to start installing shortly, we're just about finished up with setting up the network of equipment that will read the signal from the water meters. Then there are programs that are part of the system that start to develop average use, so that when they see very abnormal use a bell will go off because you probably have a leak

There's technology that's coming along that will also be a great deal of help and Public Works is at the cutting edge of it. Public Works in connection to Recreation and Parks – put in smart watering systems in all the parks, cutting down on all the water that's used. The [watering systems] in the parks are more sophisticated [than simply detecting rain] – it actually determines groundwater moisture so it'll help regulate whether you go three minutes or four minutes. In more humid air, you need less water.

Why are water rates increasing?

People don't realize how expensive it is to generate all the things we like in our life today. The largest consumer of electricity in the state of California is the industry that brings water to you. Extracting water from subsurface and then moving the water to get it delivered to your tap – that's the number one utilizer of electricity. So as electricity costs go up, the cost of delivering water goes up. [And] you have not only the product, the water, but you have the whole delivery system.

Where do you get the money from? You get it from one of two places: either direct user fees – we charge you by use – or through the General Fund. Those are the only two sources, effectively, for paying for all this. The costs go up and we have to periodically adjust the rates and things are jumping at astronomical rates, literally every year. We get 80 percent of our water or more through the Metropolitan Water District, so when Metropolitan raises their rates to us, we have to raise the rates correspondingly.

Everyone on the Commission lives in Beverly Hills. We have to pay those rates.

The water treatment people told us today that there's been a decrease in the amount of water [coming to the plant]. A lot of it has to do with the big push that's been made in the last five years to conserve water. Just little things – when you brush your teeth shut the water off, you're washing the dishes shut the water off. Just shut it off when you don't need it. People have become water-wise and savvy and I think there's been more and more conservation.

Opponents of the Beverly Hilton and 9900 Wilshire Projects have said the additional traffic will have a negative affect on infrastructure. To what extent is this true?

The impact of your car on the street is relatively little. A bus, a truck, has a much greater impact, way out of proportion to the weight differential. So it's just a question of what's the usage and is it going to be so much more use that it's going to cause bad degradation. Cars aren't the big problem.

Why did you choose the Public Works Commission?

Take a look at the City budget some time. The largest area of expenditure is public works. It's not police and it's not fire. It's really the backbone of what makes this city work. It's not as glamorous and exciting as the Planning Commission, but I can go without people camping out on my front lawn and half my friends hating me and the other half indifferent.

What do you like best about working with the Public Works Commission?

People. We have just the greatest people. A lot of long-term folks doing everyday work, transparent people nobody looks at or pays attention to. Try driving one of those trash trucks backwards at 10 miles an hour like some of these guys can do. They are really skilled

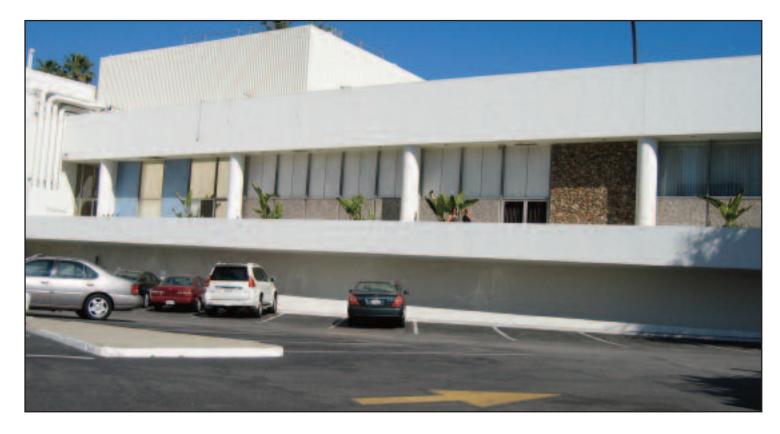

When we had problems, there was a break in one of the water mains, cutting off about a dozen homes for a day or so, several months ago. We had some people who were working three days straight. They're just a group of dedicated, hard-working people who do what needs to be done.

What are your plans for after Public Works?

Well, if McCain or Hillary don't run again, maybe I'll try their job?

Right now, we have an historic opportunity to bring one of the world's greatest hotels to Beverly Hills...

...Or we can leave things the way they are.

If approved, The Beverly Hilton Revitalization Plan will bring one of the world's great hotels — the Waldorf = Astoria — to Beverly Hills and transform acres of concrete into open space and lush gardens. CBRE Financial Consulting concluded that this project will generate more than $700 million in revenue to the City of Beverly Hills over 30 years. Let's not miss the chance to complete this historic transformation.

Dear Friends, April 2008

We are delighted to have become part of the Beverly Hills community with the City Council's approval of 9900 Wilshire. We are committed to creating an iconic residential development that will be environmentally sustainable and constructed under the strictest monitoring and supervision.

In the course of our ten Planning Commission and five City Council meetings, we have listened to the community and taken specific direction from both Commissioners and Council members. This has resulted in an improved project that respects the needs of our neighbors. With this guidance and input we are still traffic neutral, 75% open green space and on track to become the first U.S. Green Building Council LEED Gold rated buildings in Beverly Hills.

As we move forward, you have our pledge to continue our collaboration with the community, to remain accessible and responsive. We will continue to work closely with the City to coordinate schedules and anticipate challenges, resolving them before they become problems.

We believe Richard Meier's vision for 9900 Wilshire is a break-through design that will continue the Beverly Hills legacy of inspired architecture, quality and sophistication.

On behalf of the entire 9900 Wilshire team, we want to thank everyone involved for their hard work, community sensitive perspectives and commitment to creating a unique project on a one-of-a-kind property. This has been an lengthy process, open and transparent. It has yielded an outcome in which we can all be proud.

Respectfully,

Nick Candy
