“Hilton Referendum”

My letter to your paper 2 weeks ago listed 15 hotels in Beverly Hills, and I wondered how fire departments and schools in other cities our size continue to function well without the additional income generated by numerous hotels collecting a bed tax for the city.

Last week you published two letters commenting on my letter. Tom Hayostek wrote and agreed with me. The other letter writer wrote “Wake up- those days of yore- are long gone. Mr. Wallerstein may not have noticed that (Beverly Hills) is surrounded by a much bigger city, etc.” Sir, thanks for the information about the size of Los Angeles, that probably explains where all of those wandering tourists in comfortable looking tee shirts and shorts come from.

The second letter writer closed his letter by saying...” So unless Mr. Wallerstein is desirous of seeing these people bed down in refrigerator boxes on Wilshire, we need our existing hotels as well as newer and bigger hotels in our fair city.”

#1... Those people on buses are never bedding down in Beverly Hills. If you knew what Beverly Hills hotel rooms cost per night you would understand.

#2...During the whole time of this recent

Hilton discussion, more hotels, less hotels, bigger hotels, smallest hotels, I haven’t heard one person mention the recent Montage Hotel development debate in which the advocates had the same pro development arguments now being used in the Hilton proposal. The Montage is nearing completion in the middle of the business district and overshadows all Montage developer descriptions. Surprise, surprise.

Herbert L. Wallerstein

As we see the story of the Hilton-Waldorf Hotel/Condominium project unfold, there is one issue that keeps coming up to many of us. While we elected the City Council Members to protect and defend the best interests of our citizens, we did not give them free rein to change the building codes in our city. Linda Briskman has stated at a meeting regarding this project that she was elected to make these decisions and has every right to do so. In all the campaign rhetoric of both Ms. Briskman and Mr. Delshad, there was never mention of changing the building codes to allow the highest building, eighteen stories, ever built in Beverly Hills and the ever-expanding Waldorf Astoria.

The fact that the City and the developer claim that this project will not have a negative impact on traffic is simply mind-boggling. The project is not driven by attempts for the “beautification of Beverly Hills” but by a desire to squeeze every last condominium unit possible for future sale. It does not reflect well on the City Council or its citizens.

“Beverly Hills Education Association Gives Thanks”

I would like to thank the parents of the students of the Beverly Hills Unified School District. Teachers, counselors, office staff, and instructional assistants all rely on your support to make our educational mission successful. Through good times and bad, the long-lasting bonds that educators and parents form are crucial to guiding the children of our community to academic achievement.

As this school year draws to a close, parents can take pride in the accomplishments of their children. The ceremonies and awards programs that are so prevalent in the month of June embody the years of hard work put forth by students, parents, and educators.

Challenges await us at every turn...but together, parents and educators can make a positive difference. Whether it’s helping a child grasp a hard homework concept or delivering persuasive arguments to politicians for adequate resources for our schools...parents and educators in our school community share a passion for caring about students. We know how important it is to give back to the next generation.

The parents of Beverly Hills schools are well-represented by the leaders of our PTAs. I encourage parents to always play an active role in the PTA...from preschool to high school. I thank our district’s parents for entrusting your children with the educators who make up the 450 members of the Beverly Hills Education Association.

City Council Approves Increased JPA

City will pay over $45 million to use BHUSD facilities over next four years

By Jacquelyn Ryan

Beverly Hills schools can look forward to a record $13 million next year in support from the Beverly Hills City Council, who unanimously approved an historic Joint Powers Agreement on Tuesday night at an open City Council meeting.

Based on the new four-year Joint Powers Agreement (JPA), the City of Beverly Hills will pay over the term more than $45 million, the highest amount they've ever paid, to the Beverly Hills Unified School District for the use of the 16 acres of land and facilities owned by BHUSD when the spaces are unused by students.

"Given the cuts in the state, we felt that it was the right time to really give a boost to School District to cover any short falls and to make certain that Beverly Hills school facilities continue to stay in good shape," said Mayor Barry Brucker, who was on the JPA negotiating committee alongside Vice Beverly High will get a new grass field as part of the new JPA.

Mayor Frank Fenton, Board of Education President Myra Demeter and Board member Myra Lurie.

The four-year term spans from 2008 to 2012, and includes ongoing yearly payments of $10 million which include a 3 percent cost of living increase each year. The $13 million total proposed for the 2008-2009 year's JPA is a 20 percent increase from the last year's total of $8.4 million. It includes a $10 million ongoing payment and three one-time payments of $1 million each. One of those $1 million payments is unrestricted and allows the School District to use the money however necessary. But the other two of those $1 million payments are restricted for uses specified in the agreement, including allotting $600,000 to replace the turf at the schools, installing CCTV security cameras on the perimeters of all the campus and assisting in the demolition of the condemned annex building on the Horace Mann campus to provide "more green space," Brucker explained.

The money will also be used to build an anticipated new grass field at Beverly High School, where the old science and business education buildings were located.

"Our high school has less field space than any public high school in the state so we are in desperate need of additional field space. Another benefit will be that after school and on weekends AYSO Soccer or little league can have more field space, its like more park space, it's a win-win sit for school district and city," Brucker said.

But Councilmember Linda Briskman sounded some words of caution about the money from the new JPA at the Council meeting.

"Generosity without accountability is not a gift," Briskman said. She said schools and parents need to use the money responsibly and save up for a "rainy day." The goal, Briskman said, is for the schools to view the city's money as "enrichment" and not as base funding.

"You can't look to the city when the state cuts funding. ... it's not our job," Briskman said. She then urged the school parents to be as "diligent in following up on these funds as they were in lobbying to obtain it from us."

With that, all councilmembers voted to pass the new JPA, with great thanks from the parents and Board of Education members in attendance.

"We're delighted by the support the City Council has provided to BHUSD and our students. The JPA recognizes the important role that schools play in the overall health of a community, and the value in investing in the future of a city. In a time of unstable state funding, we appreciate the consistency and predictability of this commitment, which allows us to focus on academic achievement," Board of Education President Myra Demeter told the Council.

The JPA will now be sent to the City Attorney to be finalized and will be adopted by the City Council at the July 8, meeting.

NOTICE OF COMPLETION

NOTICE OF COMPLETION AND AVAILABILITY OF DRAFT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT REPORT (DEIR) AND PUBLIC HEARING

A Draft Environmental Impact Report (DEIR) has been prepared for a proposed performing arts center and public parking garage Project ("Project") to be located at 470 North Canon Drive (Former Main Post Office) and 455 North Crescent Drive, respectively, in the City of Beverly Hills, County of Los Angeles. The Draft EIR will be released on Friday, June 13, 2008 for public review and comment. The City of Beverly Hills, the lead agency, encourages public comment on the Draft EIR.

The Planning Commission of the City of Beverly Hills will hold a public hearing on the Draft EIR and the Project on Thursday, June 26, 2008 at 7:00 p.m. in City Council Chambers, Beverly Hills City Hall, 455 North Rexford Drive, Beverly Hills, California 90210.

Planning Commission Public Hearing:

DATE: June 26, 2008
 TIME: 7:00 p.m.
 LOCATION: City Council Chambers
 Beverly Hills City Hall
 455 North Rexford Drive
 Beverly Hills, CA 90210

Project Description:

The rehabilitation and reuse of the City's former main Post Office into Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts at 470 North Canon Drive. The Center would include:

- A 500-seat auditorium
- A studio/rehearsal hall for up to 150 occupants
- Three classrooms (up to 60 occupants altogether)
- A functional 3,400 square-foot entry hall
- Administrative offices
- Incidental food concession ( 750 square-feet) (plus outdoor seating)
- Sculpture gardens, landscaped walkways, and open space

The performing arts center would involve the rehabilitation and reuse of the City's former main Post Office to house the classrooms, studio, ancillary activity space, administrative offices, and theater support areas. The Project also involves the construction of a new 43 foot, nine inch (43'-9") high theater and sculpture gardens on the southern portion of the Post Office site. The performing arts center is subject to the approval of a lease amendment for the Post Office site by the City Council.

A City subterranean parking structure proposed at 455 North Crescent Drive, under Crescent Drive between the former Post Office and City Hall. The parking facility is proposed with options as either a two-level garage or a three-level garage. The two-level option is proposed to provide between 270 and 300 parking spaces with points of access at Santa Monica Boulevard South and through the parking lot along the north side of the former Post Office (proposed as a motor court). It is addressed in the main impact discussion of the Draft Environmental Impact Report. The three-level option would provide between 400 and 430 parking spaces. As it has much in common with the two-level option, most of its environmental issues are covered in discussion of the two-level option. Specific discussion of the three-level option is included in the Alternatives section of the EIR, which focuses are areas where the three-level option differs from the two-level option. The Project may be approved with either option by the City Council.

Copies of the Draft EIR will be available for public review beginning Friday, June 13, 2008, in the Community Development Department at 9357 Third Street, Beverly Hills, California 90210. A copy of the Draft EIR will also be available for review at the Beverly Hills Public Library at 444 North Rexford Drive. One copy (per person or organization) of the Draft EIR may be obtained from the Community Development Department without charge. (Reproduction costs may be charged for additional copies.) The Draft EIR will also be posted on the City's Website at www.BeverlyHills.org on Tuesday, June 17, 2008.

After evaluating the Project's potential effects on the environment, the Draft EIR has identified the following significant impacts: temporary traffic impacts during Project construction, The Project alternative (three-level parking facility) was found to have potentially significant traffic impacts at certain intersections along Santa Monica Boulevard South ("Little" Santa Monica). In conjunction with other development in the region, the Project was found to contribute to cumulative environmental impacts.

The 45-day public comment period will be from Monday, June 16, 2008, through Thursday, July 31, 2008. Comments on the EIR will be accepted at the June 26, 2008 public hearing and in writing prior to the end of the public comment period.

Copies of all relevant material, including the Project specifications and the environmental initial study are available for review in the offices of the Community Development Department of the City of Beverly Hills.

If you have any questions regarding this Project, please contact Michele McGrath, Senior Planner, at 310.285.1135.

If you challenge the City's action on the Project, you may be limited to raising only those issues you or someone else raised as part of the public hearing process for the Project.

Notes On People And Events

Dining Becomes More Exciting in BH

By Rudy Cole

When Peri Ellen Berne, the affable manager of Fendi on Rodeo Drive, informed the Beverly Hills City Council on Tuesday that Manolo Blahnik would become the next inductee in the Rodeo Drive Walk of Style, women in the audience sighed with pleasure while the men, at least most of them, including this reporter, gave each other puzzled looks.

Should not have been a mystery, no matter your gender. Blahnik's fame as a maven of shoe fashion and design reached legendary status when his shoes became co-stars of the break-through cable-television series "Sex and the City."

Blahnik will become the 12th recipient of the "Walk of Style" award on Sept. 25, 2008. According to Ms. Berne, his 30-year career has made him "one of the world's leading footwear designers."

The invitation reads "All Ages," so that means I can attend too – the "First Annual Greystone Park Family Festival" this Saturday from noon to 4 p.m. at, you guessed it, Greystone Park. Proceeds support Greystone restoration.

There will be something for everyone including a booth organized by Theatre Forty featuring actors from "The Manor," which has had a six-year run at Greystone. There will also be brochures for upcoming Theatre Forty productions.

A special nod to city staff members who helped put this together: Steve Miller, director of community services; Brad Meyerowitz, recreation services manager; Cindy Brynam, senior recreation supervisor; and friendly security provided by Steven Clark and Daniel Hernandez, senior park rangers.

The event and the renewed interest and support for Greystone Park can also be credited to the leadership of Friends of Greystone president Susan Rosen, who along with Friends officer Suzane Furst are co-chairing the event.

For more information, call 310.285.2537.

City Council voted unanimously Tuesday to approve Fred Hayman's plan to install a Giorgio historical door design at Fred's building at 190 N. Canon Drive.

Giorgio and Hayman are so linked with the historic development of Rodeo Drive that this art piece will become a tourist attraction on Canon and also help preserve the memory of what Fred did for Rodeo and our city.

Long time Hayman architect Scott Carter and property manager exec Alex Radosevic assisted in bringing the project to the city.

A farewell to Community Development Director Vince Bertoni, who is leaving us for the second ranking position in the Los Angeles City Department of Planning, was held on June 5 and was attended by many former mayors, current councilmembers, city staff and community leaders.

The event also gave us an opportunity to visit another one of the Drago family owned restaurants, one we missed because it doesn't have a full bar, Il Buco on North Robertson. They do serve wine.

Speaking of city staff, and we mostly do with kind words, City Attorney Laurence Weiner, wife Tina and son Daniel, age 7, who is just completing his first year at Horace Mann, have a new addition to the family.

All three Weiners traveled to Guatemala to adopt and bring Kaela, who will turn 1 this year, to her new home and family in Beverly Hills. According to Larry, Kaela is doing just fine in her new world and is following her brother's lead in insisting on strawberries from the city's Farmer's Market every Sunday. Wait until she sees Rodeo Drive.

Congratulations to the Weiners.

Wine will be the attraction when Two Rodeo and "Learn About Wine" invite the community to participate in a program that will combine wine tasting, fine cuisine, music and fashion.

Called "Stars," the multi-event programs will begin with offerings from Australia on June 28, France on July 26 and California on August 23.

Part of the proceeds from the events will go to the T.J. Martell Foundation, a non-profit that supports research against leukemia, cancer and AIDS. Two Rodeo sponsors have told us the events will be limited to 125 people – $145 advance and $175 at the door.

An extravagant preview of the work of the Peninsula Beverly Hills new chef, James Overbaugh, was presented to restaurant writers and this columnist last month.

Overbaugh comes to our leading hotel after 11 years with the famed Chateau du Sureau near Yosemite with a two year interruption when he served as executive chef of New Orleans Windsor Court's Grill. That gave him accolades from Where magazine, which called the restaurant "New Orleans Best Fine Dining experience."

Media attending included Alain Gayot, Gayot.com; Victoria Recano, "Entertainment Tonight" and "The Insider"; Tara de Lis, "City Search"; Lilliam Rivera, "Angeleno Magazine"; Michelle Grabicki, "The Hollywood Reporter"; Carole Dixson, "Malibu Magazine"; Jay Weston, Linda Burum, "Los Angeles Magazine"; Leslee Komiko, "Los Angeles Times"; Charles Runetter, "Hollywood Life"; and Amy Albert, "Bon Appetit."

Hosting were Offer Nissenbaum, the Peninsula's new managing director, and public relations consultant Sharon Boorstin.

The menu was varied, incredibly well prepared and served, and offered a preview of the changes Overbaugh will bring to the elegant Belvedere room at the Peninsula. Master server/captain Michael, a community favorite, did his usual professional best as did David Jones, the hotel sommelier, who made each serving of the various, many wines exciting.

Another dining event by another hotel soon to open just down the street from the Peninsula, the Montage Beverly Hills, gave the new hotel's executive team a preview of what to expect from head chef John Cuevas, who is leaving Montage Laguna to come to our city.

Managing director Ali Kasikei and his charming and community-active wife Donanae hosted the dinner at their home. The evening also honored the hotel's new public relations director Kristy Karlovec on her birthday.

Kasicki was wise enough to give style leader Fred Hayman and wife Betty an earlier evening of food prepared by Chef Cuevas. The Haymans gave chef and Ali high-fives.

Today is Marsha Kramer Keller's birthday and not a bad time to note that her family has had a successful run, since 1949, of operating Kramer's Pipe and Tobacco on Little Santa Monica Boulevard.

Marsha supplied me with some fascinating historical data on some city stores: Continuing operations in the business area for 50 years or longer include Nate 'n Al's, Standard Cutlery, Robert's Optical, Carroll and Company, and the Writer's and Artist's Building, also on Little Santa Monica whose directory has included names such as Jack Nicholson, Billy Wilder and Ray Bradbury.

Although a non-smoker, Marsha and her husband still manage the shop and Marsha still blends her father's private pipe tobacco blends. Cecil B. De Mille, Samuel Goldwyn, Danny Kaye, Bill Cosby and Billy Wilder were among their clients. Not so famous, but still puffing in the few remaining pipe permitted venues, is your columnist. More important, pipes I break or Josette sabotages, they repair.

I did a guilty-by-association and a lumping of types together last week, and it was not elegant. Certainly, as one reader correctly pointed out, not all the anti-fur campaigners are "crazies." Some genuinely express concern on the treatment of animals and do so within acceptable, legal limits.

The fur-rights "crazies" are the ones that demolish research labs, chain themselves to street lamp posts and attack wearers of fur products far outside legal limits.

Kudos: Although we support the JPA funding the city provides for our schools and agree totally with the increase the council approved Tuesday, Councilmember Linda Briskman sounded a very important cautionary note:

Future increases may not be available, the city can not always come to the rescue when the state cuts education funding and the district needs to carefully manage JPA money.

The JPA is not a "grant" but payments for school services, the only legal means allowable, and Beverly Hills probably provides more money through the JPA than all the other schools in the state combined – and we were probably the first to initiate the concept when Dr. Charles Aronberg was mayor and Vicki Reynolds school board president.

We have great confidence in our schools, especially under the leadership of Supt. Kari Mc Veigh, arguably the best super since the days of Ken Peters and Sol Levine. But a city's ultimate responsibility is making sure the city is safe and well protected by an adequately supported police and fire department, the streets maintained and all the other municipal services for which the city receives tax dollars. That was never intended to include money for schools – a separate governmental agency, but one we support because of its importance to all of us, even those without school age children.

***

Final Note: As frequent readers know, I hate to pick on Rite Aid, but this one is too tempting. According to a resident, he recently called the Canon Drive Rite Aid to find out if they still carried books on tourism, which they once did. This brilliant response from a staff member: "No, but you can find those in a book store." Duh.

Gold Exceeds Record Highs

Some experts believe gold may surpass $1,500 per ounce.

Today's news tells us that we are confronting a serious economic crisis: looming recession, record oil prices, turmoil in the banking and financial sectors, a falling dollar and record home foreclosures. Now, more than ever, you need to consider protecting and diversifying your assets with gold. Historically, gold has represented real wealth that has provided investors with a recognized safe haven asset in a diversified portfolio. Gold prices have tripled from their lows in 2001 and some experts forecast gold may rise as high as $1,500 an ounce.

- Goldline has been assisting investors and collectors diversify their portfolios with precious metals and rare coins since 1960.
- Goldline offers some of the lowest prices on gold bullion coins and bars.
- Credit Cards are accepted on many products and storage is available.
- Add gold to your portfolio today with an investment of as little as $1,000.

Goldline recommends that you acquire a sound understanding of precious metals, coins and their market before you make your first investment. Goldline's spread between the bid and ask prices on the most common bullion coins is approximately 4% to 7% and between 30% and 35% on semi-numismatic coins and numismatic coins and currency. With graduation tomorrow, four Beverly High seniors reflect on how high school has helped prepare them for what lies ahead.

Tomorrow 600 seniors will receive their diplomas and begin a new chapter of their lives.

These four graduating seniors are not necessarily the class valedictorians or the star athletes. They're just a cross section of rank-and-file students and teenage life in Beverly Hills today.

HELEN

Every morning, I drive into Beverly Hills High School's parking lot. And every morning, I'm surprised. I probably shouldn't be – after all, I should expect the parking lot to be filled to capacity with BMWs, Mercedes Benz, Audis, etc. In the culmination of my final year at Beverly, I've realized how important this parking lot is in my life. All of those fancy cars and the lucky students driving them are constant reminders of what it means to come from Beverly Hills, and what the privilege and wealth of Beverly Hills entails: I have a responsibility to my community – small and large – to make the most out of my background and my great education.

My four years at Beverly Hills High School have taught me many things. I've learned chemistry, grammar rules, and the symbolism in Macbeth. But the most important lesson I learned during my tenure at Beverly is that my voice can really make a difference.

Before I went to high school, I knew that I liked to write. I signed up for the beginning journalism class at the high school, and I eagerly awaited every new issue of Highlights so that I could stare at the bylines and imagine my name in their place. Finally, as a sophomore, I was placed on the staff of Highlights. I started out writing entertainment pieces – I wrote about museums, art, and music. But then I found my place writing for the Opinion page, where I would later be editor for a year and a half before finally becoming an Editor-in-Chief of the paper.

Writing and editing the Opinion page completely changed my Beverly experience. Actually, it made my Beverly experience. I've always been one to speak my mind (that wonderful quality I inherit from my mother), but writing my opinions and garnering responses has been empowering for me. I've seen firsthand the power of my pen. Last year, when the library's budget was almost depleted, my article helped the library receive proper funding for its online resources.

Through journalism and Highlights, I found my voice – not only on paper, but in life. Earlier this year, I campaigned for Barack Obama with a few other Beverly Hills High School seniors in Las Vegas before the Nevada caucuses. For the first time in my life, I felt like I was doing something real. I was not just writing a column for some apathetic teenagers. I was out in the world, talking to voters and working for change.

I have come of age during a time of torture, terrorism, and a widespread distrust in government. I am finally optimistic about a better future for America and the world, and being involved in the Obama campaign made me realize that I can and will be a proud, active member of this democracy. Before, I considered politics dark and inaccessible, but now the election has consumed me. I have discovered my passion for politics, and it has completely reshaped what I think, read, and write.

But before I take on the U.S., I need to discover myself. Beverly – a big, public school with lots of bureaucratic red tape and big classes – showed me exactly what I don't want in a college. As a result, next year, I'm going to Carleton College, a small liberal arts college in Northfield, Minnesota. (And yes, I know that it will be cold there and that I will need to bring my jacket. Shockingly, I've heard this quite a few times before.) At Carleton, I'll be able to broaden my horizons, without necessarily being pressured about a career or a pre-professional track. I've learned a lot at Beverly, but at Carleton, I want the answer to "why?" instead of just the answer to "what?" I'll have small class sizes and an emphasis on the liberal arts that will hopefully be as inspiring as I've built it up to be.

Good and bad, my experiences at Beverly will always stay with me. They have become part of me, and they will be there with me whether I'm studying in college or campaigning for a politician. I will always remember and appreciate the guidance I received from Beverly's exceptional teachers who have inspired me and supported me for the last four years in all of my endeavors. Now that the time has come to graduate from Beverly Hills High School, I'm going to take all of the lessons that the school has instilled in me and apply them to bigger and better things on a broader scale.

MICHAEL

High school was a memorable experience that I will cherish for the rest of my life. It all started when I entered Beverly Hills High School as a freshman. Because my brother was a senior at the high school, I did not have to worry about the "freshman Fridays" and the transition from Beverly Vista Middle School.

I started Beverly High the summer before ninth grade. I took a health class, my first ever high school class. The school was very large, just like everyone had told me, so I got to class a little late. For me, it was a great environment because I got to hang out with my friends from the other middle schools. I had an amazing summer before entering ninth grade because I was getting in good shape with football conditioning at the same time as being with all my soon-to-be close friends.

My whole high school experience has been so hectic and crazy that it amuses me to look back at all the experiences. Graduation is coming up, but there are still so many thoughts and ideas running through my head as I embark on a journey to the University of California Santa Barbara.

I will never forget the amazing teachers that I encountered through my high school career. Although she was not very popular, Ms. Malouf had shown me how difficult a school environment can become. On the other hand, teachers like Mr. Moskow, Mr. Batcheller, Ms. Jason Fives, and Mrs. Deaver have taught me so many life lessons that I will carry with me as I begin my journey to success. For example, our final project in Mrs. Deaver's class for our final semester of high school was a community service project. The different ways we helped the community unified our class, teaching us to always give back. I will also never forget the memorable experiences I had in Mr. Bowers' physics classes two years in a row. He was the first teacher that was not only a mentor, but also a great friend. Lastly, there were teachers like Ms. Wilder who was more like your friend than your teacher.

Like most high schools, Beverly Hills High School was a place filled with rumors. The only people by your side at the end of the day are your friends that you make unforgettable memories with. My best friends- Eddie Niknam, Omid Dadbin Hessam Eshani, Mike Kerendian, Michael Akhterzad, Danny Benyamin, Brian Anav, Rony Abishoor, Omid Zakhoo, and Ryan Eliasnik- are more than just friends to me. We have had so many ups and downs together throughout high school such as our trips to Palm Springs, Las Vegas, Coachella Valley, Summit, and last but not least, San Diego. We went through hard times together as one of our beloved friends, Vahagn Setian, died in a tragic car accident. We threw parties, gambled at Morongo, cried, laughed, stayed up all night and fought together. These kinds of memories are the only things I will remember about high school, because they are what my friends and I decided to make of our high school experience. [What I learned most is that] high school is what you make it to be, just remember to live everyday as if it is your last.

-Michael Ghermezi

MATT

As the year winds down and graduation is tomorrow, I've started to reflect on the past four years.

My priorities in eighth grade were immature, and now, I see the maturity and independence that has evolved in my thought process. In high school I became a leader at my school and in my community. I became Student Body President, and developed many leadership skills that shape my personality. I've made many mistakes, and when I would get in any sort of trouble it was always because I was in a leadership position. I made a campaign speech that upset many people. And the way I backed down and recoiled from the administration will always haunt me.

When I was ending my time at El Rodeo, my family was not a priority. My friends and having fun came first. I kicked and screamed every time I had to go to Shabbat and couldn't go out with my friends, and had to stay home on Sundays for family day. I would fight with my mom. I would fight with my dad. I would scream at my sister and bully my brothers.

But having a serious girlfriend in high school has only taught me that I have no idea what love is.

Now I take my brother's to dinner at least once a week, and gossip about the girls in my life the girls in their lives, my friends their friends. They are entering high school next year and they remind me of the kid I was when I was entering high school. I coach their soccer and basketball teams, and they know I am there for them. My sister is at the University of Michigan and she is the person I trust the most with any of my problems. My parents and I are now very open with each other and share a mutual respect and love with each other. I've learned to listen to my parents and to believe what they say, instead of just calling them crazy. One thing that I have really taken in from my parents is to keep everything balanced and stay away from extremes. My family is now a top priority.

When I was younger my friends would be the people that I could hang out with anytime and I never thought twice about who my friends should be.

Now I surround myself with people that want the same things I do, that balance me, so when I'm sad my friends can make me happy and when I'm being irrational my friends can set me straight. My friends are the people who make me, me. As I look around at my friend's faces I ultimately see the same faces as I did at the end of eighth grade. There are some new ones and some that are missing, but the faces and personalities have not changed. We've all just grown up.

-Matt Neman

JOCELYN

A few weeks ago I tore open a wrinkled, faded envelope that arrived in my mailbox. Within lay my "four year letter," a message I had written only a few days before I graduated from 8th grade. Back at El Rodeo, my science teacher asked us to write letters to our future selves that would be mailed upon our high school graduation. While the envelope had sat for years in a dark drawer, I was out experiencing high school and developing into the young woman I am today.

Reading the message from my past self was a wake-up call. Flipping through pages of notebook paper, I immediately recognized that I was a far different person from the girl who penned the letter four years prior. The girl who authored this elementary school vignette had two priorities: grades and sports. Now, I do not mean to imply that these topics are no longer important, but my way of approaching them has since changed immensely. I remain a diligent student, currently preparing to ship off to the Ivy League, but the fears I hold for my future education have a different slant. My 8th grade self mentioned that I was afraid to receive any grade lower than an A in high school. And yet today I recognize that the class in which I learned the most during my tenure was the only class in which I ever received a B. In looking to the future I consider not the marks I will get, but the interests I will develop and the path I will pave. I also still pride myself on my commitment to athletics, but while my 8th grade self considered only Varsity Letters and All-League Awards, I today have a new appreciation for sports. I will train all summer with hopes of continuing my soccer career at the collegiate level. My attachment to the game has become a passion that I cannot imagine forgoing after high school. I have an appreciation for team unity and support that I could never have understood at the age of 14.

Luckily, I have been given an opportunity to write another letter in these final days of high school. This stuffed envelope will also sit in a drawer for four years awaiting my next graduation. But this time around I found that I had little desire to compose a manifesto about academics and athletics. My letter includes seven typed pages solely about my friends: the friends who traveled with me to Europe over spring break, the friends that waited in line with me for "Space Mountain" at Grad Night, the friends that hugged me after my loss in the CIF playoffs, and the friends that will stand beside me on the risers at graduation. While typing in the waning hours of the night, I realized that high school had taught me not only who my true friends are, but had instilled in me an appreciation for the love, guidance, and support that only a best friend can provide. My experiences at Beverly, whether of extreme success or of utter tragedy, have proven that in leaving, my toughest goodbyes will be to those who have simultaneously celebrated and struggled beside me for the past four years.

I am often asked whether I regret not attending a pricey, high-profile, private high school. I have never regretted attending Beverly Hills High School for a moment. My time at Beverly has transformed me into a confident, social, and optimistic leader. My time at Beverly has left me with innumerable friendships, whether they were with teammates or classmates. My time at Beverly has made me proud and excited to seal a fresh envelope and see where I stand when I check my mailbox four years from now.

Beverly Hills Courthouse Site of First Same-Sex Marriage

For the last eight years, Diane Olson and Robin Tyler (see photo, page 2) have trekked to the Beverly Hills courthouse on Valentine's Day to ask the city to marry them. And every time for the last eight years, they were denied their request. But that changed on Monday evening at 5:01 p.m. when they returned to the courthouse to become the first same-sex couple to be legally married in California.

Mayor Barry Brucker presented a certificate of congratulations to the newly-weds on behalf of himself and the city. He then toasted the couple, congratulating them on their marriage and thanked them for "their perseverance and tenacity in leading the ways to the California Supreme Court which will benefit all those same sex marriages that may come henceforward."

Reform Rabbi Denise Eger performed their ceremony, in front of their friends and family. Local Coldwell Banker realtor Michael Libow, who helped organize the event, sang "Someone to Watch Over Me" a cappella at the cake-and-champagne-filled ceremony as "a way to give back to them," Libow said. It was one of the brides' favorite songs.

After the ceremony, the couple thanked the city of Beverly Hills for helping out in providing safety and securing the space so they could have their ceremony.

The Beverly Hills Police Department was on hand to ensure the safety of everyone at the ceremony. The "protesters were pretty tame and it was hard not to be when there were hundreds of people there, cheering on the married couple. It was so joyous," Brucker said.

"It was an important milestone for the city of Beverly Hills because our city is known for our tolerance and unconditional accepting of all people of all faiths, colors, ethnicities, gender preferences. That's something that makes Beverly Hills so strong," Brucker said.

Steven Fenton Named 'Democratic Man of the Year'

Board of Education member Steven Fenton has been named "Democratic Man of the Year" by the Los Angeles County Democratic Central Committee for his contributions to the Democratic Party and the community. Fenton was nominated by the seven committee members in the 42nd Assembly District (Beverly Hills, Brentwood, Bel-Air, Sherman Oaks, Encino, Los Feliz, and West Hollywood).

"Education is a high priority for the Democratic Party. ... Mr. Fenton's service to the education community in Beverly Hills, including his efforts to raise funds for Beverly Hills High School and his service on the Beverly Hills Board of Education, exemplify the type of community service we look for in a Democrat of the Year," said Laurence Zakson, a campaign finance/election law attorney, a former chair of the 42nd Assembly District delegation, and a board member of the Beverly Hills Democrats.

Mr. Fenton was also recognized for his work to "to jump-start grassroots political action in Beverly Hills" for the Democratic Party. Zakson also pointed to Fenton's involvement with the board of the Beverly Hills Democrats, a sponsored committee of the West Hollywood

Seiff Graduates from Naval Academy

South Camden Drive residents Dr. Stephen and Gloria Seiff recently traveled to Annapolis, Md., to celebrate the commissioning ceremonies of their grandson, Midshipman Kevin Seiff, who was a member of the class of 2008 at the United States Naval Academy.

Kevin elected to receive his commission as a second lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps. He also received a Bachelor of Science degree in ocean engineering.

Lieutenant Kevin Seiff's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Stuart Seiff of Hillsborough, Calif.

E-waste Not, Want Not

Students in Sarah Utley's AP Environmental Science (APES) class at Beverly High School teamed up with ASL Recycling to host a successful electronic-waste collection event at the back of the school last week.

"Electronics have lead in them, so basically we're recycling so it doesn't get into our landfills," said APES student Jade Rosenberg, who helped to run the event with fellow student Doreen Tivon.

Over 60 people showed up to drop off their old electronics for recycling, free of charge.

"We took in 2,200 pounds of e-waste," said Matt Strud of ASL Recycling, the third largest recycling company in the country. They collected 27 CRT monitors [televisions], five lap-tops, 11 CPU towers [computer towers], 111 cellphones and 1,000 pounds of breakage, which are things like printers, fax machines and copiers.

Since passing the Recycling Act of 2003, California has implemented the most aggressive recycling regulations and recovery plan nationwide, Strud explained. Now in California, when a consumer buys, for instance, a television, that consumer pays a $14 to $16 recovery fee at the time of purchase. When that television is recycled that fee is paid to the recycler, providing an incentive to recycle. Strud likened the process to the way bottles and cans are recycled.

ASL Recycling breaks down the e-waste into its respective components and properly recycles or disposes of the waste, preventing the mercury and lead in the electronics from infiltrating the city's water system.

BHEF Installs New Board of Directors

The Beverly Hills Education Foundation installed Jean Rosenblatt as its new president for the 2008-2009 school at a recent installation ceremony for the foundation's new Board of Directors.

"I am humbled and honored to work with such a fabulous organization and with such amazing individuals who want a better education not only for their own children in our schools but for all children who deserve excellence in public education," Rosenblatt said.

Before this installation, Rosenblatt was serving as chairperson for the foundation and has previously served as president. She replaces current two-year president Devorah Hankin, whose term expires on June 30 at which point she will become the foundation's CEO. Don Creamer will take up Rosenblatt's previous position as chairperson.

Denton Fisch, Jana Garrotto, Jacob Manaster and Sandra Walder will become members of the Executive Board. Joining the Directors of the Board are Tami Adams, Nathalie Kunin, Azy Farahmand, Barbara Gillham.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by ANNE HEATH WIDMARK in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that ANNE HEATH WIDMARK be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

Don't sell your life insurance policy until you know the rules!

Alan L. Kaye, CLU, ChFC
President

Most people over the age of 70, who want to sell their old insurance policies for more than their cash surrender value, are not getting the most money from their assets.

AVOID RISKS OF INSURANCE FINANCING STRATEGIES

Others, who expect to create “something from nothing”, participate in insurance financing plans without having full knowledge of the chances they are taking. You can avoid these risks by becoming informed of established procedures and you won't make costly mistakes.

The Alan Kaye Insurance Agency is a leader in the field of insurance and estate planning. Now, as a wholly owned subsidiary of National Financial Partners, an NYSE company, they have expanded their resources to better provide the latest planning strategies. This is a particularly important resource when performing due-diligence on life insurance settlement companies.

THREE ESSENTIAL RULES THAT CAN PREVENT YOU FROM MAKING COSTLY DECISIONS

- Provide full and accurate descriptions of all offers relating to the sale of your policy.
- Acquire at least five offers from unrelated insurance purchasing companies.
- Complete background checks on potential purchasers to make sure they are financially and commercially acceptable firms to do business with.

ARE YOU COMPLETING A LIFE INSURANCE SETTLEMENT OR JUST SETTLING?

What kind of insurance professional is helping you sell your old life insurance policy? Are you dealing with a life settlement expert? Are you represented by a licensed professional with E&O Insurance that covers life settlements? Has your agent explained the risks involved in financing your life insurance?

Call us today to find out what your insurance is really worth and we will help you decide whether to sell, surrender, keep or replace your old insurance policy.
