Cheryl Plotkin

Plotkin leaving the BHUSD

Assistant superintendent Cheryl Plotkin will be leaving the BHUSD at the end of the month, superintendent Jerry Gross said.

Gross said Plotkin took a position in the Montebello Unified School District, a bigger district that is closer to her family.

The recruitment process to fill her position is being started right away, Gross said.

"We may have to bring in somebody temporarily," Gross said. "We can't operate without somebody in that job, so we'll figure something out."

Richard Groper

Groper withdraws from Board of Education election

While no new names have been added to the Board of Education's ballot for its Nov. 3 election, Richard Groper, removed his name from it Wednesday.

"I have pressing family issues that need to be addressed and I could not give enough time to the race in order to be successful," Groper said.

Groper ran for State Assembly in the 47th Assembly district in 2004.

According to <http://www.smartvoter.com>, Groper, lost to Karen Bass, who later became Speaker of the Assembly. He placed fourth with 9.9 percent of votes in the election.

The Web site listed his top priorities for the position as: education, budget reform and health care.

Groper has taught a variety of political science courses for Cal State Northridge, Cal State Fullerton and Cal State Los Angeles since 1997, including a course on campaigns and elections.

Two show up for town hall meeting about new city manager

Former public works commissioner Gloria Seiff and former planning commissioner Rose Norton, were the only two residents to attend and speak at Monday's town hall meeting.

The meeting was held to receive input on what qualities the residents of Beverly Hills want to see in the next city manager.

Norton, who referred to Seiff and herself as the "Thelma and Louise of Town Hall" said the meeting that was scheduled to run for two hours, lasted about one.

"It was wonderful because we got a chance to vent all these things," Norton said.

Some of the qualities she said were important in a city manager are: skills, humility and accessibility.

She said listening to the residents was something that needed to be improved upon and residents not being heard was most likely the reason behind the poor turnout for the meeting.

"We want somebody to listen to the residents, it seems that the business community is always heard, but the residents are not," Norton said. "That is one of the things that [former city manager] Mark Scott did, he listened to us."

Seiff said one reason for the small turnout might have been because people were allowed to share their input online, through a form on the city's Web site.

Cheryl Burnett, a spokesperson from the city, said by the end of last week, only six forms had been completed.

Norton said something she would like the new city manager to work on is communication between the city and residents.

One suggestion she had to resolve this was implementing something similar to the Mass Notification System, but instead of sending out emergency emails, it would send out emails notifying the public of important dates and meetings in the city.

City Manager Rod Wood's last day official day of his term is Saturday; however he will fill in three days a week until a new city manager is found.

Four ‘Rollin’ 30s Harlem Crips’ gang members arrested in Beverly Hills

Darius Gant, 22, Dean Thompson, 19, Derrick Gant, 20, and a 17 year old male juvenile, all members of the gang ‘Rollin’ 30s Harlem Crips,’ were arrested and charged at 3 p.m. Tuesday for suspicion of residential burglary.

Members of the Beverly Hills Special Tactics Unit, who were dressed in plain-clothes, saw two males walk around the side of a yard, enter a waiting vehicle and flee from the 300 block of South Maple Drive.

After being pulled over a search of their vehicle produced several sets of gloves, screwdrivers, other burglary tools, jewelry and handbags.

‘Officers would consider these types of observation arrests as one of the most satisfying and rewarding experiences in police work,’ Lieutenant Tony Lee said. ‘There’s no doubt this terrific arrest prevented others from being victimized.’

Amy Golden

Golden returns to Southern California

Former Beverly Hills assistant principal Amy Golden, has moved back to Southern California, after spending a year in Dublin, Calif.

Golden starts this month as an assistant principal at Redondo Union High School. ‘I decided that this is the area where I want to be,’ Golden said. ‘I really created a family when I was at Beverly, it was the environment in L.A. that I really missed and the people that I knew so I decided that this is where I wanted to be.’

Golden left BHHS in July 2008, she said, for a director position at The Quarry Lane School, a K-12 prep school.

Golden said there were countless people she kept in touch with from the high school, such as Hawthorne School’s newly appointed principal Toni Staser.

‘They really embraced me when I came there, within a couple of months I felt like I had been there forever,’ Golden said. ‘So I’m just glad to be back around all of them.’

Golden took assistant principal Dana Berk’s position in 2005.

‘Beverly was definitely a home for me and I appreciated the experience in being there and all the amazing people I met,’ Golden said.

Attendance and child welfare position merged

Superintendent Jerry Gross said Toni Staser’s former district position as coordinator of attendance and child welfare will be terminated.

‘We’re disseminating and breaking up the duties to various staff members,’ Gross said. ‘[We’re] having a meeting with the entire staff in the next four or five days and we’re going to make some allocations.’

Employees who worked under Staser, such as child welfare and attendance spe-

Delshad discusses Iranian rights with the United Nations

Vice Mayor Jimmy Delshad (right) met with the United Nations Under Secretary General Lynn Poscoe (left of Delshad) to discuss Beverly Hills’ and the United States’ support of Iranian civil liberties. Also pictured is (L-R) former member of the Iranian Parliament Fatemeh Haghghatjoo, and U.S. Assistant Secretary of State for Educational and Cultural Affairs, Goli Ameri.

Delshad traveled to New York for two days at his own expense to meet with Poscoe. ‘There was tremendous interest, they wanted to see us again, we are still in communication and we will take it to much higher levels,’ Delshad said.

Delshad brought with him the resolution showing Beverly Hills’ support of Iranian civil liberties, as well as similar resolutions passed in Los Angeles, Denver and Utah.

‘I took the resolution that Beverly Hills has made, which I read to him and showed him and he was very impressed,’ Delshad said.

Historic Goofs

And a feel good event

By Rudy Cole

The biggest blunders in our city's history?

I have them on my list, but first a word of explanation: A reader recently faulted me for "always coming to the defense of the city." While I don't think this or past councils would entirely agree with that assessment, I reviewed some civic actions that were not, how shall I say this, our finest decision making moments.

However, on balance, it is city and school governance that have given us police, fire and paramedic services that are among the finest in the world; we have strong ordinances and code enforcement that have kept our business areas free of blight; and our schools are still the envy of districts throughout the nation, to mention just a few civic blessings.

In no particular order, my own personal inventory of goofs, and please hold your angry emails or omissions until the last graph.

PAVILIONS MARKET

Although they have a really excellent team, including managers, who do make shopping there a positive experience, the store is simply too small, and that's not their fault. Short sighted neighborhood opposition limited the size of the market, and the city failed to insist on reasonable subterranean parking accepting an ugly surface structure instead. By some wizardry of planning, the city also agreed to block off an alley from the market to El Camino. Now, patrons exit on Olympic, slowing traffic there, and then turn north on El Camino anyway.

First a Von's, the only rationale for downsizing was that we did have other, full service food markets at the time, although the land they occupied was too valuable to assure that low density use. The Beverly Hills Market, our best answer to a neighborhood store, and Whole Foods are the only within the city competitors. Is there hope for a future modern market on this site? There have been discussions with the new property owners and the parent company of the market.

CVS PHARMACY at DOHENY AND WILSHIRE

Constructed as an Owl Rexall satellite (and later converted to a Sav-on), the city was the sleeping owl when the building housing the drug store was created. A perfectly clumsy street entry, horrendous operating hours, including late opening times, it should have become a viable alternative to Thrifty (Rite Aid), see below.

Although in many ways the inventory and service surpasses some competitors, the lack of functionality and the inhibitions on opening and closing times has hindered it from being as competitive as it should have been.

RITE AID (nee Thrifty)

What can I say I haven't said before? Not much, but it is the most convenient drug store we have, it has extended operating hours and enough basics to supply us with necessities from office supplies to photographic services to a new ice cream counter to an always rushed and harassed pharmacy. (Try Schwab's on Bedford for your professional pharmaceutical needs.)

Problems? Where to begin? The frontage, a blank, block wall inhibits the look and feel of Canon Drive. "Team" members seldom have a clue on where items are located. (In a recent experience, a phone person told me they "had" the item and it could be found on aisle ten. Wrong. Store people first advised me to look on sixty one and then 26 where they found a similar, but not the same brand, bandage wrap the wife wanted.)

Latest bug the patron move? They no longer validate parking tickets; instead you have to show a receipt, causing even longer delays when an attendant is at the gate. However, a checker named Ruth actually thanked me for shopping and was friendly to her fast moving line. This was shocking enough to report.

CIVIC CENTER

YES, we have a magnificent new library and police facility and an improved fire station, and many of the offices were modernized and made more functional, but the approximate and realities of costs were off the charts. From estimates of 60 million, the project came in at over 110 million and then the work never seems to end.

Missing, despite all of this: A civic auditorium and a cafeteria for city workers, functional acoustics in the council chamber and a modern parking structure.

GREYSTONE

A marvelous park and mansion we narrowly kept from being demolished and subdivided (actually, twice) and now serving many community needs and functions, but what might have or should have been is worth remembering and, just maybe, someday rectifying.

The city simply blew it. Greystone could have become an outstanding art museum housing one of the world's most impressive collections of modern art.

The Weissman family was prepared to place their enormous and prestigious collection at Greystone and also fund restoration of the mansion, provide an endowment for continued acquisitions and a world class curator. Greedy efforts by a would-be owner convinced one councilmember, then mayor, to oppose the museum, creating sufficient controversy to discourage Weissman. Mayor Charlotte Spadaro was not alone in blocking the museum, even some neighbors were opposed.

HIGH SCHOOL PARKING AND TRAFFIC

Not really the fault of any current member of this Board of Education, many of whom have expressed their own frustrations, but why was any new construction at the school even considered without increased parking? The wonderful science and technology structure might have filled the crisis level demand for parking, but the major real goof was in not moving to acquire the adjoining property for school and parking needs.

NOT ADOPTING AN EARLY RESIDENTIAL ESTHETIC CODE

The "mansionization" of Beverly Hills has made changes in the look and feel of many different sections of our residential areas and this has led to some very unfair cultural diversity problems. To point at larger Iranian families as the cause for this is both too simplistic and unfair. Previous city councils simply waited too long before even considering design controls.

In fact, the most visible design controversy, on North Linden, pitting long time resident Robert Schwab against an oversized home plan next door, had absolutely nothing to do with Persian families: builders, architects or investors. Reality check: It is the larger Iranian families that actually saved our schools and vastly increased residential property values. At a time when the parent population was decreasing, mainly because our aging home owner population no longer had school age children. And most of these had two or less students per household, Iranians with larger families came to our city. Since funding for schools now comes largely from the state and is dependent on "average daily attendance" without this offsetting student enrollment our independent schools could not have maintained anywhere near education standards we wanted. Also, willing to invest in real estate at almost any cost, plunged homeowner values to heights that are mostly still maintained, even in this economy. Thank your Persian neighbors, but blame city government for not quickly limiting home sizes and designs.

ACADEMY OF MOTION PICTURES SCIENCES

Yes, we should be delighted the people who brought us the Oscar decided to make Beverly Hills their home, but would it have really hurt one of the most heavily financialist James Hansen, who deals primarily with permits, will be put under a different line of supervision, Gross said.

About the termination of the position, Gross said "we're making $115,000 in cuts and we're trying to do our fair share."

Alex Cherniss, director of human resources, said Staser made the transition into principal of Hawthorne School slowly. Monday was her first full day as principal.

Trial date set in Levian case

Sam Moghimi, the driver of the car that took the life of Daniel Levian in July 2008, pled not guilty in his final arraignment Monday, resulting in the setting of his trial date for Sept. 18, Levian's cousin Jonathan Ebrahimian said.

"I would assume they wouldn't want to go to trial, I mean everything's against him, but I think he's just trying to drag it on," Ebrahimian, who is an attorney, said.

He said this was at least the tenth time they have been to court over the matter.

"They just set another date and another date, nothing's really happened, they just drag it on and it makes it hard on everyone who goes there and gets frustrated," Ebrahimian said.

Mothers Against Drunk Driving, as well as friends and family members who dressed in black shirts with a picture of Levian on the front, were at the final arraignment.

He said Moghimi's attorney and the district attorney can settle before the trial date, which usually results in a less harsh sentence.

"People think you can drink and drive and nothing will happen to you," Ebrahimian said. "It's really stressful for all [of the family]."

Moghimi's lawyer could not be reached by time of press.

Board of Education filing period closed, four candidates running

After a five day extension period, because incumbent Myra Demeter did not file to run for re-election, the filing period for the Nov. 3 Board of Education election closed Wednesday.

The four candidates running for the two open seats are: Craig Davis, Lisa Fisch Korbatov, Jake Manaster and incumbent Nooshin Meshkaty.

City cuts free after school program, keeps fee based programs

Recent budget cuts in the city have eliminated the previously offered free after school playground program, which has been offered by the city for more than 30 years.

However, the fee-based after school program Adventure Camp, which is offered at all four elementary schools in the BHUSD will remain. The program consists of typical after school program activities such as homework studies, art and crafts, and a snack.

Adventure Camp fees for residents are $240 per month for a child to attend three days a week and $390 per month for a child to attend five days a week.

Beverly Hills recreation supervisor, Greg Matsuura, said the camp program is more popular than the playground program.

"The majority of kids [at the play-

Beverly High Adult School students (L-R) Reynold Saunders, Kerri O'Brien, Helen Hixon and Mary Ellen Kaye stand with their final pieces from their summer wood working class.

The class will be offered in the fall too, BHAS woodworking teacher, Eric Douglas, said.

"It is pretty successful," Douglas said. "We get a lot of beginners in here, who come in, have a project in mind and we go from there, designing and building it."

ground program] would just be there from like 2:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. who were waiting for their older siblings to get out of class," Matsuura said.

He said he was unsure if the cancellation of the playground program would contribute to a rise in enrollment for Adventure Camp.

According to Cheryl Burnett, a spokesperson for the city, whether or not the free after school playground program returns depends on the future of the city's budget and the City Council; because multiple cuts have been made, it will be the Council's choice of which ones return.

UPDATE FROM CULVER CITY

The Weekly's exclusive interview with former city manager Mark Scott

By Amanda Renner

Former city manager (1990-2003) Mark Scott recently started work as the Culver City city manager.

Tell us about coming back to the west coast.

I came to work here about June 1. I came back when I got the job offer. But I had decided to come back to California to be closer to my parents who are up in Fresno. It was a point in their lives and my life that I needed to be closer than South Carolina. It is at a point where I think I need to pay a little more attention to their needs.

How did you get the job?

What happens with most city managers these days is that cities hire recruiters, just like Beverly Hills is now doing. So cities hire recruiters, and in this particular case the recruiter knew me. The city management field is a relatively tight field in that there aren't many people who have managed cities of this nature. The recruiter called me and said if you're thinking at all about coming back to California this is a great place to be, and eventually I ended up here.

How has your experience been since getting back?

I am happy to be back in the west L.A. area, where I've spent most of my adult life. I am thrilled to have a chance to work with Culver City, which has a really good economic development program that is improving every day. The reputation of the city is getting better and better, it's a nice city and I'm happy to be a part of it.

Was it hard to leave Spartanburg?

It was very hard to leave Spartanburg because I fell in love with the mission of that city and the people as well. It was a very warm, welcoming environment with very hopeful people. Spartanburg was an old mill town that came upon hard times and it's been a struggle to bring things back. In recent years it started coming back and during the five years that I was there it was very exciting in terms of the projects we were able to do and the good positive attitudes that we created in the community. It was hard to leave Spartanburg.

Since you've returned have you run into anyone you used to work with?

I've seen lots of people and I look forward to seeing a lot more. I look forward to seeing all of my former mayors. I was just blessed in Beverly Hills to work with such high quality elected officials and there are a good number that are still in Beverly Hills and I want to see each and every one of them.

I've seen a number of the staff I worked with, both those that are still there and those that aren't there, but still in the area.

I was delighted to have a visit the other day from former city clerk Jean Ushijima, which was delightful. She was a long time city clerk in Beverly Hills and just a delightful woman.

In Issue #276 you told the Weekly that your wife, Carol, had gotten a job as president and CEO of the Greenville Children's Museum. What is she doing with the position now that you are back on the west coast?

They opened their doors to the public on her sixtieth birthday last week. She is now working 18 hours a day as they gear up their operation, so she'll be there for a while yet. But it is a phenomenal children's museum, probably one of the best in the country. She is very proud and I am cially endowed institutions in the world to actually comply with city codes and provide adequate parking? Through some then friendly councilmembers, they fought for and received exceptions on rules for parking that have negatively impacted their whole neighborhood on both sides of Wilshire near Doheny.

Equally distressing is another Academy contradiction of a good and bad use. The research facility on La Cienega that did save the old Water Building and now leased by the Academy is an outstanding film study resource. No question about its importance, but despite many appeals, the museum has never worked out a meaningful relationship with our schools, makes almost no effort at community outreach and feels no obligation to give back to the community.

More important, this property and land was taken from park use in a city woefully lacking in open or park space. It will be many years before their lease expires, however maybe we can plant a time capsule to urge some future city council to reconsider the Academy's occupancy or, just maybe, the facility can become a cultural resource for the whole community and not just film historians and non-resident students of film.

QUICK, SHORT MISSES

A middle school for the district with a modern structure, the Santa Monica Freeway route closer to Pico Boulevard instead of south of Hamilton High School, an overpass at Wilshire and Santa Monica (a Fred Hayman dream), the loss of our own public access television station (BHTV), failure to acquire more property for city parking facilities in the south including Beverly and Robertson Boulevards and, next week, world peace.

Also, the loss of major entertainment groups and such highly visible companies as Hilton Corporation have not gone unnoticed or without considerable efforts at keeping them here by city staff. Equally important, city staff is aggressively seeking viable replacements for our lost revenue producers. Many people involved, including the very able Alison Maxwell, director of economic development and marketing.

Now, reach for that computer and email me your own lists. Incidentally, one more delay on tipping habits column; I am also canvassing the people who survive on tips and how the economy downturn has affected them. But still time to send in your own thoughts on how, when and who to tip.

Again, the Beverly Hills Showcase at Roxbury was a sold out event. Following the highly successful one person Debbie Reynolds program last year, a combination of two legendary comics: Jack Carter and Norm Crosby with song stylist Tiba packed the aging Roxbury Auditorium last Sunday.

Carter, appearing despite his being run over at a Los Angeles parking facility recently, and that's about all we know, did a sit down instead of stand up comedy act. This venerable entertainer, one of the pioneers of the genre, still manages to keep an audience in stitches; probably a bad choice of analogies considering his accident caused condition.

Crosby, described as the master of the malapropism preceded Carter with a new, witty routine and Tiba, a very sultry song stylist opened the show.

Dick Van Dyke served as m.c., Steve Zoet, asst director of community services introduced the guests and Mayor Nancy Krasne gave welcoming remarks.

The show benefited the Beverly Hills Active Adult Club, but the real worker bees for the production were Police Chief David Snowden and wife Ellyn Snowden who somehow qualified to be second vice president of the Active Adults (read Senior) Club.

Notes on some guests:

Wife Judy Henning fortunately gave us some advance warning, but we were still unprepared for the new look of husband Richard Rosenzweig. The beard and all facial adornments are sheared, gone. It hurt just to look and consider the pain our popular community icon went through during the shaving ordeal. Of course, we joined in telling him how much younger he looks sans beard, but the only real thoughts I had was after shave lotion.

Vice Mayor Jimmy Delshad and former mayors Dr. Charles Aronberg (with Dr.

Sandra) and Les Bronte were in the audience as was the highly popular Rutta Lee. Spent a few minutes with Linda and March Schwartz and the Curtis', Sandra Olivencia Curtis is a key city staffer, he a recently retired assistant chief now on temporary assignment in Bell Gardens. And David Goldman and school board Vice President Myra Lurie. Good attendance by the seniors and congrats to their association officers including President Mildred Heller.

Speaking of councilmembers, Barry Brucker received the highest award county Democrats can bestow when he was named Assembly District Democrat of the Year for community service last week at the annual awards dinner sponsored by the Los Angeles County Democratic Central Committee and held at the Airport Raddison Hotel.

Attendees included Barry's parents and other family members plus Amy and Noah Furie, the planning commissioner and likely council candidate.

Rudy Cole served for eight years as a member and chair of the city's Recreation & Parks Commission. He was also President of the Greystone Foundation and served on three other city committees. Rudy can be reached at: Rudy@bhweekly.com.

very proud of her for her accomplishments. In fact, the City of Greenville gave her the key to the city the day it opened.

Is she going to stay in Spartanburg?

She is going to stay there for a while until they're up and running. I think it will be the end of this calendar year before she moves out here, but I'm visiting her a lot.

Compare and contrast Culver City and Beverly Hills.

There is a lot of commonality with a lot of the westside cities, but each community has its own unique character. I think Culver City is extraordinarily family-oriented and neighborhood based. The neighborhoods are based around the parks here. We do not have a wide range of income. The community tends to be fairly similar in terms of income, but we're very diverse in terms of race and ethnicity. This community is very diverse; it looks like the face of Los Angeles. In that sense I suppose it has its own character.

In general, all of the west L.A. cities are similar in terms of the issues that people care about. We all have the same traffic jams, we all have the same concerns for the environment. We are all interested in developmental growth, but only the right kind of developmental growth, not just anything that comes along.

But I think each individual city has its own local traditions and commonality. I think the average resident in Culver City has been here significantly longer than the average resident of Beverly Hills. Of course, in both cities you find people who have spent their whole lives here.

Beverly Hills is not neighborhood based in the same way that Culver City is. It is not based around parks, for instance. In Culver City when you ask people what part of the city they're from people will tend to mention the park that is in their neighborhood. It is very nice, Spartanburg was like that.

How does Culver City compare to Spartanburg in size?

Spartanburg is bigger than Culver City and Beverly Hills combined, but it has about the same population. Spartanburg is much more spread out and very rural and forested. It is very pretty; you've probably never seen that many trees.

Culver City has its own bus line, tell us about that.

It is a very substantial bus line. It is probably one of the best small city, municipal bus services in the country it is really well done. The number of routes, the frequency of the service and the time it takes to run a whole route is so positive here. Frequencies are every six to eight minutes. So if you miss a bus you only have to wait about eight minutes to catch the next one. The routes tend to be about 45 minutes long and that is pretty short in the scheme of things. And we go well beyond the city limits to get people where they want to go [such as] UCLA and the airport.

It's a very strong bus system. Millions of riders a year; I think there were six million riders last year.

You said one reason you moved back was to be closer to family. Did anything else factor into your decision to move back?

I think where Culver City is at in its development is very exciting. The downtown is starting to boom. The art galleries that have come here, the two studios, Sony and Culver Studios, are both real attractors to people who shop and live in our community.

We've also got a light rail station coming to our community in a few years and that was the exciting prospect of being able to be part of the development of the area around the light rail station. There is a lot going on.

What accomplishment were you most proud of in your time in Spartanburg?

I probably said this in the article a few years ago, but I never measure my career in the physical accomplishments, such as the buildings that get built, I never measure it that way. I always try to measure it in terms of the positive feelings in the community over those accomplishments. The buildings are great, but they're built to serve people. So I always try to measure my team's accomplishments by the positive impact we add to the people we're serving

The thing I was most excited about in Spartanburg is that we helped make people believe that their city cared about them. We did that through things like putting grocery stores into neighborhoods that hadn't had a grocery store in 20 years. Or taking over the parks and recreation program that the city had not had in a long time and helping people see that we could actually positively-influence the lives of young people by the programs that we did in those facilities.

I think we touched people's lives and those are the things I get most excited about. It's not the buildings that matter; it's what you do with the buildings that matter. That is why you will never find my name on any building in Beverly Hills.

Not one? We'll have to have a contest to see who can find your name attached to a project in the city.

There is one plaque where somebody snuck my name on it. It would be a real scavenger hunt to find out which one it was. [Laughs] Unless someone has taken it down.

Well now you have to tell us.

The day of the dedication the [recreation and parks] department head, Rick Putnam, came up behind me and put his hands over my eyes as they unveiled the plaque and he said "don't hate me." I said "for what?" And he said "I didn't feel like I could put my name on it, unless I put your name on it, so your name is on the plaque too."

It was the La Cienega Tennis Center. After that I was more hands-on with the plaques so they couldn't sneak me on them.

City Manager Rod Wood is retiring from Beverly Hills. What traits do you think a Beverly Hills city manager should have?

I think they should look for somebody who is as smart as Rod Wood because he is the smartest guy I've ever known and one of the smartest guys I've ever worked with in the city management profession.

But, I think somebody who has had some experience as a city manager. It's a town where it's tough to learn your trade because Beverly Hills is a pretty sophisticated environment, so I think somebody who has been a manager or a deputy city manager would probably be necessary. I don't want to suggest only a manager could do it, but a well experience person. I think [the new city manager needs to have] a real love of people because Beverly Hills is a community full of very different people and people who care a great deal about their community or their investment if they're business people. You can have a lot of fun there if that is part of who you are, you can have a lot of fun as city manager.

Did you keep in touch with anyone while you were in Spartanburg?

I am trying to think of a former city council member I have not kept in touch with and I can't think of any. I think I've kept in touch with every one of them [who served while I was city manager] in the past five years. I talk to Joe Tilem. A few local residents I've kept in touch with are Peggy Kaus, and Joan and Michael Marcy.

Those are the people that immediately come to mind, I don't want to name names, leave someone out and hurt their feelings though.

I think all of them I have been in touch with, just saying "hello, how are the kids?" those kinds of things.

I've been very much staying out of anything political but just on a social level saying hello and seeing how people are doing.

What did you miss most about the west coast when you were on the east coast?

I missed the public dialogue in civic meetings. South Carolina is a very polite place and you don't get the civic debate that you do in California. It was funny at first I thought that was good because I didn't have to sit through so many long meetings, but after a while I realized how much I missed it. There is a real intellectual debate that not only does happen in Beverly Hills and Culver City, but it's an important thing that happens and I miss that.

In return, I miss the civility of Spartanburg. People in Spartanburg were very polite. No one honks their horn in Spartanburg unless there was a cat in the road or something. Even if the light turns green and the car in front of you doesn't go, no one honks.

I didn't get honked at but one time in five years and I can't get out of LAX without having somebody honk at me. So there was something I missed on both ends.

In Issue #276 you said you couldn't see yourself returning to the Los Angeles or San Francisco areas. What made you change your mind?

You know what I learned in South Carolina? It's not a new concept for people, but it was something I hadn't focused on. One of the things I really admired in South Carolina was people's connection to the soil, so to speak. Go back to "Gone with the Wind" and the whole thing about home and where you're from. When I got to South Carolina, there was such a sense of home for people. There was such a connection there.

I couldn't ever really be a part of that, though they never made me feel bad about it, but I couldn't ever feel part of it. I used to think in Los Angeles you don't have that same feeling because everybody is from somewhere else, well over time I came to realize that is the feeling of home in Los Angeles. The feeling of home in Los Angeles is this embracing of all people and all cultures and that is something that is really extraordinary about this area. I came to realize that I missed that part of what was home to me. I really all of the sudden had this yearning to get back to that, so that made it possible for me to consider coming back to Los Angeles.

I could have moved closer to my family without being in L.A., but I really like that about this area and you find it big time in Culver City.

You have two children. How did the move affect them?

Yes, two grown up kids, Matthew and Melinda. My daughter is still in Virginia. She has been there since 1999, she went to college there and now she works for a retirement community as their theatre manager. It's a live theatre created just for the seniors there and she manages all the programming that goes on there.

My son is in Glendale. He is working for an exhibit design and fabrication company.

Five years ago you were moving to Spartanburg. This year you're moving to Culver City. Where do you see yourself in another five years?

I can honestly say, I really don't know. But in five more years, I think you'll still see me in Culver City. In 10 years though, I really don't know.

I'll be 60 in November. So I think 10 years from now I will probably be getting tired. But I'm not tired yet.

Your life insurance policy may be worth much more than you think!

Alan L. Kaye, CLU, ChFC
President

If you are over age 70, we can show you how your life insurance policy might pay off now, while you are alive and still here to enjoy it! What's more, you may be able to sell your policy for considerably more than its cash surrender value.

One of our clients, a 75-year-old man who owned a $500,000 term insurance policy that was about to lapse, was able to cash it in for more than $100,000.

An 80-year old woman had a $5 million policy with with a cash surrender value of $600,000. We sold her policy for $1.3 million. Using the proceeds, we bought her new coverage without any further premium payments, saving her $120,000 a year.

People have come to us believing that their old policies were worthless. Others thought their existing insurance was so old that it could not be improved. We helped them sell their policies and purchase new coverage at much lower premiums. In most cases, we were able to increase the legacy they left for their heirs and favorite charities.

We may be able to do the same for you. Why settle for the cash surrender value or allow your policy to lapse, when it may be worth so much more? Let us help you decide whether to sell, surrender, keep or replace your old insurance policy.
