"New and Old Restaurants" [Issue 528]

Cheers to Rudy Cole for mentioning employee parking at satellite locations. I had mentioned this years ago to a thencouncil person whose eyes glazed over at the thought. Now that we have that big new parking structure on Alden Drive we should get business owners (including the department stores who every year need exemptions from providing employee parking during the holidays) to invest in a shuttle system. In the evenings office buildings sit with empty parking as well. It's a win/win: employees won't be parking up the adjacent neighborhoods bothering residents and they won't have to be darting out every two hours to move their car 6 feet so they don't

"Letters and E-mail" [Issue 527]

Since my return from a business trip, I heard that Harvey Englander, Beverly Hills' most successful developer lobbyist, claimed in a recent statement to this paper that I was paid to oppose Measure H, the Hilton expansion. Mr. Englander's statement is 100 percent false, just like many of the claims that Mr. Englander's staff made in the Measure H campaign for the Beverly Hilton expansion.

Unlike Mr. Englander, who was paid handsomely in recent years by the Montage Hotel developers, the Hilton Hotel owner, and by a Beverly Hills medical office landlord to oppose Measure P, I earned absolutely no money for opposing the Hilton Hotel massive expansion.

Instead, as a public service, I donated most of my billable time in 2008 to try to expose the falsehoods about the Hilton expansion. I also was the third largest cash contributor to the "No on Measure H" campaign. The Hilton Hotel spent almost $5,000,000 to defeat us. Despite our limited budget of approximately $80,000, the "No on H" opposition received the majority of the vote on election day. However, we were ultimately defeated by only 129 votes, only 8/10 of 1 percent of all votes cast. Most of these ballots were late absentee and provisional ballots, some of which were cast by fraudulent voters who did not live in Beverly Hills.

After the election, our workers began knocking on doors in Beverly Hills to try to find many of the suspected fraudulent voters. Ultimately, we turned over 560 names of fraudulent voter suspects to the district attorney for criminal investigation. However, we were warned directly by Steve Cooley, the district attorney, that his office had very limited funds and budget problems. Thus, to this day, we do not know what, if anything, the district attorney's office did with our investigation results.

In closing, if and when I should ever decide to become a "paid" Beverly Hills lobbyist, I too will wear a lobbyist badge, the same as Mr. Englander and his well-paid lobbyist friends. These registered lobbyists are now lobbying behind closed doors in an attempt to kill a Beverly Hills proposed ordinance. This ordinance would require that all paid lobbyists wear lobbyist badges at Beverly Hills City Hall. Badges will help establish more transparency and limit paid lobbyists masquerading as residents.

Meshakty Pressured Administrator to Change Grade; Investigation Under Way, Union Says

A Board of Education member allegedly pressured a Beverly High administrator to change her son's grade without the teacher's knowledge or consent, according to a Beverly Hills Education Association consensus newsletter released Wednesday.

Although the newsletter does not name the Board member or the student, Weekly sources have confirmed current Board of Education President Nooshin Meshkaty pressured a high school administrator to change her son's 'D' grade in a chemistry course to an 'incomplete.' Meshkaty's son is a Beverly High senior.

According to state law, teachers have the ultimate authority over a student's grade. The school district and the superintendent cannot change a student's grade unless the teacher is given an opportunity to give an oral or written statement outlining the reasons the grade was issued.

BHEA President Chris Bushée said BHEA is currently conducting an investigation about this incident, and will determine whether the board member abused authority to pressure a probationary teacher for a different grade.

"We take these matters seriously," Bushée said. "A teacher's right to issue a grade is protected by state law."

Meshkaty allegedly told the recentlyhired teacher more than once that an 'A' or 'B' was the only acceptable grade for the student.

According to the consensus (bhea.org/news.htm), the student turned in homework assignments during the 2008-09 school year with different handwriting styles. The teacher brought the incident to the attention of high school administrators, who concluded that the different handwriting was caused by the variation of the student's fast and slow writing paces. The administration did not discipline the student.

The student also brought a copy of the teacher's edition of the textbook to class. On a different occasion, the teacher notified the administration of yet another cheating incident involving the student. Administrators ultimately concluded that there was insufficient evidence to warrant discipline.

In the same school year, Meshkaty told the teacher she would protest the teacher's handling of her son's cheating incident to administrators, who further advocated on behalf of Meshkaty by asking the teacher in June 2009 to accept several missing assignments.

The teacher issued the final 'D' grade in that same month, and was recently alerted of the grade change after asking the student why he still had an 'incomplete' from the prior school year.

Last Friday, the high school administration told the teacher that someone had accessed the computer system to change the grade. The administration informed the teacher later that day that the grade would be changed back to a 'D.'

District administrators informed BHEA Tuesday that they are hiring an independent, outside investigator to look into the circumstances surrounding the grade change. The investigation will last no more than two weeks.

"If the accusations are true, it calls into question the integrity of our grading system at our high school," said Board of Education member Brian Goldberg. "This is the antithesis of what public service is supposed to be about. Public service should never be about personal gain or personal profit. If the board member is guilty, they have violated the public trust."

Goldberg said "there's very little that can be done" in terms of punitive measures against a board member found guilty of violating the education and government code "other than a recall, which is not available under this circumstance." Both codes are "silent" on such measures.

However, the same cannot be said for the high school administration.

"As far as I'm convinced, if these accusations are found to be true, those administrators need to be terminated immediately for cause," Goldberg said. "We need to investigate this thoroughly and make any corrective measure necessary to ensure the integrity of our rating system in our district. The only way we can get past this is complete and utter transparency."

Meshkaty was defeated for re-election earlier this month, but serves until Dec. 8. She could not be reached for comment.

Cat Talk Brings Out the Claws

A nearly hour-long discussion about feral-cat feeding dominated Tuesday's city council meeting as residents brought out their claws over the lack of enforcement of a standing ordinance prohibiting such feeding.

Thirteen people banned together to represent the sentiment of an entire neighborhood, and expressed their outrage over the continued feeding of feral cats in their alleyways, especially by non-resident Katherine Varjian.

"[We] are so sick and tired over the Vargian alley feeding which has continued for years and now months," resident Darian Bojeaux said. "We videotaped Varjian leaving food all over the alley, we have the license plate, and we contacted the city to get enforcement. Well, nobody was really excited to do anything."

The ordinance, which was implemented last month, heavily focused on a trapneuter-return solution for feral cats and utilized TNR partners to handle the caring and feeding of feral cats.

"Katherine Varjian said she was going to continue alley feeding whether it was against the law or not," Bojeaux said. "We really are asking that our city respect its residents, and please put residents first and move forward with the enforcement and to not wait any longer."

Human Relations Commissioner Ilona Sherman and Courier Associate Publisher and Editor Marcia Hobbs were both present to advocate on behalf of feral cat feeding.

"I have had the duty, the pleasure, or whatever you choose to call [it], of accompanying Katherine Varjian a couple of nights on feeding," Hobbs said. "She's feeding entirely behind where she has written permission from those residents until we get our feeders in place."

Mayor Nancy Krasne responded by asking Hobbs why the residents don't feed the cats themselves if they gave written permission for Varjian to do so.

"I can't answer that question," Hobbs

Krasne said no one should break the law, and while this ordinance is in place, there should be no plates in the alleys.

"Then [we're going to] starve the cats," Hobbs said. "Sorry."

BHUSD Lawsuit Reaches Settlement with Po Lau

A settlement has been reached in a July 2009 lawsuit filed by former Beverly High teacher Po Lau against the school district, according to Lau's attorney Richard Grey.

Lau, a retired ceramics and art teacher, claimed he was fired from his position because of his race and age. According to the complaint, BHUSD management forced Lau's students to make false accusations and derogatory statements regarding his classroom performance. Lau alleges he was placed on an administrative leave of absence for unspecific reasons and without proper investigation.

The lawsuit originally sought unspecified damages, including loss of wages and mental and emotional distress.

Details of the November 9 settlement are confidential, Grey said.

ilarly to other (named) professions. But the disparity may not be as significant as Pressman portrays it.

To begin with, the use of doctors and lawyers, among other similar professionals is, at best, a misleading comparison.

And statistics can be used in many ways to shape a discussion.

There is a fundamental difference between non-governmental professionals who work in a competitive marketplace where they can make a profit or sustain a loss and educators who are employed by government supported (and often restricted) funding and protected by tenure

But even if the comparison used by Pressman is weak, let's "do the math" anyway.

Teachers work under a contract based on minutes of student contact per week. For this example, let's use 1,300 minutes per week which equals about 21.67 hours of contract time. However, almost all teachers work many more hours per week! Let's use a 40 hour week similar to other jobs.

As pointed out by the (Courier) editor, teachers work about nine months while other professions work on a 12-month calendar.

If you annualize an $85,530 salary mentioned by Pressman (based on about 185 days of employment) and compare that to a typical attorney who may be required to work a minimum of 2,000 hours per year, a teacher's salary would be $115,581. (185 days times 8 hr/day = 1480 hr/year)

While the debate will continue over professional salaries, the difference between the comparative professional groups and funding sources must always be considered.

"Brucker Criticized at Council Meeting" [Issue 528]

The uncalled for attack at the city council meetings on Councilmember Barry Brucker by Ruth Kraft and Lee Lewis was extremely vicious and nasty.

Barry Brucker is one of the few people who have given up a great deal of time and effort to further this city for a very long time. He has every right as a good citizen to assist any candidate of his choice. It is of no consequence whether or not others agree or disagree.

To claim that he lost the election for Nooshin Meshkaty is ridiculous and abhorrent, to say the least.

OPEN LETTER TO THE COMMUNITY

In the Matter of Brian Goldberg

The Beverly Hills North Homeowners Association focuses on maintaining and enhancing our quality of life citywide. Within the scope of that concern, our association has endorsed candidates for public office and on occasion taken to task city officials who, in our judgment, have failed to represent the best interests of our residents.

The measure of a city is not simply determined by the size and grandeur of its brick and mortar. Rather, the true nature of a community is revealed by its values and standards. We share together in a special city because we are a moral people.

While we may choose to agree with policies put forth by our public officials, or at times differ, we expect that they will act morally and reflect the time honored values and standards we hold dear as a community. When, in our opinion, an individual holding public office violates the public trust by evincing disreputable character, we believe he ought to use whatever honor he may possess and resign from his office.

In our judgment, Brian Goldberg presents such an individual, who, for the following reasons, we believe ought to resign from his position as a member of the board of education.

Background/Chronology of Events

In late August into early September 2009, we became aware of a judgment rendered in a civil case by a unanimous jury in superior court in San Bernardino County against Brian Goldberg et al. The plaintiffs allege, inter alia, that Brian Goldberg, during the sale of a family business, fabricated a profit and loss statement upon which plaintiffs relied when they purchased the business. The jury trial in superior court commenced on April 27, 2009 and was concluded on May 22, 2009. The jury finding specifically against Brian Goldberg provided in relevant part as follows:

- 1.) Brian Goldberg made false representations of an important fact;
- 2.) Brian Goldberg knew the representations were false or made the representations recklessly and without regard [for] the truth;
- 3.) Brian Goldberg intended that plaintiffs rely on the representations;
- 4.) Plaintiffs reasonably relied on the representations and that plaintiffs' reliance was a substantial factor in causing harm to plaintiffs
- 5.) Brian Goldberg acted with malice, oppression or fraud in this matter.

Additional testimony was taken on the issue of punitive damages following which the jury rendered a punitive damage award against Brian Goldberg et al.

On Sept. 2, 2009 the court denied Brian Goldberg's motion to set aside the jury verdict and certified its finding.

Brian Goldberg Meeting with BH North HOA Executive Committee

On Sept. 4, 2009 the executive committee of our association, which is comprised of the elected officers, met with Brian Goldberg to give Brian an opportunities to explain his position. He stated, inter alia, that he was merely a conduit in the sale of his father's business, attending one meeting, at which he handed one page of tax return to the plaintiffs, that he had nothing to do with the day-to-day operations of the business or with negotiations regarding the sale and just attended that one meetings at his father's behest. He led us to believe that he was an innocent bystander regarding the entire transaction.

Brian Goldberg Deposition

After the meeting with Brian Goldberg, we came into possession of his deposition, which he gave on June 21, 2006 and was represented by Stephen Webb, Esq. His deposition reveals his direct, active participation in both the operation and negotiations leading up to the sale of the business. His deposition statement was inconsistent with and contradicted, in substance, his statements given to us during our aforementioned meeting on Friday, Sept. 4, 2009.

On Sept. 30, 2009 Brian Goldberg sent an e-mail stating, in relevant part, that "I stand by what I told the group..."

Recommendation

We believe that the superior court jury determination of malicious fraud with an award of punitive damages against Brian Goldberg has stigmatized him and calls into question his character. Moreover, Brian was less than sincere when he met with us. We believe that he lacks the judgment, character and integrity to sit as a member of the board of education.

One of the most revealing moments during our Sept. 4, 2009 meeting and discussion that ensued occurred when Brian was asked the following questions and gave the following answers:

Q. As a member of the Board of Education, would you hire a district superintendent and/or school principal(s) who had against them the very same civil judgment for malicious fraud which now exists against you?

A. No

Q. Why not?

A. Because I wouldn't believe or trust such a person.

According to sources, the commission's functionality has plummeted since the departure of its Chair Rabbi Laura Geller, the current senior rabbi at Beverly Hills' Temple Emanuel.

"I can't comment on the commission since I'm not on it anymore, but I think in the early years we clarified our mission and created an agenda," Geller said. "We made an important step to raising significant human relations issues including civility and what it means to be a leader."

Former Commissioner Carol Goldsmith recent resignation was reportedly due the commission's lack of accord.

Current Human Relations Commissioners include Chairperson Cheri Yousem, Vice Chairperson Dr. Sharona Nazarian, Barbara Linder, Yar Meshkaty, Rochelle Ginsberg and Ilona Sherman.

Yousem said the commission has made an effort to prioritize, focus and move forward in a positive direction.

"It's not where we are today, certainly," Yousem said. "We were trying to find our way and establish our priorities. We weren't sure what the scope of the commission would be. I don't sense discord. I sense people who are passionate, who want their passions dealt with immediately. That's seven people and seven passions."

Sherman compared the commission to the city council.

"When they have issues, they disagree about what they are in opposition to," Sherman said. "We're very vocal about [our opinions], but we have come to agree to disagree."

Goldsmith could not be reached for comment.

Beverly Hills Public Library Ranks Top Three Statewide

The Beverly Hills Public Library has been awarded five stars by the prestigious Library Journal, making it one of the top 85 libraries in the nation and top three in the state. Earlier this year, BHPL was rated four stars.

The November issues of Library Journal ranked libraries based on per capita statistics, including circulation, visits, total program attendance and public internet terminal uses. Public libraries nationwide were rated on the quantity of services provided on a per capita basis in order to assess services patrons received from libraries based on how much they are used.

"The City of Beverly Hills is absolutely thrilled to receive this five star rating which honors our treasured library for being a center of information, recreation, learning and fun for all ages," Mayor Nancy Krasne said. "In challenging economic times, our top-notch library staff is truly doing more with less. Their ability to achieve an even higher rating recognizes the outstanding service they provide to our local community."

Beverly Hills One of Two Cities Statewide to Receive AAA Bond Ratings

The City of Beverly Hills has received confirmation of its AAA bond rating from the nation's three major credit agencies — Standard and Poor's, Fitch Ratings and Moody's Investment Services.

The ratings reflect the city's financial credit worthiness, placing Beverly Hills in an elite group of 23 U.S. municipalities to receive this honor and one of two cities in California.

"In uncertain economic times, maintaining the AAA rating is critical to getting financing cheaper, which helps provide services and programs more cost-effectively," Mayor Nancy Krasne said. "These elite ratings reflect the city's

The rating was confirmed during the city's recent rating request for its City of Beverly Hills Public Financing Authority 2009 Lease Revenue Bonds, for which the city received the highest rating for this type of financing from the rating agencies.

More Restaurant Notes

And some political reform ideas By Rudy Cole

Note to event planners: Check with city hall, the Chamber of Commerce or FTA to make sure you don't spend a small fortune for grand openings only to discover many, if not all, the local style-setters are at another soiree.

Monday night was a case in point: Our most successful event each year is the Black and White Beverly Hills Police Officers Annual Dinner held once again at our best banquet provider, the Beverly Across town, an unveiling was simultaneously occurring, the much-anticipated grand opening of Thomas Keller's Bouchon. True, the restaurant event had sufficient star power to attract a small army of paparazzi, but not the city's leadership, including members of the city council

Mayor Nancy Krasne did do the official Bouchon ribbon cutting almost two hours before the opening party, but she too found her way to the Hilton.

Some thoughts on Bouchon: the design is simply outstanding. Yes, high tech, but in a comfortable mode. The staff, and what would you expect at an opening, was attentive, welcoming and knowledgeable — obviously, well-prepared and trained.

If the restaurant even partially lives up to expectations, it will be a major addition to our growing and improving food-serving community. How about the food? Not quite ready for a review; while we were there it was cocktail-hour offerings and not menu ordering. So that will have to wait for another column. However, because of Keller's credentials and history, and the worldwide reputation of his French Laundry, expectations are very high. At the very least, it is good to have a French option to pastas and linguini.

Yet to open is the smaller wine bar and food diner on the ground floor. Bouchon is a mezzanine, above ground venue. And that is an asset and a problem. The view is excellent, but getting there, and climbing all those steps, is not half the fun. There is an elevator (our ordinances make that mandatory); however, upon exiting, you are not precisely in the restaurant, but a kind of corridor with some unmarked doors that do, eventually, open to the restaurant. This can and will be easily solved with some simple signage.

Bouchon, after a series of soft openings and some charity events, is now open to the public, and it will be a hard ticket. Located just north of the Montage Beverly Hills, its arrival has also continued the phenomena of North Canon Drive becoming the New Restaurant Row.

As for the Montage, more later on their incredible speedy award as a five-star hotel. With the Peninsula Beverly Hills having the same stars, our village could have two of the best hotels in America. Note: our Beverly Hilton may have a higher rating than any Hilton in North America, and they too have moved up the evaluation ladder since being acquired by Beny Alagem.

Following up on last week's cursory review of some of our restaurants, I do appreciate the quick response of all those who pointed out that I had listed an eatery that had actually been closed for over a year: Da Vinci. Considering how many calls and e-mails this gaffe triggered, it's surprising the long-running Italian diner on Little Santa Monica ever closed. Not quite sure how to take one reader's message: "Whoopee, how wrong you are."

Hey, the Los Angeles Times, in its "For the Record", admitted last week that it reported a football game in the wrong city! Now, I suppose some kind reader will point out that Rite Aid is really an historic landmark for Beverly Hills.

Digressing for a moment, my favorite store has initiated a new service to confound customers. Instead of being able to validate for parking, you now must show a receipt. Watch all the wonderful wait time as customers search through store bags for proof of purchase.

Back to restaurants: I am indebted to long-time resident Marilyn Granas for helping solve the Mama Weiss mystery, a restaurant I neglected to mention in the history graphs. The legendary Weiss Hungarian diner was on the 200 block of North Rodeo. In recent years, Mama Weiss' son, Milton, had a very great American-food restaurant on Little Santa Monica called "The Players" with the best brisket in town. Unfortunately, Milton closed the diner for health reasons.

Other restaurant memories: The moderate priced and attractive Swiss Café on North Rodeo and the Luau, just across the street. These two, for different reasons, were very successful. Today, there are only two options on Rodeo: The Cow Jumped Over the Moon at the Rodeo Collection and just down the street, the quite excellent small restaurant in the Luxe Hotel. Very nice menu choices, street-view dining and reasonable prices.

Of course, the most elegant restaurant in Beverly Hills was L' Escoffier at the Hilton: on the top floor with a panoramic view of the city. Last week we neglected to mention that Circa 55 is in the Hilton, and the Parq is at the Montage.

Another long-gone community favorite was Andre's, several blocks east of Robertson on Wilshire. This was a crusty, moderate-priced, most-generous-portions Italian restaurant with very large side rooms and a big bar area with seats taken by almost the same visitors every night after work.

For even more senior diners, MFK at the Beverly Wilshire was our most popular choice for late refreshments. It was open 24 hours, and was both a deli and a soda pop with ice cream server.

As for the Luau, it fell on hard times, not because the food quality declined — the Polynesian menu was popular until its demise — but because of a scam. According to legend, here's what happened. Suddenly, the number of home burglaries seemed to increase in the city, mostly in the early evenings. This was before modern burglar alarm systems became the vogue.

Police finally saw a pattern to the victims, and it was good detective work too. Each had been dining at the Luau! Apparently, the parking lot attendants, in league with some pros, carefully made wax copies of keys while patrons were dining. The next time these same customers arrived at the Luau, the burglary confederates were alerted and targeted the empty homes. Those with baby sitters or others still at home escaped being victims, but many Luau customers had a big shock when they returned to their home.

Didn't help business, but of course the final blow came when the restaurant was demolished to make way for the Rodeo Collection, and that outstanding addition with its trend setting design helped redefine Rodeo Drive. Thank the Mahboubi family.

Not sure how you segue from dining options and history to political reform, but maybe the phrase fat cats would help. No, we are not even considering entering into the most significant, at least to the participants, issue in modern Beverly Hills history: the feeding of feral felines in our alleys, a vexatious matter that has dominated city hall for weeks, incredibly.

The modern political fat cats are those who have resisted some basic political reforms we must finally address. There are simply too many misunderstandings: Questions of the legality of our voting lists, how we handle public forums and voter disinterest are just a few of the challenges our community faces.

In the last election, and since, another side issue was raised regarding endorsements by public officials of each other. It is legal, and it has historical precedence, whether or not you consider it proper for a city councilmember to publicly endorse a candidate for school board or any similar action. As for a possible conflict because councilmembers vote on school support through the Joint Powers Agreement, it would be hard to find any political leader or community activist without some form of conflict. Whether or not making endorsements or being actively involved in other elections is wise is another matter, but it is legal. It has always been the practice, and to make it illegal would tempt constitutional credibility.

Far more important are the matters of voter lists and city-controlled candidate forums. There are probably 1,000 people registered to vote of approximately 21,000 total at business or postal box addresses. This is completely legal if the voter actually also lives in the city, but it is not legal to use a business address if you live outside the city.

Because of laws protecting invasion of privacy at polling places, it is also difficult to assure the legality of those voting at the polls. But short of a police involvement, some better means needs to be found to make sure that voters not only live here but are also citizens.

Another issue in recent elections is who actually has the right to set the rules and control the scope of candidate forums. Recently, that responsibility has been assumed by the city council, and that is not good or fair governance.

The council position has been that if the forums are held on city-owned property, mostly that meant city hall, and the city's cable television is used, the council should set the rules.

True, there have been abuses of free and open candidate forums. When they are used to become partisan, when the people running the forums enter the fray and attack candidates, the whole concept of impartial forums is demeaned.

There is a possible solution that might help with all these voter issues: the creation of a totally independent committee to monitor elections, administer forums and encourage voter turn outs. The once logical agency for this would have been the League of Women Voters, but we no longer have a city chapter, now merged into Greater Los Angeles league.

However, in the same manner that presidential debates are now managed by an independent agency, so could our forums. Voter legality and increased voter turnout programs could also be assigned to a truly non-partisan committee.

The best possible starting point might be the Beverly Hills Bar Association. Under their direction, a monitoring city committee could include every legitimate civic organization that does NOT make endorsements of any kind. These include PTA, Beverly Hills Southwest Homeowner's Association, Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club and similar groups.

Beginning with candidate forums, the independent group could set the rules and establish procedures that would be fair to candidates and the voters. It could also process complaints on voter irregularities and act as a conduit between possible abusers and enforcement agencies, and finding the means of increasing voter participation would also be on this group's to-do list.

The obvious first step is to ask the BH Bar Association to take responsibility for candidate forums before we enter the next election cycle. This just might work.

Eli Broad always manages considerable ink with whatever his involvement, and those are almost always in the public interest. His family gives generosity and charitable and cultural support a very

However, he does stretch himself, and sometimes, but not too often, that creates issues on expectations. Despite all the interests in his involvement, he did not buy the Los Angeles Times, he did not lead a group to bring the NFL back to Los Angeles, and now we have no idea what his real plans are for a museum to house his magnificent art collection.

As first disclosed in this column and not in that other paper as they mistakenly claim, Broad has "talked" to city officials about creating a museum and a headquarters for his other interests at Little Santa Monica and Wilshire Boulevards. Sounds good, but Broad wants some entitlements that go beyond land issues: city financial contributions to the project, whether that means a parking structure or other elements of his proposals is not yet too clear.

Now, we learn that he is also talking to Santa Monica about the same project and whether this is designed to rush us into some bidding war or not, it should never make the city less than diligent in protecting our limited resources, even if this means losing Broad to our bay sister city.

Broad may be very serious about all of this, may indeed want to bring a first-rate art museum to Beverly Hills, but I would not yet return your membership to MOCA in anticipation.

Side note: The more recent Los Angeles Times piece on the Broad story placed the museum at the wrong corner. It is not being proposed for where Budget Rent A Car is located but where Starbucks now operates, and was once the home of the historic Wilson's House of Suede.

BRIAN GOLDBERG RESPONDS:

I want to begin my response by thanking the North Homeowners Association for all the work their members do on behalf of our residents. It has meant a great deal to me and my family to receive so many wonderful e-mails and calls of support from the majority of the mem-

I regret that a family civil legal matter involving the sale of a family-owned business and the property those business were located on in Big Bear Lake, CA has distracted some members of the North Homeowners Association from the important work of delivering the highest quality of life for our residents. I remain fully committed to continuing to serve the community and believe that my service on the board has been and will continue to be beyond reproach. I believe that my record of public service is indicative of my moral and ethical character and appreciate that the noise this matter has generated could shake the faith people have placed in me and this board. I have and will continue to work diligently to keep the trust of the families of Beverly Hills who elected me to the Board of Education. The case in question is a complex family matter that cannot be easily explained in sound bites. The bottom line is that it has no bearing on my ability to serve...so I will continue to serve.

I am thankful for the support shown to me by the families of Beverly Hills, from the time I was elected through today, and I intend to continue working diligently on the board's business for as long as the voters elect me to serve. Everyone knows we have pressing issues to address, and most would agree that focusing on a civil lawsuit that is currently being appealed is not a constructive use of time and energy. In the past few months, people in our community have helped me understand that every family deals with complex and personal issues that could end up in the public eye. My family is still working to resolve our issues through the legal system, and we are saddened by attempts to distort the record and intimidate us. So, yes, we are all humbled at times, but we are not deterred. We remain dedicated to the tasks at hand and to the people who put their faith in us.

BHHS Edged In Football Finale

Team misses playoffs for first time since 2004.

By Steven Herbert

The 2009 Beverly High football season – which ended Friday night with a 38-35 loss to Culver City in an Ocean League game at Nickoll Field – will probably be best remembered for its failure to qualify for the Southern Section playoffs for the first time since 2004 and late-game losses.

The Normans suffered their third lategame loss in their final four games as quarterback Marquel Carter ran four yards for a touchdown with 29 seconds to play, capping an 80-yard drive for the leaguechampion Centaurs (9-1, 5-0).

In a game with seven lead changes, Beverly Hills (4-6, 2-3 in league play) had taken a 35-31 lead earlier in the fourth quarter on Frank Brown's 20-yard touchdown run.

The Normans opened the game strongly, taking a 14-3 lead on Josh Newman's four- and 22-yard touchdown passes to Daniel Bradbury in the first and second quarters, sandwiched around Culver City kicker Devin Sylvester's 24-yard first-quarter field goal.

The Centaurs took a 17-14 lead in the second quarter on Edwin Tillman's 20-yard touchdown run and Carter's 20-yard touchdown pass to Sylvester.

Beverly Hills led 21-17 at halftime on Abe Kim's 80-yard touchdown run.

Culver City regained the lead in the third quarter on Tillman's 16-yard touchdown run, only to fall behind after A.J. Fortier ran 49 yards for a touchdown for the Normans.

Tillman (183 yards on 18 carries and seven catches for 120 yards) ran seven yards for his third touchdown later in the third quarter, giving the Centaurs a 31-28 lead.

Beverly Hills still would have missed the playoffs if they won, as Santa Monica (4-6, 3-2) assured itself of the league's final playoff berth with a 56-0 victory over Hawthorne (0-10, 0-5). If the Vikings and Normans tied for third, Santa Monica would have gone to the playoffs on the basis of its 28-27 victory over Beverly Hills.

The 35 points matched a season high for the Normans

Beverly Hills is 0-5-2 against Culver City since 2002.

Beverly Hills junior Sydney Gray finished third in 20:57, followed by Norman teammates Gitla Shooster, fourth in 21:11, and Brianna Simmons, fifth in 21:26.

Mount San Antonio College Invitational

Hefflin was Beverly Hills' top finisher, finishing ninth in 19:32 on the Green Course Oct. 24, the same time as eighth-place finisher Michelle Poquette, a San Jose Leigh freshman.

The Normans finished fifth among the 16 teams in the Division 2 race with 150 points, four behind fourth-place South Pasadena. Beaumont won with 84.

Carly Lake of Covina Charter Oak won in 18:59.

Ali Hatcher was fourth in 17:48 and Beverly Hills teammate Josh Galen fifth in 18:06 Nov. 5 at Kenneth Hahn State Recreation Area.

Santa Monica swept the top three places, with Nicholas Salazar winning in 17:00, 24 seconds ahead of Jamie Levinson. Andrew Capron was third in 17:29.

Girls' Volleyball Beverly Hills def. Inglewood, 25-6, 25-21, 25-7

Mallory Smith had eight kills, Emily Rosen seven service aces and Ore Ezer five kills in eight attempts for the Normans Oct. 26 in an Ocean League match at Inglewood they extensively used their reserves in the second and third games.

"It was a pretty sold match against a team that's still weak in our league," Beverly Hills coach Marla Weiss said.

Santa Monica def. Beverly Hills, 25-21, 22-25, 25-21, 25-14

The Normans committed 29 errors in an Ocean League match Oct. 28 at Santa Monica that dropped them into a tie for the league lead with the Vikings.

"We had a lot of serving and hitting errors," Weiss said. "You cannot do that and win a match."

Smith led Beverly Hills (7-1 in league play) with eight kills.

"We weren't clicking," Weiss said. "It was a close match even for us not playing well, which I guess is a pretty good thing, but we just were not 100 percent on and Santa Monica had a phenomenal match."

Beverly Hills def. Morningside, 25-4, 25-10, 25-10

Norman middle blocker Tamara Skootsky had six kills, Rosen eight service aces and Brianna Prince five service aces Nov. 3 in an Ocean League match at the Swim-Gym.

Girls' Golf

Beverly High went 0-10 in 2009, including two losses by forfeit when it was unable to field the minimum five players required, and failed to have any golfers advance to the Southern Section Northern Individual Regional.

"It was a disappointing season, but even in a disappointing season, you have moments that are rewarding and I prefer to focus on those moments," coach Jason Newman said.

Those moments included senior Attiya Harit shooting a career-best nine-over-par 44 in a three-way match against Palos Verdes and Redondo Oct. 13 at Rancho Park Golf Course and freshman Valerie Deutsch shooting a 10-over par 46 at The Links At Victoria Park course in Carson Sept. 29 against North Torrance, Newman said.

The Normans were hurt by the absence of their projected top player Hannah Merenstein, who missed all but one team match and the Ocean League final, because of a stress fracture in her foot, Newman said.

Merenstein shot a team-low 17-underpar 89 at the league final Oct. 29 at Harding Golf Course at Griffith Park, but failed to finish among the top seven qualifying for the Southern Section Northern Individual Regional.

"The bottom line is that in a sport like golf... you need to prepare in the off-season," Newman said. "It's the repetitions of swinging the golf club... combined with being out on the golf course and getting enough experience that you know how to execute shots when you're not in a pristine environment like a driving range where everything's perfect. It takes work in the off-season and a lot of practice."

When asked if his players did not get enough work in during the off-season, Newman replied, "Whether we got enough work or not, we didn't work as much as the other teams we played."

HEEDING THE HUNGRY

Beverly High Graduate James Banks changes lives in Nepal By Kimberly Cheng

Tell us what you've done since graduating Beverly High in 2001.

I went to UC Berkeley, and I majored in biological sciences. I did a study-abroad program while I was there for research and microbiology labs and different things on the pre-med track. Then after I graduated, I started working closely with a good friend of mine who had been to Nepal a few times. And we developed a nonprofit organization to help people living in rural communities in the hills of Nepal, basically working with local health care workers and bringing specialized medicine to those outlaying communities.

That segwayed into what I'm doing currently in Nepal which is working with an organization called Global HEED. Through my experiences working in Nepal in health care I learned a lot from good friends I made in different organizations and partners we had on the ground as far as development issues go.

What struck you about Nepal?

[I went] in the spring of 2006 and absolutely fell in love with the place. The people there are one of a kind. Really remarkable people. I think there's something really refreshing about the way of life and the pace of life there that really resonates with me. It's kind of difficult to explain. I feel a really strong connection to a lot of the aspects of life there. I've made a lot of really great friends, and the people that I've met in Nepal have so little to speak of. They live in mud huts and everything they do is manual work. It's a really difficult life but somehow they always smile, and they treat guests with open arms and will offer their own food. They'll have an empty plate in front of them and let their guests eat first. It's a really amazing and inspiring mentality. That's really what struck me.

Tell us about Global HEED.

Global HEED as an organization was founded in 2006. [Their Web site is] www.globalheed.org. The goal is to employ the ideas of sustainable development. We are working in smaller communities that are very underserved [and] impoverished and helping to improve their quality of life and standards of living by giving them access to credit through microfinance, helping to improve educational standards and access by building schools and providing scholarships for children, and health sectors through health education as well as basic health care provision with local health care workers.

[We are] building on the capacity of the local infrastructure to better serve the needs of the people. We bring medication and equipment, and right now our goal is to raise another $40,000 for construction on a clinic in Guatemala. That clinic would allow women to have a place to go to deliver children. Right now, it's more than a four-hour walk to the nearest center where they can do that. And it'll be more accessible for the people in general to get the medications for the gamut of [medical problems], mostly gastrointestinal, but there's also a lot of chronic illnesses that are manifesting in most of the developing world.

In Nepal we have similar goals, but we're a few years away from that because we only just completed our community assessment and case study this past summer. This summer we'll start some initial plans in improvement and further evaluate what our role really should be. I think the most important thing that organizations that work abroad usually neglect to do, which sadly has bad consequences for the people, is really to listen to the communities and work with them and have them feel like they have a deep sense of ownership of these projects

What is your involvement with Global HFED?

[Global HEED] got organized and started working in Guatemala, and I jumped on board as the director of Nepal Initiatives last fall and helped expand their programs and the model that they're using in the communities in Nepal that I have been working with for a few years.

As a board member, I'm involved in a lot of the organizational flow and helping to build the organization up and expand our operations domestically and abroad. So for the past few months I've been working toward the coming winter trip to Guatemala. I wear a lot of hats with [Global HEED]. Specifically with Nepal, I developed the research project we undertook this past summer, and I've been working on developing our projects, our strategies and plans for the future, and how to address the specific issues. We've been collaborating with our partner organizations to find out more about what the local priorities are in terms of health and education and economic development.

Were you involved in volunteer work at Beverly High?

I volunteered for Teen Line. It's a youth crisis hotline [and] the concept is it's peer-to-peer counseling, so I went through a pretty rigorous training course with that and volunteered about four hours a week. [It] was an amazing experience, and [it] definitely opened me up to the idea of giving back and dedicating a chunk of my time to helping others. When I went to college at [UC] Berkeley, I definitely felt the palpable asset of [volunteering]. I had school, family, friends, and I was working, but without having that service [aspect in my life], I definitely felt that something was missing. I started volunteering for a homeless shelter and resource center in Berkeley that provided basic health services as well as legal advice and food and clothing. I don't think I could, at this point, ever walk away [from volunteering]. Volunteerism is such an important part of having a balanced life, at least for

What affect did Beverly High have on you and your decisions in life?

Definitely my teachers throughout were incredible, and really, I don't think I would have had the same outlook on life without the educational opportunities I got through Beverly Hills schools. It was such an enriched learning environment, and I think that having that upbringing and having the access to those experiences really helped me develop into a more well-rounded individual. What I said before about having that balance in life. I think a lot of that came from my education and my upbringing, and I definitely take none of it for granted. I felt very lucky to have had that, and a part of me really felt that I had a responsibility to do something more for other people who weren't so lucky, who didn't have such supportive and nurturing teachers through all the years.

Who were some of your most inspirational teachers at El Rodeo and Beverly High?

Miss [Lisa Harris]. I had AP Biology with her. She passed away [two] years ago. She was a really wonderful inspiration for me. I ended up majoring in biology because of her, and her passion for sciences really steered me in that direction, and it was a really unforgettable gift she gave me. And Mrs. [Jean] Rosenfelt, now Mrs. Nelson. She definitely turned me on to music, and I think I wouldn't be the same person today without the love of music I have. I always have music playing in my house. I love it. I continue to play music and she was definitely a big inspiration for that. And Miss [Joanie] Garrett with history. I really love to travel and explore the world because of her.

"I don't think I would have had the same outlook on life without the educational opportunities I got through Beverly Hills schools."

Who do you keep in touch with from school?

One my best friends now lives in Chicago. We were best friends since seventh grade. Matt Susnow, and we're still really close. I'm actually going up to Chicago to spend Thanksgiving with him. My family still lives in Beverly Hills. My friend Sheera Frenkel is one of the closest people to me in the world. They both graduated in 2001. She's actually doing amazing stuff. She works for the Times of London. She's their correspondent in Israel and has been living amazing and inspiring.

I like how you can basically walk everywhere. Beverly Hills is a really small town in the middle of a huge city. I could walk to coffee shops or restaurants, to school, to a park or to friends' houses. The weather is obviously uncanny. It's really such a unique part of this world. There's so much aesthetic quality, and everything is always well-maintained. It's such an idyllic place to live. It's sad to think about how long it will take me to pay off my medical school bill so I'll be able to afford to live anywhere like that again.

Where are you doing right now and in the near future?

I'm in my second year of medical at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine, and it's brutal. I want to do either family medicine or internal medicine or pediatrics. I didn't think I'd ever see myself in the Midwest, but I really like it here. They have a really good global-health track in their residency programs here. That's something that I'm heavily considering. My options are relatively open. As far as the immediate future I'm planning on taking a one-year leave of absence before I start my fourth year to spend a more substantial amount of time in Nepal and elsewhere.

What is your ultimate goal?

Through all that [I've experienced and learned] I really feel I'm a much better person. Hopefully that will translate into me being a better doctor and me being able to better relate to my patients in the future. I honestly feel really confident in myself and what I've seen in people that I'm working with right now. We're really onto something and headed in the right direction, and it won't be that long before we're able to really start making some big things happen, moving some
