"Letters and E-mails" [Issue 554]

Last week I responded to John Mirisch's op-ed piece in the Beverly Hills Courier, which he entitled "Praising Arizona." I criticized his opinion that the Arizona immigration law, "[i]n essence...calls for local law enforcement of federal statutes aimed at stopping immigration abuse."

The junior member of the City Council criticized West Hollywood and others for opposing the Arizona law and sought to advance his anti-amnesty position.

My problem with the op-ed piece was the ease with which Mr. Mirisch would discard our civil liberties. I quoted Dr. King and alluded to the famous question asked by Joseph Welch to Senator Joseph McCarthy. Further, I asked Mirisch to explain when we decided to eliminate the 4th and 14th Amendments. In response, Mirisch went on a diatribe about how I trivialized the experience of millions in Nazi Germany. Ironically, he then scolded me for "ad hominem attacks and hysterical misrepresentations." Straight from the Frank Luntz school of rhetoric, put words in your opponent's mouth and criticize him for what he never said!

Please don't confuse John Mirisch with the facts.

This reminds me of an issue before the council last year in which Mirisch wanted to rip down a house on South Rodeo because it did not comply with code with respect to the location of the garage. Ordinarily, I would agree. But here, the City reviewed and approved the designs, conducted numerous inspections, and the house was built precisely in accordance with the plans. His reason for wanting to tear down the house? Not because it didn't comply with code. Rather, because if we allow the house to stand, it would only provide an incentive for developers to build whatever they want and get it approved afterwards.

If only the facts matched the argument, he might have a point.

Kenneth A. Goldman Sherman Oaks

JOHN MIRISCH RESPONDS:

Mr. Goldman, there you go again. Goldman once more would have us believe that the Arizona law marks the end of the Constitution as we know it, when, in fact, it specifically Goldman's latest ploy is to suggest I put words in his mouth. How dare I imply that he was invoking images of Nazi Germany! Yet this is the same Goldman who openly discusses fascism and tries to taint me with it through his rhetorical question: "Badges and papers – what's next?" The imagery in his rant is all too clear.

Goldman also now refers to a land-use issue, falsely claiming I wanted an entire house torn down. The house in question was, in fact, not built to code and what I did suggest was that the violations should be brought into compliance. Imagine that: in a city where it had become almost a local sport for developers and builders to do whatever the heck they wanted, I had the chutzpah to suggest that our own city codes and guidelines actually be followed. Evidently for Mr. Goldman, this is the true hallmark of a fascist.

Yes, Mr. Goldman, I do believe that openly allowing builders and developers to violate code encourages others to play fast and loose with our regulations. And, yes, Mr. Goldman, I also do believe that giving illegal immigrants amnesty encourages others to cut in line and to break the law, and that it is unfair to all those potential immigrants around the world who are patiently waiting their turns and playing by the rules.

Mr. Goldman suggests he is for equal protection, but his viewpoint seems positively Orwellian. For Goldman, it seems, all immigrants and developers are equal, but some – namely the ones who flout the laws – are more equal than others.

BHUSD Wins Two Permit Appeals; Demeter Speaks at Meeting Against BHUSD's Position on Permits

BHUSD prevailed at two Los Angeles County Office of Education hearings this week, despite former Board of Education member Myra Demeter speaking on behalf of opportunity permit students during the public comment period.

Both appeals involved sixthgrade out-of-district students entering seventh grade.

"I think that Demeter going to the [LACOE] board and misrepresenting the costs to the district is harmful to BHUSD." said BHUSD Board of Education member Brian Goldberg. "I find it very distressing that she would go and speak in favor of non-resident children, taking away funds and resources from resident children. The good news is renewal was upheld by the LACOE board." Demeter declined to comment to the Weekly, but in a prepared statement, Demeter spoke against BHUSD's position on permits during the hearing, and told the LACOE board that the financial costs to the district for renewing opportunity permits would be "minimal."

her argument fell on deaf ears and the non-

"I know that as a board, you have received information from BHUSD but am not aware of any process to verify it," Demeter told the LACOE board. "So I felt compelled to come here to give you some history and facts...There are no financial, educational, or facilities reasons for not continuing the education of opportunity permit students."

BHUSD Director of Human Resources Alex Cherniss couldn't be reached for comment.

Board Majority Upholds Vote Against Teacher Layoffs; Will Negotiate Furloughs

The Board of Education held a special meeting Thursday, May 13 to continue the discussion of teacher layoffs and voted 4-1 to reject an amended resolution that would have terminated the contracts of six BHUSD teachers.

Board member Myra Lurie dissented.

The board also voted 3-2 to open contract negotiations with the Beverly Hills Education Association on the possibility of one or more furlough days for the 2010-11 school year.

Board President Steven Fenton and member Brian Goldberg dissented.

"The vote [to reject any teacher layoffs] was a step for the board majority in taking back control in the budget process and being true to our word in keeping cutes as far away from the classroom as possible," Goldberg said. "The furlough resolution was open ended to be up to nine instructional days. I do not support an open-ended resolution, and to be true to my core convictions of academic excellence, I think any attempt to reduce the number of instructional days is just bad. It's not what I support."

Furlough negotiations between BHUSD staff and BHEA representatives will take

"BHEA is very pleased that the board voted to not lay off any teachers going into next year," said BHEA President Chris Bushee. "Layoffs should be used as a final method to balance the budget, and we believe that the budget deserves greater analysis before having to make such difficult personnel decisions. Regarding furloughs, if and when the district administration engages BHEA on the subject, we will have extensive bilateral talks, and we look forward to going through the district's budget in an attempt to identify areas where money could be spent more efficiently."

BHUSD Playground Aides Not Looking After Kids, Some Parents Say

Parents from Beverly Vista, El Rodeo, Hawthorne and Horace Mann recently approached several Board of Education members with complaints of what they say are inattentive yard aides.

Playgrounds aides from BHUSD's four K-8 schools allegedly use their cell phones while on duty, use profanity in the presence of students and don't appropriately discipline students who bully others.

"We need to look at what the problem is and how to fix it," said Board of Education Vice President Lisa Korbatov. "This is a very serious problem, especially in light of the tragedies happening with bullying around the nation."

Several parents have suggested employing college students as part of an internship program, parent volunteers or community volunteers, all of whom have a background in child supervision or education.

"We need a higher caliber and quality of employees and yard guards, and we need to really study this issue," Korbatov said. "It seems to be a systemic, for lack of a better word, failure in hiring yard guards that are going to perform their task at a greater skill."

According to a letter sent by Beverly Vista parents to the board, yard aides are "swearing, name-calling, and blaming, labeling, bullying, intimidating and even neglecting our children." The "insufficient or seeming lack of job-related child centered skills combined with the contrasting and often contradictory values/standards between our home environments and the school milieu is an issue necessitating our immediate review."

parents' concerns are a very accurate reflection of what he's seen on the campuses.

"It's something we need to address immediately at the site level and one of the things I'm very optimistic about," Goldberg said.

Goldberg said the solution is two-fold, one of which is having new principals David Hoffman and Steve Kessler more "visible" at the campuses.

"If your boss is looking over your shoulder, you're going to work harder," Goldberg said. "The fact that Kessler and Hoffman have made a commitment to be more visible will make a great difference."

The second part of the solution, Goldberg said, is funding.

"We need to pay more," he said. "You get what you pay for. If we're serious about having ample coverage in the playground yards, we as a district need to spend more money on playground aides who are more suited for the job, who have a background in child supervision and child education."

Beverly Vista Principal Erik Warren said school administrators have not witnessed the alleged inattentive behavior of playground aides

'None of that behavior would be tolerated," Warren said. "We are out there supervising the aides every day."

Furie, Bosse To Run And

Just when you thought politics had become too odiferous and contentious to attract really qualified and exciting candidates, two of our most respected community leaders this week announced they will seek election to the city council.

Noah Furie and Lili Bosse, both current members of the planning commission, will formally file this fall for the March, 2011 election. Furie is a member and past chair of the commission and Bosse is the current chair.

They will seek seats now held by Mayor Jimmy Delshad and Councilmember and former Mayor Nancy Krasne.

Krasne, when asked to confirm her earlier decision to seek a second term said: "I am running on my record, not endorsements." Delshad said earlier that he had not ruled out a possible run for a third term, but would weigh heavily the feelings of his family.

Of the other possible candidates, the person most often mentioned, and one of the city's most effective campaigners, School Board President Steven Fenton, has told friends his school district issues will make it unlikely that he would seek another office before the end of his term late next year. The board is now just beginning the critical process of finding a new superintendent of schools.

Brian Rosenstein, who was only recently appointed to the Parking and Traffic Commission and who has made no secret of his desire to run for city council, is very unlikely to challenge Furie, Bosse and two very strong incumbents. He will probably wait for at least two years.

Furie and Bosse have very balanced and often similar positions on development issues – both opposed the Hilton development, but mainly because of the condominium height issues, not the Waldorf-Astoria proposed addition, and their commission voting record has been more in opposition to growth. However, neither are doctrinaire, knee jerk anti-development ideologues.

Furie and Bosse share strong ties to numerous civic organizations and considerable experience in city government. Furie also has experience in the private sector as a financial professional and Bosse, along with her husband Jon, have been major donors to a wide range of education and community needs. Bosse and Furie also served together as members of the city's Parking and Traffic Commission before being unanimously appointed to the Planning Commission. Obviously, both have paid their dues in community service and have demonstrated considerable leadership skills and governmental know-how.

Krasne said earlier she had decided to run again because she felt "she could still make a difference." If she should change her mind, it would probably be because she shares similar views on city issues with both Bosse and Furie.

However, Krasne has had serious differences with Councilmember John Mirisch on issues, and council process. Before the split, they had very similar postures on issues, and had the support of many of the most militant anti-growth activists. Now, many of their most ardent campaign supporters are divided in their loyalties.

Krasne's most frequent ally on the council has been Mayor Jimmy Delshad. She also surprised many of her friends by saying "how much I miss former Mayor Linda Briskman," with whom she served.

Clearly, Mirisch will not support Krasne. What impact will the other councilmembers have in the election? If he does not run, Delshad could be a big player in the campaign. His ties to both the Persian and business communities could make a difference.

Vice Mayor Barry Brucker, who has run first in every election whether for school board or city council, also has a strong following. He has had the backing of both Bosse and Furie in his elections, and his endorsement is almost certain to go to both.

Dr. Willie Brien has been a very moderating voice as a member of the city council. Although he has had differences with his colleagues, those have seldom become personal or volatile. If he decides to endorse, it would be a major boost for any of the candidates.

All of the major players have made past endorsements that were often personal. Dr. Brien and Furie both supported the losing campaign of former planning commissioner Shahram Melamed; Bosse backed the losing campaign of school board president Nooshin Meshkaty, as did Brucker.

Krasne is almost right about endorsements: they do not decide elections, not by themselves, or Steve Webb would still be serving. Few candidates ever lost with more supporters than Webb. He had the endorsements of both newspapers, and almost every identifiable community leader, former mayor and civic organizations; and he had the most lawn signs, and still lost.

However, endorsements do give candidates credibility. Without them, lesser known contenders usually fade fast. But issues, the intensity of walking and the structure of campaigns weigh heavily on successful elections.

In any case, it now seems clear: the city will have some very viable candidates for city council. Krasne, if she in the race, as she said she will, is a very strong campaigner with some very loyal supporters, and Delshad has been an innovative mayor, creating some very positive initiatives, and leading the council through the difficult budget-crunching process.

But being mayor during an election is not always a political blessing. Webb, and more recently Linda Briskman, wielded the mayoral gavel when they lost re-election drives.

Beverly Hills voters also seem to have a sense of humor when issues are involved. When Maxwell Hillary Salter and Robert K. Tanenbaum both ran for two council seats, they were polls apart on some very contentious issues. It seemed likely that only one of them would win and that the one incumbent in the race, then Mayor Annabelle Heifferman, would be re-elected. However, both won, and Heifferman finished fourth behind Rose Norton, wife of a former mayor, the late Ben Norton.

Again, a wide and diverse field of candidates has to be good for a city that has often been too lethargic and uninvolved. This could be an interesting and lively contest. However, even if no incumbent runs and no other viable contenders seek the office, the city would be in good hands with Furie and Bosse. But let's wait to see how both handle the forums and the campaign, what issues develop and what the choices will be.

Should the city "give" $2.1 million to an organization that holds closed meetings, provides no accountability to the public on how the money is spent and makes its officers sign so-called confidentially agreements?

Wait, there's more: The city funding is the only money this organization receives, it does no private solicitations and no officer is required to make any monetary contribution whatsoever.

Before you demand to know how you can become a member, you should know there are some risks involved. The organization in question, and we have many, goes through frequent internal bloodletting fights for leadership.

Guess who? Your friendly, neighborhood Beverly Hills Visitors and Conference Bureau.

It has been almost two years since the Beverly Hills City Council decided to divest the Beverly Hills Chamber of Commerce from tourist promotion, voting to separate the CVB from the Chamber. The result was the creation of an "independent" group, and massive losses in funding for the Chamber.

The real reasons for all this restructuring are murky, mired in power plays and private vendettas, but that's another column. What is far more important now is whether the separation is working, and how the public interest can be fully protected.

How was the organization created? Somehow, a group of hotel, restaurant and business leaders came together in some sore of spontaneous political combustion and as if by magic, a CVB was born? Of course, that's not likely to be even partially true, but to maintain the fiction of independence from the city, that's as close to the official story as we can learn.

So, let's begin with the issue of holding closed meetings and not being required to provide any public accountability.

Under the Brown (Open Government) Act, private, non-profit organizations that receive public funding are not required to have open meetings or make public disclosures of their activities, including spending. But what if that organization is totally dependent on city financial support, a city staff member acts as liaison and "instructs" the organization on city government demands and a city council ad-hoc committee is hands on in the operations, policies and even selection of officers?

The Normans played "very well" in the first two games, then made "a lot more errors and played less consistently" in the third in an Ocean League match at Santa Monica April 27, coach Jon Ramin said.

Joseph Hakim, Martin Shapiro, Milton Shapiro and Jason Nik drew praise from Ramin for their play for Beverly Hills.

Emily Rosen broke a tie with a fifthinning three-run home run and the Normans scored three additional runs in the inning an Ocean League game at Morningside April 29.

Rosen's home run drove in Tylor Fields, Beverly Hills No. 9 hitter, who reached on an error, and Annie Math, who singled, her fourth hit in her first four at-bats of the game.

One out after Rosen's home run, Lexi Silbiger singled, advanced to second on Solange Levy's two-out walk and scored on Erica Hendry's single. Lauren Siegel singled in Levy and Hendry, who stole second.

The Normans scored three runs without a hit in the sixth, thanks to three walks, a hit batter and a passed ball.

Beverly Hills took a 3-0 lead in the first. Math led off with a home run. Jackie Pop Our very able city attorney has ruled that the CVB is not Brown Act covered, probably because of the exemption for not for profits. But now that the CVB is acting almost entirely like an agency of city government, a new look might be in order. (Another lawyer expert on the Brown Act also thought the question of coverage was murky and needed study.)

Brown Act aside, there are serious issues of accountability involved, not the least of which is spending of public tax dollars.

Now, before the board of the CVB votes me off the island, I need to explain that most of the members are competent and totally well intentioned. This is a problem they inherited, not created. The inside issues recently led to the election of a new president or chair, and that was not a collegial process.

A CVB nominating committee had recommended one candidate, but by a narrow margin, the board selected someone else.

There is now an almost shameful duplication of costs for both the Chamber and the CVB. The CVB was housed in the Chamber offices and had the services of Chamber staff and facilities. Since they

The Monarchs scored four runs in their half of the first, all with two outs. Zully Chan's triple drove in Barbara Rivera, who led off with a single. Chan scored when Emani Flewelen reached base on an error by Rosen, the Norman pitcher. Jaleesa Wildrige followed with a home run.

Beverly Hills regained the lead in the second, combining four walks, an error and Math's single for two runs.

The Normans increased their lead to 6-4 in the third. Hendry walked with one out. Siegel grounded into a force out, advanced to second when Fields reached on a fielder's choice and scored on Math's single.

Morningside tied the score, 6-6, with two runs in the fourth, as Dayleshia Beard, Rivera and Chan all singled and Vanessa Reid reached base on an error by Hendry, the Beverly Hills second baseman.

The Monarchs scored their final two runs in the sixth.

Rosen (8-8) pitched a complete game, allowing eight runs (three earned) and eight hits in seven innings, striking out three and not walking or hitting a batter.

are separated physically, those costs are almost duplicated

This dual spending, and confusion of roles needs reexamining, now. The Chamber needs to explain what economic benefits the city receives, not just what they do for their members, and that is not always the same. Councilmember Dr. Willie Brien asked that precise question during the separation discussions.

The time has come for the council to recognize that the split of the CVB and the Chamber was neither fiscally responsible on in the interests of business and tourism development. They should bite the bullet and put the agencies back together.

As the council struggles with the budget challenges, some wiser selections on priorities need to be made. Restoring the CVB to the Chamber could save the city at least $500,000, and this is not the time to fund a Rose Bowl Parade float. Holiday decorations need to be modified, support for outside the city service groups re-examined and every non-critical program or pet council project either reduced or delayed until the economy improves.

Not only staff and professional users of the services called in support, but residents who have gone to the agency for help with renovations were totally against reductions in a department that is highly competent and revenue producing.

Although the decline in tax revenues makes any reductions in city service possible, our priorities have always been public safety. However, one of the proposed department cuts should also be avoided, if at all possible. A city's library helps define a community. Ours is now one of the best in the nation and provides so many outstanding benefits, a reduction of services, including hours and days of being opened, is not what our community would support. Take the Library and Building and Safety off the must-cut list.

Center Theatre Group Launches Chase Theatre Educators Fellowship Program

Centre Theatre Group is launching a new theatre educator professional development program. Designed by CTG's Education and Engagement department, P.L.A.Y., and supported by a grant from JP Morgan Chase Foundation, the Chase Theatre Educators Fellowship Program will annually award five fellowships to outstanding educators.

The program is aimed at helping the educators build their capacity to teach and integrate theatre in their classrooms. The fellows will receive up to $5,000 each, plus a $100 Chase gift card for post-fellowship class materials.

Five teachers have been selected for the inaugural year of the Chase Theatre Educators Fellowship Program, among them Jane McEneaney of Turning Point School in Culver City. McEneaney will be traveling to New Orleans to conduct documentary drama workshops with teenagers at the North Rampart Community Center in an effort to examine the real-life experiences of youth in post-Katrina New Orleans. She will then work with Turning Point School's theatre students to create a new play by and for middle school students, using computer technology to allow students both in Culver City and in New Orleans to perform together.

Beverly Hills Herzliya Film Student Exchange

Six high school students from Herzliya, Israel with a background in film and media will come to Beverly Hills from Sunday, May 23 to Sunday, May 30. Students will be matched with a peer at Beverly High and stay with a host family during the week of the program.

The highlight of the program will be a joint film project centered around a worldwide program held every other year, "Every 15 Minutes."

Both Beverly High students and Herzliya students will work together to video a simulated car accident on campus which is treated by the local authorities as a real accident involving the police and fire departments and other emergency services. That evening, the joint team of film students will work together to edit a video of the day's events that will be shown to a full assembly at the high school Wednesday, May 26.

This program will be carried out without any cost to Beverly High or the city. Any

COVERSTORY BEVERINHULS FACES BUDGET CUTS

But how will it affect your family?

By Kimberly Cheng

Beverly Hills is facing a $9.48 million shortfall in the city's budget for the 2010-2011 fiscal year. The general fund operating budget is roughly $157 million.

The gap resulted from rising fixed costs — such as utilities, gas, oil, employee salaries and benefits — and a mostly stagnant revenue, according to the city's Chief Financial Officer Scott Miller.

"The sales tax is going to be less than what it has been in the past, and the transient occupancy tax is less than the past," Miller said. "Our business tax is going to be less than what we received in the past, and that's all due to the economic condition of the state and country."

Transient occupancy tax is a tax on hotel rooms, and is set at 14 percent.

The proposed budget shaves roughly $1.8 million in city services. Community services, which includes recreations and parks and the city's public library, was hit the hardest.

"Nonessential services, nonpublic safety services, typically bear a little more of the cuts," said Assistant Director of Community Services Steve Zoet. "It's a choice of the council of where they wish to make those cuts."

Zoet said although other departments may receive more funding, the sources of funding are not mostly from the city's general fund, unlike community services.

"They have a guaranteed revenue stream," Zoet said. "That's not always the case with general funds."

Cuts to the community services department include the elimination of the Multi-Cultural Festival, Jazz at the House and Plaza Suites, all of which are non-revenue generating events, totaling about $62,000; and cutting funding for part-time staff in Recreation and Parks and Administrative Support by roughly $92,000.

Zoet said events such as this summer's Chili Cook-off celebration of Farmers Market's Sweet 16 were not eliminated because they generate revenue for the city.

"The others are at the pure expense of the city," Zoet said. "The whole added expense of providing [the cook-off] is nominal, but we do charge a participation fee for the participants. Also, when we host these events, additional people come out as a result, and we have an incremental increase in our sales. We get additional revenue from farmers when they make sales too."

The community services department also proposed trimming $90,000 from the library book and materials budget and reducing library hours by closing all Saturdays (there are 52 in a year), the Sunday of Thanksgiving weekend and closing early each day during the last week of December, all of which will cut part-time hours and save about $308,000.

According to staff, the city would save about $190,000 by further reducing hours, which breaks down to roughly $3,600 saved and movie programs funded by Friends of the Beverly Hills Public Library — as well as patrons who are unable to visit the library on weekdays.

"I think it will be difficult for them," Hunt-Coffey said. "Saturday is the day where we're very heavily used. It's the day where a lot of families use the libraries. It will be difficult for people who work during the week."

Hunt-Coffey said the department opted for closing Saturdays instead of Sundays because they found that the usage-per-hour is greater on Sundays, probably due to Los Angeles city libraries being recently closed on Sundays.

"There's also greater savings on Saturday because we're open eight hours instead of the five hours on Sunday," Hunt-Coffey said.

Additionally, four vacant, full-time positions were eliminated from community services, including an account technician, park services worker, recreation services manager and senior library clerk, resulting in about $361,000 in savings.

The proposed budget wipes out a total of 55 full-time positions citywide, 30 of which are responsible for park maintenance. Those 30 positions would be outsourced to contractors in order to save the city more than $500,000.

The other 21 positions (not including the every Saturday.

Last year, the city already reduced library hours from a 9 p.m. closing time to 8 p.m. Monday through Wednesday and 6 p.m. on Thursdays, as well as cut $206,295 from the book and materials budget.

"It's kind of difficult to make ends meet," said City Librarian Nancy Hunt-Coffey. "Libraries are really about people and books, and people translate into open hours. There are proposed substantial cuts in the book budget also. It's a very painful cut to make."

Hunt-Coffey said cuts to the library would only affect part-time library employees. Fulltime librarians will not have their salaries or benefits reduced under the current plan.

There are approximately 100 part-time employees in the library, though the total number of reduced hours for the part-time workers remains unclear.

"It's difficult to say," Hunt-Coffey said. "Most [part-time staff members] will see a reduction in their hours. There may be some people who won't have their hours reduced, and there may be some who only work on Saturdays, so it depends."

Hunt-Coffey said closing the library on Saturdays would also affect programs offered on that day — such as story hours for children four community services positions) that would be eliminated, 11 of which are currently filled, include an assistant city manager; records and archives manager; office assistant, purchasing specialist; training and organizational development manager; two school resource officers in BHUSD; police lieutenant; assistant division commander; crime analyst; two senior plan review engineer; principal planner; development services technician; two executive assistants; two building inspectors; central stores specialist; traffic sign and paint technician; and a street maintenance worker.

The city would save approximately $3.9 million from the elimination of the proposed full-time and part-time jobs.

About half of the $9 million budget gap would be recovered through one-time reductions, which would include implementing five furlough days for staff members — four days between Christmas and New Year's Eve and the day before the fourth of July weekend and delaying the replacement of equipment and vehicles for another year.

Meanwhile, the proposed budget for the police department's salaries and benefits saw a hike of roughly 4 percent to cover increased benefit costs and possible salary adjustments, as well as to correct under-budgeting of the Public Employee Retirement System on bonuses in the 2009-2010 fiscal year. Similarly, the fire department's proposed budget includes an additional estimated $558,000, or roughly 3 percent, also due to increased benefit costs.

When asked if, as an example, the cuts to the library were proposed in order to pay for pensions, Councilmember John Mirisch said, "You can look at it that way."

"They're not directly connected but obviously everything is interconnected because of our overall budget system," Mirisch said. "As pensions and other post employment benefits increase, it means the money has to come from somewhere. We have to develop a fair and sustainable pension system in order to create stability so that we won't have to be plugging holes on a year-to-year basis. We'll be able to afford the salaries for the services that we have come to expect and which our residents deserve as a city."

Mirisch, who opposes the proposed reduction to library hours, said they need to come up with another solution.

"We've already reduced [hours] significantly last year," Mirisch said. "We can't just keep wearing away. The library is too important for that."

Additional cuts to other departments include a reduction to community assistance grants, which funds programs such as The Maple Counseling Center, from about $300,000 to $100,000.

"[Community assistance grants] fund services that help the most needy people in the community such as seniors and the homeless," Mirisch said. "My suggestion is to fund that from the budget for holiday decorations. While I'm very supportive of protecting our brand, we have to make sure when we're spending funds that we're getting value for money, and I'm not convinced that happened."

Last year, the city spent about $800,000 for its holiday program.

Mirisch said the city should also look at reducing its Joint Powers Agreement with BHUSD, which costs roughly $10 million per year until 2012.

"We're cutting from absolutely and literally everywhere," Mirisch said. "And I just think we have to be fair about it."

Miller said he predicts a $1.9 million short-fall for the 2011-2012 fiscal year.

"We see a very slow, economic recovery," Miller said. "Our costs continue to go up faster than our revenues come in."

Miller said the city will review how they can "do things differently" in order to be more cost efficient.

"For example, looking at contracting out certain services that the city provides currently, the city can save $500,000 to $1 million," Miller said. "Another way is to try to use automation as much as possible. We're still researching ways and looking at automating to replace staff but provide the same level of services. Negotiating different salary and benefit packages for our current employees is another way of saving. Going to a two-tier retirement system for police and fire [departments] is another possibility for cost saving in the future."

The next budget study session will be held June 3. The city council will have to finalize the budget by July 1.
