“Subway Blues, And other City Notes [Issue 561]”

Rudy Cole’s column on the potential tunneling of the subway beneath a handful of business and residential properties does the Beverly Hills community a disservice.

Mr. Cole seems unaware this option is the product of community input, specifically the folks in the Century City area who think the Constellation site would be a more central and useful station location.

Mr. Cole also seems unaware this is an idea that has been considered since at least last August so the recent complaints of Metro engaging in a stealth process seems disconnected from the reality.

Further, Cole’s use of words like scheme and disaster is uncalled for. Metro is engaged in a planning process that has as its goal the highest public good as its outcome. Hopefully we can set aside hyperbole and let the rational process go forward.

*Dana Gabbard

COLE RESPONDS:

Wrong, I always check with the folks in Century City to learn what is best for Beverly Hills. However, what is at issue here is a process of trust, and that means adhering to promises made when gaining community support for the subway.

Westside extension would tunnel under Beverly Hills main disaster shelter

At the city council meeting last Thursday, Southwest Homeowners Association President Ken Goldman expressed concern to the council about the Metro alternate route that would tunnel under Beverly High, which is also the city's main disaster center.

"Beverly High is the city's principal disaster center. I don't know if metro realizes that fact," said Goldman.

Councilmember Nancy Krasne is concerned about Beverly High's location, and the ground it sits on.

"Beverly High sits on a very high water table. When you dig down, you're going to have to dig down very deep. Remember, Metro has to get under the high rise buildings in Century City as well. Those garages go down a minimum of four levels. So if they go under the high school, Metro would have to accommodate those buildings as well," said Krasne.

Additionally, Krasne is not convinced tunneling under Beverly High is the most cost effective route to take.

"I don't see how it would be cost effective. I would think it would be cheaper to go down Santa Monica. I don't understand how going under our high school can be advantageous to Metro or anyone else. Going under the historic high school building and our major disaster shelter has got to be a no-no."

Goldman pleaded with the council to take a strong stance against the proposed alternate route.

"There is not a single responsible engineer that will tell you there will be no noise or vibrations. Our homes, families, property values, teachers and students are all jeopardized. I urge you [the council] to take a strong and vocal position with the MTA," said Goldman.

The subject will be on the July 20 agenda at the City Council meeting.

Beverly Hills' Ron George stepping down as California Chief Justice

California Chief Justice Ron George is stepping down.

The state's top jurist announced Wednesday that he won't seek re-election in November. His last day in office will be January 2.

Ron George

"My 70th birthday this year focused my attention on a question recently posed by my family: why file for re-election for another 12-year term, after having authored hundreds of judicial opinions and overseen major administrative reforms in the judicial system; what more do you hope to accomplish other than refining and preserving what has been achieved? Reflection convinced me now is the right time — while I am at the top of my game — to leave while the proverbial music still plays, and return to private life," George said in a prepared statement.

George, a 1957 Beverly High graduate, began his judicial career in 1972 when Gov. Ronald Reagan appointed him to the Los Angeles Municipal Court.

Gov. Pete Wilson appointed George chief justice in 1996. He was originally appointed to the high court in 1991 after serving four years as an appellate judge.

Krasne wants to know what Beverly Hills wants for the Holidays

During the city council meeting last Thursday, Recreation Services Manager Brad Meyerowitz proposed his plan for a hybrid ice skating rink, to be placed at Beverly Gardens Park for 33 days during the holiday season.

Councilmember Nancy Krasne says she's conflicted because she doesn't know how the community feels about placing an expensive ice rink in the middle of the city.

Nancy Krasne

"I can only vote the way my conscience tells me to vote, but I need to know what the community is thinking, regarding the holiday ice rink," said Krasne.

One tipping point for Krasne could be the amount of money the city

TIME: 1:30 PM, or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard
LOCATION: Council Meeting Room 280A
Beverly Hills City Hall
455 North Rexford Drive
Beverly Hills, CA 90210

The Planning Commission of the City of Beverly Hills, at its REGULAR meeting on Thursday, July 22, 2010, will hold a public hearing beginning at 1:30 PM, or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard to consider:

A request to amend an existing Conditional Use Permit that allows for the operation of an exercise club (Sports Club L.A.) on the property located at 9601 Wilshire Boulevard. Existing conditions of approval require that the operator of the exercise club provide its members with two hours of free parking, and allows the operator to charge its members for any time in excess of two hours at a rate not to exceed that charged by the nearest City parking structure. The applicant requests to amend this condition to instead provide one hour of free parking to its members, and charge one dollar per hour for each hour of parking thereafter.

This project has been assessed in accordance with the authority and criteria contained in the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), the State CEQA Guidelines, and the environmental regulations of the City. The project qualifies for a Class 1 Categorical Exemption for minor operational changes within an existing commercial facility, and the project has been determined not to have a significant environmental impact and is exempt from the provisions of CEQA.

Any interested person may attend the meeting and be heard or present written comments to the Commission.

According to Government Code Section 65009, if you challenge the Commission's action in court, you may be limited to raising only those issues you or someone else raised at the public hearing described in this notice, or in written correspondence delivered to the City, either at or prior to the public hearing.

If there are any questions regarding this notice, please contact Ryan Gohlich, Associate Planner in the Planning Division at 310.285.1194, or by email at rgohlich@beverlyhills.org. Copies of the applications, plans, and Categorical Exemption are on file in the Community Development Department, and can be reviewed by any interested person at 455 North Rexford Drive, Beverly Hills, CA 90210.

might have to pay for the nearly $133,000 hybrid plan.

"We don't have any surplus city money to spend on this project, and although we all may want it, do we want it enough to spend the money for a smaller plastic rink that is eco-friendly with no carbon footprint? The City Council has just cut over 27 million dollars in the last two years from our budget, this is not a time to waste any money. These are critical questions that need to be addressed. The commission has done a brilliant job in addressing the issues. The plastic rink being eco-friendly is of great value, but it is also near the residential area and the churches and all the impacts need to be thought out completely. As a Council member, I need to think of everyone, all the impacts, parking, noise and disruption before we make a final decision," said Krasne.

Councilmember John Mirisch sees the dispute from those who enjoy a traditional ice rink, but feels in an effort to help make Beverly Hills eco-friendly, the hybrid rink is the way to go.

"While I do understand why some people like the idea of real ice, I think it's greener and smarter to go with a hybrid rink, which doesn't require huge amounts of electricity. And from what I understand, unless you're Peggy Fleming, you're never going to know the difference when you're skating," said Mirisch.

Another issue for Krasne is image. The idea of having an ice rink with "fake" ice could bleed into Beverly Hills stereotypes.

"I don't want people to come away thinking this is typical for Beverly Hills, everything is plastic, everything is fake. On the other hand, do they want the real thing complete with a Zamboni machine? We could possibly get that sponsored, so it would be paid for," said Krasne.

Location could also be a factor. An ice rink at Beverly Gardens Park could interfere with the Beverly Hills Presbyterian Church's parking.

"I prefer the Beverly Gardens location for the rink. I think it's by far the best location. There is convenient off-street parking nearby and it's just as close to the Business Triangle. It seems to be a better and more natural gathering spot for families and tourists alike. And from a branding and PR perspective, you can just imagine the photos of ice skaters in front of the Beverly Hills sign and the kind of press coverage we would get," said Mirisch.

Voting on the hybrid plan is set to come in the next month for city council.

Council Looks at City Bicycle Plan

Beverly Hills resident Mark Elliot addressed the council about the need for an updated bicycle plan for the city on July 8, at the City Council meeting.

Mayor Jimmy Delshad thanked Elliot for bringing the issue to the council's attention, and reminded council that during his swearing in [as Mayor], there were pictures posted of the Delshad riding his own bike to work.

"I have initiated an investigation on how we can make Beverly Hills much more friendly for bicyclists. I've been working with the traffic commission and city planners to create bicycle lanes in the city. Our commission will ask questions and have a hearing soon to come up with a plan to approve. It is part of our small city initiative to continually expand on being eco-friendly," said Delshad.

The city of Beverly Hills currently has a bicycle plan in place that draws from maps of the city from the 1960's and 1970's.

Surrounding areas such as Santa Monica and Burbank have 100 paged reports of their alternate transportation plans of bike paths and lanes that run throughout the cities.

Councilmember William Brien thinks it's time to update Beverly Hills.

"I think there are options, and there are ways we have to improve the biking experience. It's healthy, it's green, and we really do have to make it safe for those who want to ride their bikes," said Brien.

Elliot said that with all of the arteries that run through Beverly Hills, now is the perfect opportunity to update the city's plan.

Councilmember John Mirisch agrees with Elliot, and thinks Beverly Hills needs to become more bicycle friendly.

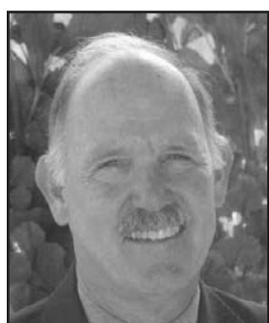

"As traffic got increasingly worse, I'm guessing that interest in making space for a bike path waned. Perhaps people thought that bike paths would take away space from cars and exacerbate the traffic. Of course, if enough people can be encouraged to take their bikes, traffic should be alleviated. I realize there are numerous factors that create our traffic headaches, but we really should become more bike friendly; riding a bike is a great way to get around," said Mirisch.

City staff said surveys for bicyclist needs will be available soon.

dential areas and our schools raise serious questions on safety and construction impacts that cannot be lightly ignored, no matter how much that would benefit Century City.

I want to express my vehement opposition to the MTA's possible rerouting of the Red Line Subway, which would result in tunneling under my home, my neighbors' homes and our children's schools.

The MTA has been evaluating an alternative route from Beverly Hills to Century City that would require tunneling under many homes in the Linden/Spalding/Lasky area as well as underneath The Good Shepherd School and Beverly Hills High School. If adopted, this route could have lasting and significant adverse impacts for the residents of Beverly Hills and the city itself.

The motivation for the change in routes appears to stem from the fact that the MTA now prefers a subway stop at Constellation and Avenue of the Stars versus the originally planned stop at Santa Monica Blvd and Avenue of the Stars.

The original route, which was endorsed by the MTA and the City of Beverly Hills would have taken the subway under Santa Monica Blvd and avoided nearly all residential areas. However, the MTA's forecast model now projects higher ridership by moving the stop one block south.

I am supportive of maximizing MTA ridership for the obvious reasons of increased revenue, decreased congestion and of course lower carbon emissions. However, I have my doubts that there would be markedly different ridership levels by moving the subway just one block, but let's assume for a minute that the MTA is correct.

The question I ask myself is: Does the benefit of this projected increased ridership outweigh the significant costs and unforeseen risks that the residents of Beverly Hills will have to incur?

This leads to a basic cost/benefit analysis, which I doubt the MTA has undertaken. As for the benefits, I will leave it to the MTA to publicly comment on exactly what their assumptions are that led them to the conclusion of increased ridership and how they quantify the economic benefit of this change.

I would also ask them to determine if the benefits of the route change outweigh the private costs that the residents of Beverly Hills may have to bare such as possible seismic damage, settlement, noise, vibration, etc. Does the MTA's analysis look holistically at both the public and private costs associated with this change? Even the MTA's own experts admit that there may be up to ? inch settlement and that there are ways to "mitigate" (not eliminate) other impacts during and post construction.

By selecting the alternate route, the MTA will be directly responsible for the black cloud that will likely hang over the SW Beverly Hills neighborhood for the next decade. What home buyer is going to pay full price for a home that is supposed to have a subway tunnel underneath it?

The magnitude of the uncertainty related to the construction issues could cause stagnation and value impairment of our real estate. This will be the case until the subway is completed and the impact is known, which could take over a decade. Does the MTA really want to inflict this pain onto so many residents? For most of us, our home is our most valuable asset and to think that its value could be substantially impaired to allow a subset of riders to walk one less block is unfathomable.

The MTA has done a commendable job in spearheading the development of the much needed Westside Extension and I truly hope that they will select the original and "locally preferred route" of Santa Monica Blvd instead of the route through my community and my family's most valuable assets: our home and our schools.

Shaking City Hall

Other Notes of Interest

By Rudy Cole

Does the city really need one assistant and two deputy city managers, especially now when we are drastically cutting services and staff in every agency and city department?

And whose brilliant idea was it to tear up Charleville at the same time repair work is being done on North Beverly, and access to North Crescent is blocked from Santa Monica Boulevard during construction of the Annenberg? An important part of the triangle looks like a war zone.

But first a word on staff organization: This is not about the competence of the people holding the jobs, although there are questions of empire building that have created morale problems at city hall.

Under the most recent organizational charts, Mahdi Aluzri is assistant city manager, with David Lightner and Cheryl Friedling holding the titles of deputy city manager, both reporting to Aluzri, who reports to City Manager Jeff Kolin.

Aluzri is a top professional with heavy experience in city divisions and departments. Before they were consolidated in one division, he had management jobs in both planning and building and safety Lightner also worked in other departments before advancing to the post of deputy. Friedling was mostly in the private sector, had no Beverly Hills experience prior to being hired as a deputy city manager for communications, and has now absorbed other responsibilities, including "economic sustainability." This latter chore was shuffled from Aluzri to Friedling, probably to rationalize her taking over as liaison to the Conference and Visitors Bureau and the Chamber of Commerce. Why and how her communication duties now include CVB and Chamber links did not sit well inside administrative offices.

True, City Manager Jeff Kolin needs some time to place his own crest on organization, and both Friedling and Lightner report

"through" Aluzri, but is the city manager's office too top heavy with chores better assigned to the various city divisions? Friedling's new duties were very professionally handled by a lower level staffer. It may also be quite chilling to have a person with the title of Deputy City Manager attend CVB meetings which supposedly operates independently of city government.

First, the positive: Although information flow still needs improvement, the city has made very significant advances in keeping the community informed on government actions and department activities. A very competent public relations person, Cheryl Burnett, has earned the respect of the working press.

However, for many years her duties were included in a city division, Community Services, and not through a deputy city manager.

Logically, that's where it belongs. What makes no sense is to divide "economic" matters between two deputies. Why does Lightner have economic development and Friedling economic sustainability?

One of former City Manager Rod Wood most significant reorganization moves was to combine various departments into more manageable divisions. He united planning and building and safety into Community Development and placed all kinds of duties, including library and events inside Community Services. The city now has seven different divisions reporting to the city manager.

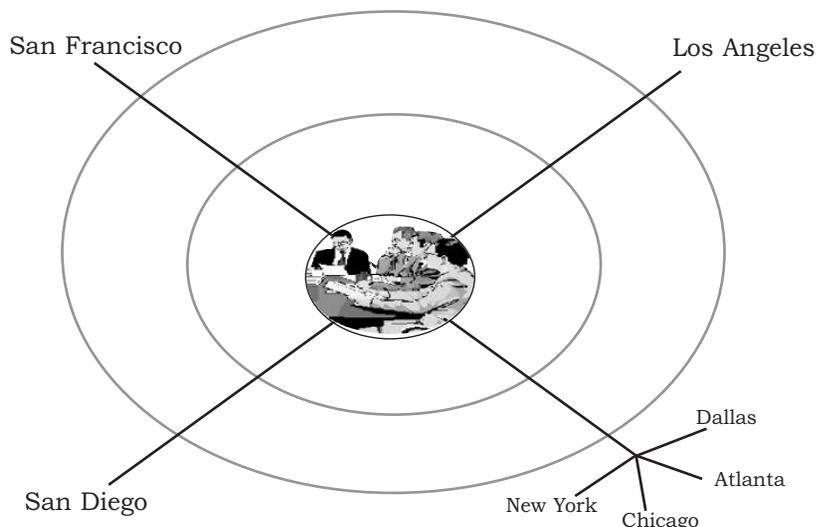

Under the city manager form of government, each division and department is under the direction of the city manager, not the council. That office hires and fires everyone except the city attorney and city clerk, both of those are council responsibilities. What has become somewhat muddled is the request for support or assistance by councilmembers to assistant and deputy city managers, sometimes without running the chores through the city manager or even with a council majority approval. Yes, that does help enhance the status of the deputy, but it sometimes makes for duplication of efforts or time spent on projects that have little chance of gaining majority council backing.

What also must be seen as a waste of resources is the possible hiring of a "search" firm to find a replacement for Steve Miller who recently retired as head of Community Services. Two highly competent staff members, trained and selected by Miller, will obviously advance to lead that Division. Aside from our commitment to promote from within whenever possible, this time there should be no doubt of both qualifications and merit. No need to throw money at head hunters to see if someone in Bakersfield could also handle the job.

More important is the need to maintain city services in the face of far more drastic losses in revenue than anyone expected. How and where cuts are made could impact the quality of life in our village for years.

Losing competent city staff members instead of reducing other expenditures is not in the public interest. When an experienced staffer goes, so does the knowledge and experience that has made this city one of the best managed in the nation. We can hold off on street repairs, but replacing a knowledgeable and competent city inspector is very counter-productive as are cuts in police and fire services.

Councilmember John Mirisch took a hit in a letter to the editor in another newspaper. The writer strongly objected to Mirisch's efforts to limit medical office buildings in Beverly Hills.

In a sense, both the correspondent and Mirisch were right, and also wrong.

Mirisch was faulted for using city powers to control the free market by zoning. But that ship sailed many years ago.

Municipal governments do have the responsibility to determine the best, most viable use of private property, through zoning and adoptions of a general plan. Without that "police power" there would be chaos in land use.

Included in that authority are uses that are most economically advantageous. Some years back, the city adopted stringent ordinances limiting financial institutions in the business triangle. Why? As one example, state law exempts most of these, including savings and loans and banks, from paying many city taxes, including sales tax. The ordinance was enacted to encourage tax paying retailing, and it worked.

But the other side of the issue, and where I feel Mirisch is wrong, is in making the ban on medical city wide. The original ordinance intent was to limit medical uses in the business triangle. At one point, a large percentage of office rentals inside our most expensive commercial area was indeed medical, with little or no ground floor retailing. The then city council wanted to reverse this by adopting the medical use ordinance. The real purpose was to create more ground floor retailing and the tool was requiring more parking for medical buildings.

As a result, most new medical found space in offices east of Doheny and little in new construction.

What Mirisch is not seeing realistically is that the east Wilshire area is not likely to attract entertainment related industries and even if they did, it might have a reverse impact on our economy. Any talent agency outside the business district could more easily place visitors in the two leading Los Angeles hotels right on our border and within blocks of Wilshire and Robertson, as one example. These same professionals also could dine and entertain clients at these hotels and at many first rate restaurants within walking distance, but paying taxes to West Hollywood and Los Angeles.

Another serious impact on limiting medical anywhere in our city is the pressure it creates to raise rents for our remaining docs. Since there is more demand for medical than almost any other office space use in the current economy, the artificial limitation the city might create, and Mirisch supports, could not only increase rents but also medical costs.

To place all medical in one do not build category is also impractical and outdated. The medical type uses in our city are not the same as what was here when the original ordinance was adopted. Today, many practices are cosmetic and, a study might well show, produce customers for nearby retailers and restaurants. Certainly, the shops on Bedford Drive, which has a very intensive medical presence, does benefit from their proximity to the modernized and renovated medical building's on the street. It is a very successful mix. The medical buildings have few vacancies and the shops and eateries on the street flourish.

Yes, the economy will improve and we will see more demand for office space and that could level out medical and non-medical demand. However, the quest for another William Morris will not lead to rentals on our eastern borders. As for multi-plex theaters, that industry continues to shrink and even when it was more aggressive and space was available in Beverly Hills, they did not come to our village.

Medical building developers and the city need to be partners and not adversaries. New, well designed buildings in the eastern portion of our city could have a very positive impact on improvements in a neglected section of Beverly Hills even if they are mostly medical. (For the record: I have in the past represented medical business interests and medical associations.)

Speaking of development plans, the speculation of what could or might happen to the former Robinson's-May property, or 9900 Wilshire as a project to create luxury condominiums on the site was called, remains very much in limbo.

Carlos Slim, probably one of the richest men in the world, has the current controlling interest of the financial groups that took over the property when Candy and Candy defaulted on their financing. But Slim has not approached the city with any new ideas on uses, and the condo market, at least for now, has diminished in demand.

With Beverly Hills facing more and more competition from LA Live, at least one councilmember had a very interesting proposal: Encourage development of a major resort, convention friendly hotel. We do lose convention business because we are not able to supply sufficiently large meeting rooms for major users, including trade shows and conventions.

Councilmember Nancy Krasne also had another suggestion: The city should encourage Beny Alagem, owner of the Beverly Hilton, to purchase the 9900 property and make both a combined, new hotel grouping which would include a convention center.

Alagem, who has made important improvements and upgrading of the Beverly Hilton, also landing him an additional star for the property, still has the ability to create a Waldorf Astoria, the voter approved addition for the Hilton property, which will probably not happen until the economy makes a more dramatic improvement and hotels are able to once again obtain bank financing.

However, there is some irony in the Krasne proposal: She was a strong opponent of the Hilton expansion plan. Her explanation is the serious challenge Beverly Hills faces from downtown Los Angeles' LA Live. "We need to be realistic and face our revenue needs," she explains.

Still revising our list of people who have major impacts on our village and realized, although I did include the Fenton family, I failed to single out Frank. I did list his many accomplishments when a park area on La Cienega was named in his honor. But for the record, no other former or present leader has held as many offices as Frank Fenton, and always with distinction. Incredibly, Frank has been school board member, board president, member and chair of two city commissions, the elected City Treasurer and finally councilmember and mayor. That is a record it will be hard to beat or even duplicate.

The legendary Monty Hall and Rabbi Jack Pressman did outstanding job leading the memorial service for former Mayor Maxwell Hillary Salter last Sunday. A standing room only crowd filled Temple Beth Am's enormous auditorium with more waiting outside for the reception. Speakers included long time friend County Supervisor Zev Yaroslavsky who recalled their years long community and political association.

Learning of Salter's passing, of natural causes, Vice President Joe Biden made an unexpected visit to the Salter residence on North Linden, complete with a cavalcade of security people.

More reminisces of Salter's life and times next week, but our condolences again to Janet and the large Salter family. It was also touching to see a long time family friend and helper, the always friendly and well-organized Ana, welcoming visitors and controlling her own grief.

BHEA President Mark Frenn weighs in on taking over the teacher's union

By Jessica Miller

You have been a Beverly Vista math teacher for many years. Why teach math?

I actually started teaching in Pasadena as a French teacher. The French Department was shrinking and the Math department was growing. I had a bit of a math background so I went back and finished my course work to get my credentials in math as well. I never went back to teaching French.

Why did you want to become union president?

I had lots of experience working with administration. My biggest concern was that I would be pulled out of the classroom.

What really got me to take the position is the fact I believe I have the ability to move our association forward.

Tell us what the job entails.

There are many official duties outlined in the bylaws. I run the meetings and coordinate the newsletters.

The president is also involved in bargaining. I pick the bargaining members. I'm also the face of BHEA, so there are a lot of unofficial duties connected with that as well. Some of those include meeting with other stakeholders in town, and working in conjunction with the teachers.

What is on BHEA's upcoming agenda?

Well we are currently dealing with a lot of transfers. Teachers are moving from one school to the other. I'm making sure the transfers go smoothly. It can be a very emotional process and I'd like to be able to help.

We also have lots of new administration at the school sites, as well as in Human Resources and Business Services.

I'd like to see more people involved in activities. We need many people on all levels. We're here to foster a sense of connection.

You were critical of the Board's dismissal of [Beverly Vista principal] Irene Stern in 2006. How do you feel about her returning?

The two situations are totally separate in my mind. Yes, I was upset with process of which she was removed. We were not successful in seeking a replacement for our school.

We really wanted the best principal possible. After two rounds of interviews with different pools of candidates the Board did not find the best candidate possible.

I can't think of anyone better than Irene Stern who has experience with our school and with our district. She can come in and really get us running right away. I was very receptive of her coming back.

This will give us time to really find the best candidate for the permanent position. It's good for our students, staff, and district. She can get us up and running right away.

The current Board of Education is the first one in recent memory where four members were endorsed by BHEA. Do you notice a difference in the Board from before?

I certainly do. The communication between the Board and the BHEA is stronger. This Board has given credence to teachers who have indicated there are problems in their department. In the past, members have thought their input was falling on deaf ears.

Now I see open communication with all parties. We're seeing a real effort to get a line-item budget going. No one is above anyone else.

We really are all entitled to see how the money is being spent and which programs are effective, and which are not. We're basically promoting the things that are working and replacing or fixing the things that are not.

The previous Board relied heavily on TOSA's (teachers on special assignment), which many veteran teachers felt was ineffective. What type of professional development do you feel is effective?

TOSA's and professional development are two different issues in my mind. I was a participant in the Bosse leadership academy classes. There were a number of speakers and topics that could be very useful for professional development.

Professional development needs to come from the staff that is being developed. Staff needs to come up with the ideas for the development. That way they will have a greater buy-in, rather than having the administration decide what the needs are for the teachers.

It's really important for teachers to realize they are their own PR people, and to be sensitive to how other people view them and their programs.

We need to look at our own individual strengths and weaknesses, and learn how to capitalize on the strengths while working on the weaknesses.

What obstacles do you foresee for BHEA?

I'm really not looking for obstacles. I don't foresee any significant obstacles at this time. That doesn't mean there won't be bumps in the road.

Changes within our current administration will provide us with a way to move forward with a clean slate.

There always will be bumps in the road, but I'm hoping they will be minimal and we will be able to smooth them out without too much difficulty.

There is a possibility our economic condition of the state could add pressures, so we'll have to deal with those as they come. Right now I'm just trying to focus on the positive.

Your Beverly Vista teaching colleague Merle Bauer will be serving as BHEA Vice President. Tell us about that.

Merle [Bauer] and I have been colleagues for the 17 years I've been at Beverly Vista. We've worked as a team. A strong, solid team. Throughout that process we became good friends.

That is an advantageous position for me to be in. Not only is Merle a great friend, and someone I trust with absolutely everything; but she is also one of the strongest and most respected teachers in the district. She is also a respected member of the community.

Merle will bring a level of professionalism and credibility to our Association. Most of all, I know I won't be alone and I'll have someone working closely with me on the decisions I have to make.

Outgoing President Chris Bushee has been President of BHEA for nearly 5 years. Did he give you any advice?

Chris Bushee said communication was going to be key. He cautioned me, and said to be organized and not get overwhelmed, and to keep things in perspective.

He said a lot of time would be spent with email and newsletters and with general communication.

He was also very envious of me because I'm inheriting such a positive situation. I couldn't agree more.

IN THE WORKS

The Weekly's interview with Public Works
Commission Chair Steve Weinglass

By Jessica Miller

What is the commission working on right now?

The ongoing water issue! I always ask people, when was our last good sustained rain? Well everyone thinks last winter we had some snow and a few rainy days so everything should be solved right? Absolutely not. We would need at least 6 straight consecutive winters like that to fill the shortage we are experiencing. So, it's the idea of conservation. Let me say this, people of the city are doing very well. The majority of people are getting the message.

Another issue coming up is trash removal services. Two of my fellow commissioners and myself had lunch the other day, and after lunch we walked down the alley to take a look. Right now I'm a big fan of [the commissioners] Howard Fisher, Joseph Stabler, Peter Foldvary, Farshid Joe Shooshani. I can ensure people this is a crew that really reads their docket and rings staff of public works to be honest.

How has the commission changed since you were first appointed as vice chairperson?

We are taking a harder look on cutting costs. We are in the process of examining, only examining, the idea of setting up Beverly Hills as its own utilities company.

That might mean a large savings to people here in Beverly Hills. We are challenging Southern California Edison. We pay and everyone else benefits. So we can wind up playing less, and reexamine our contracts with Edison. Right now they charge us on a tier level. Another option is we can wind up being our own company and at least for our money get immediate service. We're looking to break away. Things are moving on, people should be reassured the commission is ready to take new look.

Tell us about your career outside of the commission.

I am first and foremost a musician. Since I was 14 and I'm 61, so I've been playing for 47 years now. I've played everything from guitar to piano, keyboard, electric bass, drums, and trumpet. I've enjoyed my career.

I also owned solar company and bookstore. I've been a real estate broker, and I was second in command of a maintenance fleet on east coast. You want to be a musician, you learn to do a lot of things! I put up with a "feast or famine" life style, and then it was time to raise a family.

Currently, I've become a music supervisor on films, and I'm producing. I see such talent. I'm so fortunate to have grown up through the "players era", where musicians play five or six nights a week. Young musicians always ask me how to do it. Put the pressure on! Get out there and play.

Last year, after the installation of the smart water meters, there were some financial problems. The system had some problems reading the meters, and the commission was behind in billing cycles. Has that subsided?

Were up to date now! They are active online. That was a major change for the city. Were in such great shape. It took 8 months to do so, but when you think about what we've done, it's amazing. We changed out every meter in the city and got them online.

When you think about the past a meter was read every 30 days, sometimes more. How long would it take before we knew there was a problem? Today we read it 4 times a day! The computer throws up red flags for us so we know immediately. Think about the savings. It's huge on a conservation level, and for the consumer as well.

What are your goals for the commission this year?

The prime directive of the Commission is to inform the City Council, and they implement and vote on the issues. Our focus is to continue to really save citizens money. We are petitioning all people who have contracts with our city to take a 10 percent reduction, to help support the city you know. Were using you're services, and you want to stay working with Beverly Hills? We've got to knuckle down, you can knuckle down too. You can help us out by reducing costs. It's not going kill anybody. If you want to have a longevity relationship with our city, which we hold very high, show support in these rough times of the economy.

Tell us about your family. What do they think about your new position?

I have a full house. Although only one is left in house. I should mention everyone's names so I don't get any flack: Sarah Robinson, Jennifer Weiss, Richard Weiss, Antonia Carlotta, and Cassandra Shaw.

Cassandra is a 17 year old senior at Beverly High. She's a cheerleader. She's so busy. The kids love that I'm musician, although sometimes it's a thankless job.

How did you get involved with the commission?

During when Steve Webb was on the council and I did team Beverly Hills. I saw the ad in paper and I applied. I was specifically interested in Public Works. I really wanted that commission.

I have a background in things like fleet maintenance, real estate, landscaping, and basic development. I'm very keen about city planning and urban development. I've owned small businesses in the past. I had solar corporation in Maryland.

My earliest schooling was math and physics, so I'm a big fan of engineers. Now, I get to work with best engineers in the city and I appreciate that.

Last year there were talks of the city using more LED lighting rather than normal combustion lighting, to follow in the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power's footsteps. Has that happened?

Most certainly. That's one of my personal things. We are petitioning LED lighting for all of the secondary streets in Beverly Hills. My personal take is this, technology is doubling every year.

We are about to start a major project on Wilshire Blvd. When it was brought to us about a year and half ago, the technology for LED was half of what it is today. When you replace street lighting, you have to worry about regulations of the illumination of the street. The street has to be illuminated to a certain amount of watts so that accidents can't be thrown back at the city.

We can't just "willy nilly" put up LED's on Wilshire Blvd if the third lane isn't lit enough. We could be liable for accidents. We are right on the cusp of the creation of better LED's that we can use, but we're already getting ready to install new wiring for lower voltage capability for the city.

Is LED lighting more expensive? What are the benefits?

It takes less voltage to run. Don't forget, the city pays an electric bill too. So they cut costs for city. It would reduce all voltage requirements. Now we have to marry that desire with existing with the existing technology.

I believe that when we do install the bulbs, we'll find LEDs much more proficient. They're not that much more expensive. Especially with supply and demand. As more and more cities are turning to this, more and more companies are manufacturing the fixtures to be complaint for LED adaptations. That is what my engineers ensure us here in town. By the time anything is ready, the fixtures we install will be adaptable for LED lighting.

What kind of technology does the commission plan to use in the future?

Well, our water meters, the LED lighting, the low flush toilets. We have a project afoot in which city buildings will start using solar energy.

Remember, some projects are public works are not projects of immediate usage. We have to always think thirty to forty years ahead. We know things will improve. We're okaying things for the future.

The future is coming, that's a given. Why not start getting ready now?

Tell us about working with the other commissioners.

Howard Fisher is a lawyer. Peter Foldvary is an MRI physician, a scientist. Farshid Joe Shooshani owns a metal steel corporation. Joseph Stabler is a real-estate developer. It is so beneficial because we each have our own things to keep track of.

I don't know if it was by design of the city, or how we all fell together, but it is all very good. For an example, [Peter] Foldvary took one of the wireless meters home with him one night to manually see the accuracy and flaws. He came back to us and said he really liked it. He's a civilian and a Beverly Hills homeowner. He took a hard look. We're hands on.

We are going to go take a look at a new trash facility at end of the week. Our entire staff is so excellent. Our team of engineers is high class.

Last year Beverly Hills had to cut back on water usage, what do you expect for water usage in the future?

The future is a combination of things. A. Public Awareness of conservation. B. There are more products available to us to help with conservation of water. We have the low flush toilets, and better sprinklers.

We know 60 percent of the water in Beverly Hills goes to landscaping. Now you can get a smart sprinkler system. They will not turn on in the rain, even though we don't have many rainy days. You can also cut down on the timer.

The truth is, we do not know the future. And anyone who does? Congratulations! We have to be intelligent and ready.

Is the commission doing anything in an effort to help the city "go green"?

Most certainly. That's what everything we've talked about is supposed to help with. I've attending meetings to help identity our carbon footprint. Policemen ride bicycles for routes, it takes fewer people to read our new meters.

We're reducing our carbon footprint. Yes, we as a commission want to cut costs. However our pursuit of conservationism will not stop. The more the city can show, the more people will want to get involved.

THE CITY AND I HAVE LOST A GREAT FRIEND

To have had the friendship of Maxwell (Mayor Max) Hillary Salter is something so special and unique it is hard to define. Few people I have ever known were as caring, giving and so much fun to be with as Max.

The Salter family donations to such a wide range of philanthropies, cultural, and educational causes is legendary. But more than his financial generosity, his involvement gave everything he supported instant credibility.

As an eight year councilmember and twice mayor of Beverly Hills, he set a high bar for personal integrity and leadership. Not only did he bring his valuable business experience to Beverly Hills, he instilled a sense of service that impacted every level of city government. He insisted on excellence, and he gave as much as he demanded.

Betty and I were indeed fortunate to have Janet and Max as true friends. It was indeed a pleasure to have served with him on the board of the Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts, to share so many evenings of concerts and theatre and to enjoy his great good humor and love of people. It was so appropriate that the new venue at the high school would be named The Salter Family Theatre.

Max is gone, but what he had accomplished for his family, for our country and for the community he loved will never be forgotten.

I know I will always remember Max.
