City staff to recommend rejection of Roxbury Park bids

The City issued a press release Tuesday morning, stating City staff would recommend the City Council reject three bids submitted for the demolition of the existing community center and construction of a new two-story, 26,000 square-foot Roxbury Park Community Center when the City Council considers the bids on Dec. 6.

The press release said the bids came in "significantly higher" than the $14.65 million estimate provided in the City's Capital Improvement Project (CIP) budget. The bids did not include contingencies or administrative costs, which the City estimated would bring the project total to $16.8 million, based on the lowest bid of just under $14.4 million.

According to the bid document, the scope of work would include "the staged demolition of the existing community center, grading, construction of a new approximately 26,000 sf [square foot] community center with a roof top solar panel installation, parking lot, basketball and tennis courts, minor street improvements, storm drains, catch basins, site utilities, picnic facilities, landscape and irrigation."

W.E. O'Neil, Suffolk-Roel, and C.W. Driver responded with base bids of $14,640,000, $14,736,559 and $15,194,000 respectively. A bid summary on the City's website shows adjusted bids, taking into account additives and deductives, at $14,390,000, $14,417,265 and $14,962,000 for W.E. O'Neil, Suffolk-Roel, and C.W. Driver respectively.

The deductives were for the proposed climbing wall and the children's tot lot play area, and the additive was for the possibility of installing 36" box trees instead of 24" box trees. Director of Community Services Steve Zoet referred the Weekly's request for comment to Therese Kosterman in the City's Office of Communications. According to Kosterman, the climbing wall and the tot lot were proposed as deductives because they can be taken out of the project without a major redesign.

The three companies that bid on the project were among 12 companies that responded to the City's request for qualifications, and they were the only three companies that qualified

Lia Sargent, Gloria Stroock and Shelby Kocee

The community center has been a contentious topic in the community. Though the City Council agrees the community center needs improvements, Councilmembers Lili Bosse and John Mirisch have been vocal in expressing concerns about the scale of the proposed project.

"I'm not surprised that the bids came back more than staff had anticipated, and I feel that even the numbers that came back do not reflect the costs because the extra programming and staff time that would be required [to operate the community center] was not factored in, and those in my opinion are significant costs," Bosse said. "I feel that going forward there has to be a new process where the vision of Roxbury Park reflects what the residents and the community want."

Bosse said she was open to the possibility of renovating the existing community center or constructing a new building on the same scale and within the same footprint of the existing facility.

"I also feel that if there's any proposal of a building that has more intensified use, we must have an environmental impact report and have required parking," Bosse said.

If the City Council rejects the bids next Tuesday, Mayor Barry Brucker said he would recommend hosting a community meeting in January to get feedback on the project, and would suggest the City Council and Recreation and Parks Commission liaisons work with City staff, architects, and the community to come up with a recommendation for a likely scaled down project that meets the budget.

Brucker said he was disappointed the bids came back high, but he said "it's an excellent opportunity for another look at the project and another opportunity for getting additional feedback from the community."

Mirisch, Lightner to discuss Horace Mann parking structure at PTA meeting today

Following up on a suggestion made at the Nov. 9 Board of Education study session, Councilmember John Mirisch and Deputy City Manager David Lightner will attend today's Horace Mann PTA meeting at 8:30 a.m. in the school cafeteria to discuss the possibility of including public parking at the City's expense in the proposed Horace Mann parking structure and to address questions from parents.

Mirisch and Lightner proposed the idea at last month's study session, during which the Board refined its construction and modernization plans for the Horace Mann campus that will include construction of a 62,000 square-foot, two-story building on the corner of Robertson and Charleville boulevards that will house the middle school, library and a new multipurpose room among other things. The Board also decided to double the amount of proposed subterranean parking spaces for the school's own use for a total of 100 spaces, which will be located under the proposed building and the turf playing field, along Robertson Boulevard.

The Board voted Nov. 22 to formalize approval of plans for Horace Mann.

The City is interested in including public parking in the proposed Horace Mann parking structure in order to revitalize the nearby area. Mirisch acknowledged that security concerns needed to be addressed so that unauthorized individuals would not have access to the campus during school hours. One suggestion is to provide two separate entrances to the parking structure: one for public use and one for school use.

Following the study session, Horace Mann PTA President Howard Goldstein said he had

SUMMARY NOTICE

NOTICE OF PROPOSED ADOPTION OF AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF BEVERLY HILLS AMENDING THE BEVERLY HILLS MUNICIPAL CODE TO ADOPT A VIEW RESTORATION PROGRAM FOR THE TROUSDALE ESTATES AREA OF THE CITY

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on December 6, 2011, at 7:00 p.m., or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in the Council Chambers of the City Hall, 455 N. Rexford Drive, Beverly Hills, CA 90210, the Council of the City of Beverly Hills will consider adopting an ordinance entitled "Ordinance of the City of Beverly Hills amending the Beverly Hills Municipal Code to adopt a view restoration program for the Trousdale Estates area of the City." A summary of that Ordinance follows:

Summary of Ordinance

An Ordinance of the City of Beverly Hills amending the Beverly Hills Municipal Code to adopt a view restoration program for the Trousdale Estates area of the City.

Trousdale Estates is defined in the zoning code as all property located north of Doheny Road and east of Schuyler road, except that land zoned R-1.X, and that portion of lot A of the Doheny Ranch Tract northwesterly of Tract Numbers 24485 and 24486, commonly referred to as the Greystone Mansion Property.

The City's intent in developing a view restoration ordinance is to restore and preserve certain views from substantial disruption by the growth of privately owned vegetation while also providing for the following important City goals: residential privacy and security; garden quality of the City; safety and stability of the hillsides; and, importance of trees and vegetation in the City as an integral part of a sustainable environment.

The ordinance proposes to achieve these goals by establishing view criteria and a review process with an emphasis on early neighbor resolution of view restoration complaints.

The ordinance includes four main components:

1. View Regulations (includes definitions and findings that must be made by a reviewing authority);

2. Exemption Area (establish parameters for foliage not subject to the regulations);

3. Review Process (multi-step process including Initial Neighbor Outreach and Mediation that could result in a Planning Commission or City Council decision);

4. Enforcement (one-time enforcement of a City decision with any costs borne by property owner receiving the decision to restore a view).

Trousdale Estates neighbors with view issues may address their issues in any manner they choose; however, if a property owner wishes to preserve the opportunity to have a case heard by the Planning Commission, the City's review process must be completed.

Application fees for a City view restoration permit hearing before the Planning Commission would be borne by the view owner (property owners alleging disruption of views). Costs for restoring views, e.g. tree trimming, could be borne by the view owner or foliage owner (property owner with foliage alleged to disrupt a view), depending on when resolution is reached and the level of participation by the foliage owner.

This is a separate ordinance from an ordinance adopted by the City Council in August, 2011, that established additional maximum height regulations for fences and hedges on certain slopes between properties in Trousdale Estates.

Guidelines to the view restoration ordinance are being developed by staff and will be discussed by the Planning Commission on December 19, 2011 at or after 1:30 p.m.

A certified copy of the entirety of the text of the Ordinance is available in the office of the City Clerk, 455 N. Rexford Drive, Beverly Hills, CA 90210 and is available for public inspection at that location. Interested persons can contact the Planning Department at any time by calling (310)285-1135.

heard from a number of parents who were concerned about the possibility of the school hosting commercial parking. Suter, longtime Beverly High art teacher, passes at 86

Lyle Suter, longtime Beverly High art teacher who founded the multicultural permit program, passed away on Nov. 8 following a lengthy battle with Alzheimer's disease. He was 86.

Suter decided to pursue teaching after years of working in the art department of Warsaw Studios, a New York City advertising agency on Madison Avenue. His commute and long work hours were preventing him from spending time with his family, so the family moved to Los Angeles in 1962.

Suter found a teaching job at Mark Twain Junior High in the early 1960s, and a couple of years later, he learned about the opening at Beverly High.

"When he applied for the position, because he was coming from the commercial art industry his presentation knocked the socks off of [then-principal] Dr. [F. Willard] Robinson," Suter's wife Joan said.

Suter and Robinson formed a partnership that led to the establishment of the multicultural permit program in 1969. Joan, an administrator in LAUSD's volunteer program, also played a role in starting the program, which brought students from middle and upper class minority neighborhoods like Leimert Park and Baldwin Hills, to Beverly High.

"We worked together on each side of the aisle to bring about this multicultural program because we really wanted to bring minority students in there who could compete with Beverly students who were on the same economic level," Joan said. Beverly High principal Carter Paysinger was in one of the earliest classes of students in the multicultural permit program.

"The program was designed to bring cultures together," Paysinger said at last week's Board of Education meeting. "If you could have been at the funeral, it was the epitome of what the program was designed for. There are so many people who are grateful still to this day for the program and Lyle and his vision."

Paysinger said Suter made himself available to students who needed support.

"Lyle Suter was that strength for us, that support for us and he was loved by so many people," Paysinger said.

Suter's son Michael Suter, who graduated from Beverly High in 1975, said dozens of his father's past students have reached out to him with phone calls and Facebook messages. Michael recently founded the Beverly Hills

High School Minority Alumni Association to help classmates keep in touch.

"[Lyle] just stood up for truth, stood up for kids for what he felt was right not just with minority kids, but he was also strongly committed to kids that were already at Beverly," Joan said. "Those same students went home to their parents and talked about issues. The students were the real heroes in my opinion of the changes that happened at Beverly."

Joan displayed Suter's art in her home following his funeral at Riverside National Cemetery last month. Suter, who retired in 1988, moved to Palm Desert in retirement.

In lieu of flowers, please consider a donation to the Alzheimer's Association research program on behalf of Lyle Suter.

Architectural Commission okays Beverly Hills Brownie Company; South Robertson retail/office renovation

North Beverly Drive will become a little bit sweeter with the arrival of Beverly Hills Brownie Company. On Nov. 16, the Architectural Commission unanimously approved designs for the shop at 315 North Beverly Drive, with the exception of the signage.

Commission Chair Fran Cohen said the sign could not be approved because it does not comply with the municipal code, which sets a maximum height of 14 inches for signage on an awning. The applicant proposed three lines of text and a logo to be printed on the shop's awning that did not fit in 14 inches.

"The Commission recommended that the codes be amended to allow the applicant to incorporate the sign on the awning larger than 14 inches since it is part of the applicant's design," Cohen said.

Since amending the municipal code requires City Council approval, Cohen said it was likely the applicant would have to wait at least several months before putting up the sign.

"The design looks fabulous and everyone on the Commission was impressed with the quality of the design," Cohen said. "I think this is going to be a great addition to Beverly Drive."

The Commission also offered unanimous approval to a retail/office building at 325 South Robertson Blvd.

"As we know, many buildings on Robertson in that portion [of the City] need to be renovated," Cohen said. "This architect had a very simple approach and very clean design that he came up with and the Commission was very happy with the outcome."

Cohen said she liked the architect's design for the building's courtyard and landscaping.

Some news updates

And schools in flux By Rudy Cole

Before we update the convoluted, ubiquitous subway route battle and examine the likelihood of a less confrontational—with each other and the city—school board, some more pleasing news:

Unconfirmed: The former Friar's home on Little Santa Monica may become an artistic wonder for our city. Sources have told us that the owners have been talking to famed architect Frank Gehry and that the design concept will include three separate innovative structures with very dramatic facades for a condo project within code.

Gehry's credits include Walt Disney Hall, the Guggenheim in Spain and the American Center in Paris among his countless award-winning efforts.

This could be a brilliant improvement at one of our critical gateways to the city. Now, if only city officials, residents and the owners of what is called the "Gateway Project" on the north side of the same street can get their acts together and come to some rational agreements, a decades-long eyesore might just be removed and beautified too.

A fourth major food market could come to city owned property on north Canon Drive, offering shoppers one more alternative to Gelson's. Currently Beverly Hills Market and Whole Foods on North Crescent and Pavilions, a Vons subsidiary on South Beverly Drive are our options, all with very different kinds of formats. More on this soon.

However, the really important food news of the week is that you won't need to make the arduous journey to downtown "Chinatown" for your beef dip sandwiches. The crusty 100-year plus favorite, Philippe's, now has a real, and far better, honestly, competitor at our very own Circa 55 at the Beverly Hilton. More moist, softer buns and the most tasty beef west of Kansas City—one bite and you will forget Alameda Street and long waiting lines.

Unlike some other hotel restaurants that never seem to change their menus, Circa 55 has a new one that is a major improvement and almost, but not quite, makes me forgive them for abandoning their luncheon buffets. Aside from the French Dip, the "Buffalo" Chili with corn bread is also an excellent addition.

Other food news: Our venerable Nate 'n Al's was recently praised in Los Angeles Magazine. What makes this newsworthy is that publication's frequent omission of the eatery that has long been a Beverly Hills favorite. Among the regulars are a weekly breakfast of some top law enforcement types including our own Chief David Snowden and the highly regarded Sheriff's Department Commander Buddy Goldman, who until recently was head Sheriff in West Hollywood and now has a desk closer to Sheriff Lee Baca downtown.

Good and bad food news: Our worldfamous eatery, Spago, will temporarily close next April for major remodeling. A small army of luncheon regulars including Fred Hayman and Bob Goldman will have to search out alternative dining venues. Tentative plans include a movable cover for the patio which has to shut down during inclement weather. No estimates yet on time tables, but the Montage and all the Drago diners on Canon will have the welcome signs out.

And speaking of our most famous chef, Puck's new restaurant at the recently reopened Bel Air hotel is receiving high marks, as expected, but there are considerable rumblings about the design of both the restaurant, bar areas and the new hotel additions. Insiders insist Puck wants some modifications made.

Now that the most bizarre election in our city's history has been officially declared over, what kind of leadership changes are in store for our school district when board members Steven Fenton and Myra Lurie leave and Noah Margo and Lewis Hall take their seats?

Hopefully one that is less contentious both internally and in how they handle relations with the city council. Also, a top priority is a more clearly defined role for the board and the school superintendent.

It would be very wrong to assume that either Margo or Lewis will take positions on education matters because of ties to some present or soon to leave board members. Both are bright, very independent and anxious to help create a working relationship with their colleagues.

In a final bewildering move, the current board will not hold its installation at an evening meeting that is more convenient for community and education leaders, but has opted for an afternoon ceremony.

Following the induction of Margo, Hall and Dr. Brian Goldberg, who led all contenders comfortably in the election, the board is expected to unanimously choose Dr. Goldberg as president and Jake Manaster as vice president. Goldberg succeeds Lisa Korbatov.

Fenton's decision to voluntarily leave the board after only one term means the end, at least for now, of a family tradition of public service. His father Frank, as we have previously reported, set a record of multiple kinds of public service including board president, elected city treasurer, city commissioner and finally mayor and councilmember.

Myra Lurie, who served two terms on the board, her last two with members with an entirely different philosophy of leadership, will be honored in a private event given by some of her closest friends and civic leaders this weekend.

Not the most enjoyable time in public service for Lurie to find almost all those with whom she served and who had similar education values gone, replaced by members with different agendas and styles of service. During her eight years, Lurie allies such as Dr. Myra Demeter, John Millan, Alissa Roston and Nooshin Meshkaty either lost elections or decided not to run again.

Lurie was both the board workaholic and intellectual maverick. Even those with whom she frequently jousted on the board admit to her intellectual capabilities, her compassion and her enormous energy.

She was liaison to associations of school boards, a member of not only the board but the executive committee of the Beverly Hills Chamber of Commerce and, of course, maintained her strong ties to PTA—her starting point in school involvement. Even when she became a board loner, her colleagues appreciated her forthright manner and attention to detail.

Hubby David may well welcome the more calm period in their lives, but she will be missed.

Interesting side note: With Lurie's departure, the board will have only one member who is a lawyer, Jake Manaster. How many lawyers on the law making city council? None.

Dr. Goldberg could follow an example set by another board member, now mayor, Barry Brucker when he first took over the board president's job. Brucker had often been at odds with his colleagues, but when it was his turn to preside, he became more of a conciliator and consensus builder. What the community really wants is a board that is far less vitriolic in how it relates to the city council, works internally with less friction, holds more efficient meetings and, most important, understands the varying roles of the board and the school superintendent.

This new board simply has no history of political infighting. Lewis Hall and Noah Margo are both moderate types, not really political, and they will be as independent as Jake Manaster, who has often been a moderating influence. None should have problems in working with either Goldberg or Lisa Korbatov, the retiring president.

This is not the first board to have internal differences, some classic tiffs were all too obvious when Lillian Raffel and Richard Stone both served. Gerald Lunn Jr. and Brucker had their differences with their colleague and Marty Prince, a most sensitive and caring person it would be hard to find, had a tough time with some colleagues during his time on the board.

Yes, a number of former board members went on to serve on the city council including Robert M. Dulin, Vicki Reynolds, Frank Fenton, Barry Brucker, Phyllis Seaton, Mark Egerman, Dr. Willie Brien and Charlotte Spadaro.

Richard Stone went the opposite direction—from city council and mayor, to board member and president.

We used to have four elected offices in Beverly Hills; City Council, School Board, City Treasurer and Municipal Court. But when our courts were consolidated some 20 years ago, judges were elected not in local court districts, but in all of Los Angeles County.

Who was the last judge elected locally? Stone's son Richard Stone Jr., who defeated Mitch Dawson, later a city commissioner. The only local who held three of the top elected jobs was Robert M. Dulin, who was appointed to our court, which we then shared with West Hollywood, by Gov. Pat Brown. He was mayor and board president before ending his career as a judge.

One other board member became a municipal judge, George Zucker (1959 to 1966) and board member Ruth Bard, a juvenile court referee. Frank Fenton is the only board member to win election to council and city treasurer.

Former board members still very active in education and civic life include Mel Spitz, Herb Young, Lillian Raffel, Alissa Roston, Vicki Reynolds, AJ Willmer.

Some other board trivia? Spadaro went from being an animal rights activist to become charged with animal cruelty. Jo Ann Koplin resigned to continue a relationship with a school administrator who took a job in another district and Allison Okyle, is the only board member to marry a mayor, Thomas Levyn.

Bernice Hutter served the longest, from 1961 to 1977, Florence Thalheimer, who lost to Hutter, had a sex education program on local television, Jerry Weinstein was attorney for the soft porno film industry, and Phyllis Seaton became the first woman councilmember and mayor. Ernest Ach, one of many stock broker members, was an important part of our library's success and until his recent death, was a volunteer at the library's great used book store.

Dr. Arthur Malin was our only member psychiatrist, no comments needed, Nooshin Meshkaty the first and only member of the Persian community to serve.

Two most famous names: Peggy Goldwyn, who married into the illustrious movie family and Max Factor III, the cosmetic icons, although Max always made it clear he was the third with the name, not the grandson in the family.

What were board member Dana Tomarken's ties to the city? Her mother, Annabelle Heiferman was once mayor and Tomarken is the "T" in the FTA event planning company.

More historical notes: Vicki Reynolds was really the early motivating force behind the Annenberg Cultural Center-now, if

Brien's South Africa trip opens door to African wildlife and political history

In celebration of Vice Mayor Willie Brien and Connie Agnew's 27th anniversary, the couple traveled between Oct. 19 and Nov. 2 in South Africa, where they enjoyed a close-up look at African wildlife and heard a first-hand account of a key historic event during the country's apartheid era.

Africa," Brien said. "We had always we could only learn more about their future plans. Dr. Willie Brien's grandfather, the legendary former California Governor and Chief Justice Earl Warren had a profound impact on education and school funding.

Aside from Warren's support for public education, his court's "one vote, one person" decision helped save all Los Angeles schools, including Beverly Hills. Before that ruling, Los Angeles had only one state senator, the same as small senatorial, cow county districts. Finding legislative backing for schools became much simpler when we had more parity of representation in the state senate.

Lastly, it was Reynolds and then-mayor Dr. Charles Aronberg who initiated the Joint Powers Agreement following the passage of Jarvis.

We changed from a city school district to a "unified" district in 1935. Meaning: not exactly the same boundaries as the city.

Finally, some subway possibilities: There may indeed be a compromise alignment and, if it does happen, it will be because of the work of the mayor and city council. The too often in-your-face rhetoric of some school board members was, to the say the least, not welcomed by MTA decision makers. A more collegial approach could yet work.

We were going to review some additional comments of former school board president AJ Willmer, who opted not to oppose the high school route, but his Facebook has all the relevant arguments, and they are rationally presented.

Also, there can be little doubt that the MTA experts are among the most respected and trusted in the nation.

Yes, the high school and Constellation alignment might be safe and the most efficient, but somehow it simply doesn't feel right to dig under our school, or any school in Southern California. Hopefully, an alternative will work and we can end this wrenching and distracting fight. Possibly, we have learned a lesson: We are a small city and we are most effective when we work with and not against the political structures that control our future. Sound and fury may make good political opportunism, but put at risk the possible safety or our kids.

A note on the three-minute emergency response time, now that we are not at full police force strength: We have come to expect immediate response to any 911 call. But we must be very realistic on what is really a police emergency. An office or home was robbed while you were away. The perps are no longer on the premises. What the crime lab and responding police need is evidence. This cannot be treated in the same manner as an actual imminent threat to safety, and strains our responder resources if the distinction is not accepted and understood. Trust me, the reaction will continue to be the best anywhere, but we need to be accepting of different needs and circumstances.

Rudy Cole served for eight years as a member and chair of the city's Recreation & Parks Commission. He was also President of the Greystone Foundation and served on three other city committees. Rudy can be reached at: Rudy@bhweekly.com.

"We had always wanted to go to Willie Brien, Connie Agnew, Denis Goldberg wanted to go out and do a safari, and South Africa was one of those great trips because it had not only a great program for doing a safari, but there were also so many historical aspects of Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, George-which is where the game reserves were-and Johannesburg."

Brien and Agnew went out at the Shamwari Game Reserve four days in a row in an offroad, open jeep with four other tourists. Also on board was a tracker who would look over the side of the jeep, keeping his eyes open for animal droppings and tracks to give the driver an idea of where to go.

Brien said they would go out on the safari twice a day, once early in the morning and again in the late afternoon, because the animals tend not to be out much in the middle of the day.

Among the animals Brien and Agnew saw were elephants, hippos, rhinos, giraffes, zebras, lions, caribou, wildebeests, warthogs, predatory birds and cheetahs. Brien described the cheetahs as the most beautiful animals he has ever seen.

"[The Shamwari Game Reserve] has won a lot of accolades for creating a very balanced natural habitat for these animals and in doing so, they are careful in making sure that the ecosystem stays very balanced," Brien said.

Another highlight of the trip, Brien said, was not originally on the itinerary. While Brien and Agnew traveled with a tour guide in Cape Town, the guide learned that Brien's grandfather was Supreme Court Chief Justice Earl Warren and said Brien had to meet Denis Goldberg, who was active in the struggle against apartheid and was convicted along with Nelson Mandela at the Rivonia Trial in 1964. Though the defendants faced the possibility of the death penalty, they were sentenced to prison. Goldberg, who was the only white activist convicted in that trial, was imprisoned for 22 years before his release in 1985.

Brien and Agnew met Goldberg at his home in Cape Town, and Brien described Goldberg as open and straightforward and mentioned that he is still friends with Mandela.

'That was just fantastic, to meet somebody who is part of history and have the opportunity to talk to him about where they are today. As he said, they're at a crossroads again in terms of the direction they're going as a country," Brien said. "[Goldberg] also was very interested in hearing about things related to my grandfather in the United States and struggles during the 1950s and 1960s."

COVERSTORY FENTON SAYS FARENELL Outgoing Board of Education member Steven Fenton reflects on changing the BHUSD

By Melanie Anderson

Now that the election is over, how do you feel about your decision to not seek re-election?

I feel better than ever. I think the incoming board is going to do a fantastic job. I feel like I'm leaving the school district in great hands.

Did you ever rethink your decision during the campaign?

Not once.

You told the Weekly in Issue #538 that when you decided to run for election in 2007, you were "yearning to connect with my community in a much deeper way." How did serving on the board allow you to do that?

Serving on the board allowed me to really participate in a way that very few people get to. When you're on the Board of Education you're in a very unique position. All you have to do is count to three and you really can get anything done that you want to. It just takes three votes. When you talk about connecting with my community, that level of participation was fantastic.

Did it allow you to get to know the community better?

Absolutely. It allowed me to problem-solve on a whole different level. And when you're inside the tent, the tent looks a lot different than when you're standing outside the tent. Being in the center of the tent really gives you a unique perspective. I really love problem solving; bringing people together and problem-solving play to my strengths.

Was there anything surprising about how you connected with the community?

There were a few things that surprised me in my four years on the board. I walked into the Board of Education as being a part of the establishment. It was clear to me right away that the establishment was part of the problem. You either had a lot of apathy, or a lot of arrogance. In 2010, you told the Weekly you thought the BHUSD had lost its identity and that the district needed to attract and retain top-notch administrators. What have you done to accomplish that?

That's exactly how I felt in 2010. I did feel as if we had lost our way. For many years we had lost our way, well before I got on the Board of Education. But I can tell you right now we have found our way home. We have gone from good to great. Regarding top-tier administrators, we hired a superintendent [Gary Woods] of the highest ranked school district [San Marino Unified School District] in the state of California for the past nine years. We have tremendous continuity and stability.

It wasn't just the superintendent that changed; there were other changes to administration.

There definitely were. There are many things that I am proud of. One of the things that I am most proud of is that during my presidency was the first year that the Board of Education didn't lose any top administrators. Nobody quit on us.

Why do you think that was?

Because the Board put a lot of energy behind lifting morale. The Board set a very clear vision as to what we wanted our school district to look like. I felt strongly that we had to run the table when I first became president, get things done very quickly. And Lisa [Korbatov] has carried that energy all the way through her presidency. She has always had a sense of urgency and I love that about her.

Going back to what you said about being part of the establishment when you first got on the board, how did you realize that was a problem and that the district needed to be turned around?

I started to get some pushback from my own base. That was an eye opener for me.

What did you see that needed to be changed?

When I got elected, I got the overwhelming sense that the board majority felt as if our school district was pretty good and that's as good as it will ever be again. It was clear to me that there was apathy at the highest level of our school district and no burning desire to be the best again. People talk about the need to trust and verify but there wasn't a lot of verifying that was going on.

How did you turn it around?

I think there were small morale boosters along the way, whether it was helping [40-year maintenance employee] Sylvester Harris to get his job back, bringing [Beverly Vista principal] Irene Stern back into the school district after how horribly she was treated, [or] when [Horace Mann principal] Steve Kessler went right from the classroom to the principal's office. It sent a signal to the school district employees that once again, there is no ceiling here at Beverly Hills Unified. And I think that put a spring in a lot of people's step. I think that helped make our employees believe again.

When I was a [student] in the school district, I was always led to believe that employees can start out at the bottom and work their way all the way to the top. That philosophy was nowhere to be found when I joined the board four years ago. We have done a lot of promoting from within over the past two years and I think that has helped morale tremendously.

You led a movement to phase out opportunity permits, which was a controversial decision at the time, but has led to lower class sizes overall. Do you think this was the right decision?

I do think it was the right decision. The truly unfortunate part of that whole episode was that it never should have gotten to that place to begin with. The school district became a victim of its own circumstances. The opportunity permit program should never have been used as a financial Band-Aid. Board members used to talk about the need for critical mass, ie. packing the classroom full of children, when all along that philosophy pushed us farther and farther away from basic aid. If they would have decreased class sizes, we would have found ourselves in basic aid years ago and [we] would have been flush with money. It was a complete miscalculation by the previous board.

It was an emotionally charged issue. How did you deal with that?

Sometimes it takes controversy to effect positive change. This was never personal. But the wheels had fallen off of the bus and something needed to be done about it. We had an overall permit program that had nearly 1,000 children in it.

One of your goals was to establish a BHUSD pre-school program. Why do you think that did not materialize?

It is materializing. We took our first step by instituting a transitional kindergarten program a year before the state was going to mandate it and we've already started to put financial resources toward looking at the property on [South] Elm Drive as a potential pre-school. We are well on our way.

Leeza Gibbons, Steven Fenton, and Fenton's grandmother Donna Goldstein

Why does the BHUSD need a pre-school?

Pre-school is the future. A world-class pre-school will become a theater into our elementary schools and pre-schools are profitable. In order to be a world-class educational community, we need a world-class pre-school.

What was the most challenging issue that you faced during your term?

The fight to name Carter Paysinger as principal of the high school. It was a brutal fight, and one in which I saw sides of some people that I didn't like. The opportunity permit fight was no walk in the park either.

How did the district overcome this challenge?

It was all Carter. He is a class act. He truly is a transformative figure in our community.

Was serving on the board more difficult than you expected?

No. However, there were some things that I didn't anticipate.

Like what?

I didn't anticipate the pushback that I got from my own base with some of the decisions that I had made. I knew in my heart that I was making the right decision and even though I'm leaving office with the highest API test scores in our school district's history [and] I'm leaving office with the highest financial reserves in our school district's history, it's still hard for people to accept change.

Going forward, can you think of a way to help make people more comfortable with change?

I think it's important for people to put it in the same context as our police and fire departments. Our residents are used to having the best police and fire departments bar none, and they should have the same expectation of our school district. Swimming in mediocrity is no longer the norm around Beverly Hills Unified School District.

On Election Night in 2007, your father Frank Fenton, who as our readers know is a former elected official, told you, "Congratulations, but I want you to know something. You'll never be more popular than you are tonight." Was he right?

Yes. Words were never more true.

Was it helpful to hear that?

It did help because I always had it in the back of my mind, and it helped weather quite a few storms. It's just another example of why my dad has always been the smartest man in the room.

What's next for you and Leeza?

I plan on taking a significant amount of time off and focusing all of my energies on my dad who is not well and my wife and three stepchildren.

I'm going to miss the wonderful people of Beverly Hills Unified. These past four years have been the most rewarding of my life.
