"Rudy Cole—Shake and dining" [Issue #675]

Rudy Cole once again tries (but fails) to impugn Lisa Korbatov and her tireless efforts to help the School District. I am pretty much a lefty (liberal Democrat), but it doesn't take a political genius to know that, in addition to our Democratic senators and Henry Waxman, the District needs help from diverse interests in D.C. to try to avoid the Metro subway onslaughtincluding from Republican House leaders and people like the Secretary of Transportation. If D.C. lobbyists can help the District effectively oppose Yaroslavsky's, Villaraigosa's (both Democrats who have plenty of influence with Boxer, Feinstein and Waxman) and Metro's efforts to undermine our only high school, we should all get behind those efforts. Rudy's constant jabs only enhance Metro's goal to picture Beverly Hills as a divided community, when we are not. We should all-including the Council—be on the same page on this. I have been very much involved with the subway issues from the beginning and there is no one in our community who has tried harder, spent more time and done more to counter Metro's efforts than Lisa has. It has been a great experience working with her.

Ken Goldman Beverly Hills

RUDY COLE RESPONDS:

I hope that Goldman is right and that I am wrong, and that spending critically needed education funds on Washington lobbyists to prevent tunneling under the high school for the Westside Subway Extension is effective. However, smearing elected officials we have long admired, including Zev Yaroslavsky and Henry Waxman, simply does not help our cause. Reminder: my column was one of the first to strongly oppose the Constellation route. In fact, I have gone much further: I have reservations on the actual viability of the subway project. Civility does matter.

"City Council designates City's first historic landmark: The Beverly Hills Hotel" [Issue #669]

Congratulations to the Beverly Hills Hotel for 100 years of service that went beyond great. The memories are countless and wonderful. May the next 100 be as special.

U.S. Postal Service proposes relocating N. Maple Drive post office

The United States Postal Service's financial problems could soon hit close to home.

The cash-strapped organization, which has experienced a net loss of over $25 billion in the last five years, presented Tuesday afternoon to the City Council a proposal to relocate the Beverly Hills Post Office at 325 N. Maple Drive to a yet-to-be determined location and moving letter-carrier delivery operations to another location.

The North Maple Drive location became Beverly Hills' main post office when the previous facility, now part of the developing Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts, closed in the late 1990s.

"The plan is to relocate that post office and possibly selling the building," USPS Spokesperson Richard Maher said. "The plan is to lease a smaller facility within the same zip code for public retail service and P.O. Box service and then moving the letter-carrier delivery operations to another postal station."

Diana Alvarado, manager of property management of the USPS Western Region, told the City Council at Tuesday afternoon's study session USPS intends to find a location as close as possible to 325 N. Maple Drive. So far, USPS has identified two potential locations, Alvarado said.

Maher said the proposed location for lettercarrier delivery operations is the Los Angeles-West Branch at 820 N. San Vicente Boulevard in West Hollywood. Delivery service and residents' addresses or ZIP codes would not be impacted by the relocation, Maher said.

"If we could not find a suitable location to lease, that could kill this whole deal because we would want to and have to provide another location before we would sell that building to maintain service to the community," Maher said.

The concept for the new post office proposes four windows and 3,500 P.O. boxes, which is a decrease from the seven windows and 7,000 boxes in the current facility. Alvarado said the 3,500 figure accommodates the number of boxes currently in use at the North Maple Drive location, plus capacity for growth.

"My hope would be that whatever our current level of service is would certainly not degrade," Councilmember Julian Gold said.

The USPS representatives said the relocation would be position-neutral, explaining post office staffing is based on volume of transactions at a facility, not number of windows

Noting customers currently utilize street parking in addition to designated spaces to visit the North Maple Drive Post Office, Councilmember Lili Bosse asked how USPS determines parking needs. Alvarado said USPS has a formula based on number of windows, number of P.O. boxes and the amount of walk-in revenue.

Maher said Wednesday's official announcement of the proposal opened a 30-day written comment period. The USPS will present the proposal to and solicit feedback from the Beverly Hills community at a public meeting on Sept. 27 at 5 p.m. in the Salter Theater at Beverly High.

"We're in a very serious financial situation and we're doing everything possible to reduce expenses and generate revenue," Maher said. "Many of our facilities have excess capacity so we're consolidating and then selling the empty buildings." According to Maher, USPS, which is supported not by tax dollars but by the sales of postage, postal products and services, is currently losing $57 million every day and facing insolvency. Maher said volume—and revenue—has dramatically declined due to the diversion to electronic communications.

Alvarado told the City Council USPS is exploring similar proposals in about a dozen other areas in California including Santa Monica, Los Angeles and Anaheim, and has already executed similar plans in areas including Venice, San Francisco and San Jose.

Written comments, which will be accepted until Oct. 12, should be mailed to Diana Alvarado, Pacific Facilities Service Office, U.S. Postal Service, 1300 Evans Ave. Ste. 200, San Francisco, CA 94188-8200.

3.4 earthquake hits Beverly Hills; epicenter near Wilshire and Reeves

The second earthquake to jolt Beverly Hills in less than five days hit last Friday just after midnight near Wilshire Boulevard and Reeves Drive.

According to the U.S. Geological Survey, Friday's earthquake registered at a 3.4 magnitude, slightly stronger than the 3.2 earthquake that hit Beverly Hills Monday around 3:25 a.m. Monday's quake was centered near Wilshire Boulevard and Palm Drive.

On Friday morning, BHPD Sgt. Dennis Lynch said there were no reports of injuries or damage.

"The standard procedure we do is we check all critical sites throughout the City," Lynch said. "The check revealed there was no damage or injuries reported at the time."

Lynch said those critical sites include BHUSD schools, the reservoir, the business district and communication towers. Lynch said BHPD and BHFD also conducted an internal check of their own facilities.

The Los Angeles Times reported Friday the two earthquakes occurred near the intersection of two faults, the Santa Monica fault and the Newport-Inglewood fault.

Paul Ryan meets donors in Beverly Hills

On the same night President Barack Obama accepted his party's nomination at the Democratic National Convention in Charlotte, N.C., Republican vice presidential candidate Paul Ryan met donors at a fundraiser in Beverly Hills at the Montage hotel.

BHUSD Board of Education member Lisa Korbatov and realtor Michael Libow, who said he recently changed his party affiliation from Democrat to Republican, were among the Beverly Hills residents that attended the Sept. 6 fundraiser for donors of $2,500 or more.

Libow said Ryan's appearance impressed him and made him feel comfortable with his decision to support the Republican Party.

"He spoke candidly, seemingly genuinely and with great passion," Libow said. "And while repeating some of the standard talking points, you got a sense this was a smart person who was able to speak on his own without a script, which was very nice and refreshing, and something you don't see in a lot of politicians. I'm sure in the midst of a campaign like this, his handlers are saying, 'Stick to the script.' I felt he was very quick and knowledgeable about many subjects."

Libow, who calls himself a fiscal conservative, said although he is gay and pro-choice, he supports the Republican Party's fiscal positions and support of Israel.

"It seems surreal the trillions of dollars of debt [facing the United States]," Libow said. "If you talk to an economist, they'll explain it's very devastating to a country to have such large debt, and we have it."

Since Fox 11 aired an interview with Libow following last week's fundraiser, Libow said he has been amazed by "how much flack" he has gotten from some people he knows.

"I'm just trying to speak honestly about how I feel," Libow said. "I don't feel as if I've been brainwashed."

Ingle makes final "General Hospital" appearance

Actor John Ingle, who taught drama at Beverly High from 1964–1985, appeared Tuesday on General Hospital, reprising his role of Edward Quartermaine.

Ingle, who started playing Quartermaine in the 1990s, returned Aug. 24 to the set, where he was greeted with a standing ovation from the cast and crew.

"His scene was small and he had very few words, but his presence on the set was monumental," one of Ingle's daughters, Jennifer Ingle Briguglio Bandy, wrote in a Facebook post Monday. "Beginning with a standing ova-

Local historic landmark nominations picking up

The Beverly Hills Hotel may soon have company on the City's local Register of Historic Properties.

Last week, the Cultural Heritage Commission directed staff to move forward with the landmark nomination process for 13 properties, including nine properties that appear on the National Register of Historic Places.

The City designated the City's first local historic landmark—the Beverly Hills Hotel—in July. As the commission's workload increases, the City's new urban designer, William Crouch, is now in position.

Crouch, who has been working for the City since July, participated in his first Cultural Heritage Commission meeting as staff liaison on Sept. 4, when the commission considered nominations for three local historic landmarks—the 1920-built Witch's House on North Walden Drive, the 1953-established Hilton office building at 9990 Santa Monica Boulevard, and the 1926-built Waverly Mansion on Hillcrest Road.

"All three of them are special properties for a number of reasons, and for different reasons, from architecture to significance of who occupied them," said Commission Chair Noah Furie, who worked with Vice Chair Richard Waldow on the commission's landmark nomination advisory subcommittee to nominate the properties.

Furie said the subcommittee initiated the nomination process for all three properties, with the "knowledge and consent" of the property owners. The properties will undergo a more thorough analysis and come back before the commission for review at a future meeting.

According to a state historic resources inventory assessment from 1986, the Witch's House was originally designed as a production office for Irvin Willat Productions in Culver City. The structure was moved around 1924 to Walden Drive in Beverly Hills as a home for director Ward Lascelle. The home's designer, Henry Oliver, was an art director in the film industry

"I'm very excited about [the nomination]," said Michael Libow, who owns the Witch's House. "To me, if God forbid I would ever have to sell it, I would never want it to be altered."

When Libow purchased the home about 14 years ago, he said it was in "very poor condition," but after extensive restoration, the house is now "a real home."

The Hilton Office building was designed and constructed for Hilton Hotels during the period when Beverly Hilton was being constructed. According to a 2006 document from the California Department of Parks and Recreation, the building was designed by master architect Charles Luckman.

The Waverly Mansion, also known as the Christie Estate, has not been previously evaluated for historical significance.

The commission agreed to move forward with the land-mark nomination process for a fourth property, a 1940-built residence at 603 Doheny Road. Former Mayor Mark Egerman submitted an application on behalf of the property owner to participate in the Mills Act pilot program, which requires that participating properties first be designated local historic land-marks. Gary Masino is listed on the application as the trustee for the property owner.

"The applicant had a preliminary analysis done and we had it peer reviewed by our historic consultant [Jan Ostashay]," Furie said. "At this point, it seems worthy of further analysis."

The Mills Act was passed by the state of California to encourage preservation and rehabilitation of historic properties by offering tax incentives to property owners.

The residence was occupied by Liliore Green Palmer, daughter of Burton Green, a Beverly Hills co-founder. Merv Griffin is included among later occupants of the home.

To qualify as a local historic landmark, properties must have architectural value, retain integrity from their period of significance, and meet at least two of six additional criteria of significance.

From a review described in the Sept. 4 staff report as "cursory," Ostashay determined the property may meet two criteria of significance, since the property embodies the distinctive characteristics of a style, type, period or method of construction, "as evident in its design, workman-603 Doheny Road

ship, most materials, location, and overall setting," and because it was designed by master architect James F. Dickason.

At last week's meeting, the commission also directed staff to continue with the nomination process for nine Beverly Hills properties appearing on the National Register of Historic Places to also appear in the Local Register of Historic Properties.

Those nine properties are Greystone Mansion, the Beverly Hills Main Post Office, Beverly Wilshire hotel, Beverly Hills Women's Club, the Virginia Robinson Estate, the Fox Wilshire Theater, the Harold Lloyd Estate, the Frank Lloyd-Wright-designed Anderton Court shops on Rodeo Drive, and the Karasik House on Spalding Drive. The formal report will come back to the commission at a meeting later in the fall.

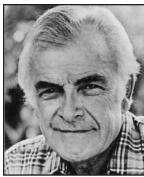

"We felt it was important to bring on to the local register the nine properties that have already been designated as historic resources on the national register, to give additional local recognition and protection," Furie said.

In the future, Furie said the commission would consider a recommendation to amend the code so when a Beverly Hills property is designated on the national register it will automatically be included in the local register. Furie said the criteria for listing properties on the national register meet Beverly Hills' local criteria.

Furie said he was pleased to be working with Crouch, an architect who was hired over the summer by the City of Beverly Hills after six years as urban design manager in the City of Sacramento's Development Services Department.

"Bill Crouch has a tremendous amount of experience in preservation from his prior positions and we are thrilled to have him as our staff liaison," Furie said.

Crouch is a member of the American Institute of Architects, certified with the National Council of Architect Registration Boards in Washington, D.C., and a certified planner with the American Planning Association.

tion by the entire cast and crew as we entered the set, to the line of people waiting to hug and wish him well, it was a day that he (and we) will remember forever. Entering the set was emotional for Dad and it was obvious why he has loved being there all these years."

Ingle will be honored at the Beverly High Athletic Alumni Association Hall of Fame dinner on Oct. 25 at the Beverly Hilton.

FINDING THAT DOG

Few of you actually read the "other" newspaper so you may be forgiven for having missed one of the most sensational journalistic exposes of municipal ineptitude in our city's 100 years of existence.

We congratulate our colleagues for their "scoop," their diligence in protecting the public interest and for placing our priorities in a proper perspective. We're talking a likely Pulitzer here.

The mayor, Dr. Willie Brien, showed an early bias against animals when he chose to become an orthopedic surgeon and not a veterinarian. Now, his prejudicial behavior has been exposed. And fortunately, this lack of sensitivity has come back to, dare we say it, bite him.

Be calm, and take this seriously. This is nothing to bark at, and yes there is considerable understandable pain, frankly made worse by some who want to use any pretext to criticize city government.

Just the facts, Fido. A bereaved family turned to our obviously heartless city hall in desperation: They lost the family pet. We can all understand the angst and the cry for help.

So, seriously, what did happen and separating some reality from hyperbole:

A Beverly Hills family adopted an abused and handicapped Akita mix they named Cleo. While walking Cleo, the dog heard some sharp noise, broke away and dashed into the night. After a frantic but failed search, the family posted fliers all over the area and, according to owner Joy Hudson, they received some 30 calls, but none led to finding the dog.

What disturbed Joy was the action of the City in removing the lost Cleo signs from residential areas. We do have ordinances preventing posting of signage on trees and utility polls and, again, according to Joy, the signs were removed because of the complaint of one resident, and she was told it was because the mayor gave the order.

Joy does confirm that there was no refusal to help by the mayor, as the headline claimed, because neither she nor anyone else ever spoke to Mayor Brien.

But we checked with code enforcement and the police and they all deny that the mayor had any involvement of any kind. Knowing Dr. Brien, that would have been highly unlikely. He is a strict adherent to government by the rules and it is not in the mayor's authority to give direct orders to any city agency or department.

Obviously, we cannot pick up the phone and demand that the mayor come to our alley and pick up trash; we don't expect the mayor, or any other elected official, to respond to a crime being committed—those are the responsibilities of city staff. Yes, the mayor can and should pass on concerns to the city manager's office.

Again, this was more of an example of using any pretext to slam a city official, and it was ludicrous.

But let's try to help. In the next few days, look around your neighborhood and if you see any dog that seems lost and even slightly resembles a hurting Akitamix, call Joy at 310.275.2042. Or, if you have made a home for Cleo, do the right thing and call the owners. Remember, Cleo is very likely to be frightened and to make every effort to find a safe place to hide, even under leaves or in any hidden venue. (May have been last spotted near the Peninsula.)

In the meantime, just maybe we can stop using any pretext to slam those who serve us. At the very least, let's be fair and rational. Incidentally, the City would be very willing to post a notice on their Facebook site.

Just to repeat, despite the scary headlines, Cleo's owners confirmed that they never spoke to Mayor Brien or asked for his help.

DIVIDED SCHOOL BOARD

Tempers did, although only mildly, erupt Tuesday when the board divided sharply on whether it was appropriate to take positions on state ballot measures, and later on what positions to take.

It began with a request from the teacher's union to support some and oppose other ballot issues. For the record, in each case, I thought the union position was in the public interest.

However, before the board could even consider whether to support or oppose, Vice President Jake Manaster made a thoughtful argument against board endorsements, saying it was not an appropriate school board role.

Manaster felt it was unprecedented. However, in one of the most contentious and education-impacting ballot propositions in our state's history, Prop. 13, our school board, along with almost every other governmental agency in the state, strongly opposed what was called the Jarvis amendment. Beverly Hills did not follow the state's vote, Jarvis won big, but lost in Beverly Hills.

Board president Brian Goldberg was right, the board does have a right and a responsibility to take positions on ballot measures that could and will impact our schools, including Gov. Jerry Brown's tax proposal.

Manaster was supported by board member Noah Margo and the two were consistent in refusing to oppose a county tax measure that would extend funding for the Westside subway extension. Goldberg and board members

Lisa Korbatov and Lewis Hall felt this was an action that would send a message to the MTA on opposing the Constellation (tunneling under the high school) route.

On another ballot measure, the board did vote on what position to take on vouchers, a second effort to provide public money for private schools that had previously been overwhelmingly rejected by the voters.

On this issue, Korbatov led the opposition, and she was absolutely right. Vouchers would deliver an horrendous blow to public education. Goldberg and Hall were in the minority.

School boards are banned, by law, from endorsing candidates for public office and expending school funds for any political purpose. However, school boards, and city councils, do take positions on ballot measures that could have any impact on education or city issues. Manaster and Margo seemed to argue that because school boards are trustees, they are not in the same category as other elected officials. Nothing in state law or precedents supports that argument. On the other hand, they both have a right to argue against making recommendations, but that should be on the merits not responsibilities.

AMAZING INTERVIEW

One of the most astounding interviews I ever heard was Barbara Walters' bizarre session with three young members of the Saudi royal family shortly after 9/11.

All three were Western educated, articulate and in their mid-thirties. They seemed both knowledgeable and rational, not some extremist Islamic radicals spouting street messages.

What they said, and Walters hardly was effective in responding, was that the 9/11 attack was an Israeli/Jewish plot to discredit the Arab world. In a snide manner, they hinted that "New York Jews had advance notice and that all the Jews had left the buildings before the hijacked planes hit the towers." Of course, we now know many Jews and people of all faiths lost their lives on that horrendous day.

It was wonderful that Beverly Hills joined in a national day of remembering Tuesday, honoring the first responders, many of whom also paid the ultimate price for serving their nation and community.

What is most heartening is that we have not let this horrendous act destroy our values and our democratic institutions, and it could have

What was very encouraging too was a little-noticed action by Canada, which this week broke diplomatic relations with Iran. The act itself was important, but one of the reasons given was worth noting.

Canada laid it on the line. Iran, aside from evading inspections on their ability to create a nuclear weapon capable of destroying Israel, "engages in racist, anti-Semitic rhetoric." No nation has been as clear or direct on the anti-Semitic messages from that repressive regime. Canada would be a wonderful place to visit on vacation time, and take a moment to thank the country for their support and clarity of their message. (Consul General 213.346.2700).

QUICK NOTES

Good news for loyal diners: Spago will have completed its remodeling and is expected to reopen shortly, probably before the end of the month.

One most loyal fan, Fred Hayman, joined Marty Geimer and I last week for a luncheon by the Beverly Hilton pool, one of the best venues for outdoor dining in the city.

Had special meaning for Hayman—he lived at the Hilton even before it formally opened and was one of the first executives hired by Conrad Hilton for the flagship hotel

One of the most popular venues for afternoon tea or cocktails, and for late entertaining, is the very comfortable garden room, now called the Parq Bar, at the Montage Beverly Hills. There is always music and on some nights, good jazz. See a large number of locals there, including lawyer Lee Silver and his family.

What also helps make the room so special are the great servers led by top hostess Carla, who once did her magic at the Bel Air.

Had my first ever luncheon on the roof of The Peninsula last week. We usually dine at the ground floor Belvedere. Many locals were there, including a team from Jewish Vocational Services, one of my favorite agencies

The Weather Service emergency notices, delivered twice in one week, all about flash flood warnings not even close to western Los Angeles, needs some technical tweaking. First, they should have the technology to pinpoint more accurately possible danger areas instead of scaring the hell out of nonimpacted viewers and, equally important, once the notice is aired and television service interrupted, more quickly end the message—it rolls on for minutes after the announcement.

For the reader who doubted that Knudsen dairies is now operated by the same company that owns Alta Dena, we verified with their corporate office.

Dean Foods, in Dallas, confirmed our information. We spoke to consumer rep David Valenzuela. The only thing I know for sure is they control milk products; there may be other Knudsen items still under the company name, just not milk. But thanks for emailing your questions.

LOCAL HERO

Our newspaper office people made this nomination, but the paper's mail service is not only efficient and dependable, the mail is delivered with a smile.

Despite a longer route, letter carrier Valerie Glosson, who serves South Beverly Drive, makes a supreme effort to assure prompt delivery

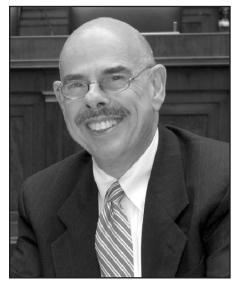

For being such an exemplary role model for the Postal Service, and her constant upbeat attitude, Valerie is this week's Local Hero.

P.S. We are resuming this feature and would welcome your nominations of those who go beyond the call to make life better and easier in our village.

Henry Waxman discusses the upcoming election, the top-two primary and the subway in a Weekly exclusive

Last week, you were here in Los Angeles instead of at the Democratic National Convention. Why is that?

I decided to stay here and continue talking to people in this district that I represent now and in the district I hope to represent after the next election. The redistricting commission—thank goodness-left Beverly Hills alone and that's part of the district I'm running in, but they added new area, which amounts to 45 percent of the total population in the district. That's an area that is new to me, so I have to introduce myself to people in the South Coast part of the district. The district used to end at Santa Monica in the south, and the district now extends to Venice and to the Marina, Playa del Rey, Beach cities, all over the Palos Verdes Peninsula, even a little bit of Hawthorne.

I have an opponent [Bill Bloomfield] who is quite wealthy and is putting in [over a million] dollars of his own money. It's unusual for me to have such an active and well-financed opponent. If he were running as a Republican, even though the district is less Democratic [now], I feel confident I would beat him easily. But he took advantage of the new law that said the top two candidates will run off in November and switched, after being a lifelong Republican, to being a Decline to State, and he calls himself an Independent.

I'm certainly not going to take the campaign for granted. I'm reaching out to all parts of the district, primarily in the new area, but also in the existing area like Beverly Hills, to talk about the things I've been doing and to express why I hope people will vote for me again.

You mentioned two recent changes to voting, the top-two primary and redistricting, are affecting you. What do you think about those two changes?

I think the redistricting commission makes a lot of sense if all the states had redistricting commissions, but because California has one and there's no regard to continuity of representation or protecting senior members, which is the whole idea of the commission, it puts us at a disadvantage, because Congress is still run on a seniority system. For California, we're losing a number of senior members, on both the Democrat and Republican sides of the aisle.

Congressman David Dreier (R-San Dimas) has been chairman of the House Rules Committee, and Republican Congressman Jerry Lewis (R-Redlands) has been very active as a subcommittee chairman and active proponent of California's interest on the Appropriations Committee. On the Democratic side of the aisle, we find Howard Berman (D-Los Angeles) who is such an important figure on foreign policy issues and protecting the entertainment industry's interests, forced into a race with another Democrat, Brad Sherman (D-Sherman Oaks). So we have a whole new situation in California. If all the states had it, I think it would be fair, because the idea of it was to take the redistricting away from the politicians themselves in Sacramento.

The idea of the top two running off against each other is an interesting one. I remember talking to Governor [Arnold] Schwarzenegger when [he] advanced this issue. He was having such a difficult time with the Republicans in the legislature who refused to support his budget even though he was a Republican governor. He said if they had to face the prospect of running against another Republican and had to reach out for Democratic and Independent voters that would make them more moderate. That's an interesting theory and we'll see whether it works.

My opponent William Bloomfield, Jr. actively funded these two ballot proposals.

I see such an enormous amount of money being wasted where Democrats are running against Democrats, and Republicans are running against Republicans in the general election. There are two statements that don't fit, one where people say, "I want a lot of competitive districts and I want less money in politics," because competitive districts by their nature involve a lot of money being spent. It's not even competitive between the parties. In a lot of districts, one of the major parties won't even be able to offer candidates in a November election.

What do you think about that?

I'm watching it carefully. I don't think

You mentioned Howard Berman, who is a longtime friend, is in a tough race. Tell us about that.

He's facing another congressman. We tried to talk Brad Sherman into running in another area that would have fit quite well with him. It was a district that the Democrats would have won with Julia Brownley (D-Santa Monica) in Ventura County, but Brad Sherman would have won easily because he had represented a small part of it in the past. His view was he'd rather roll the dice and fight for a district that will be more secure for a Democrat over the whole 10-year span. I thought that was a little selfish because the party would have picked up another seat without question, and he wouldn't have forced Howard Berman into having to fight for his survival, especially when he's the leading Democrat on the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Are you helping Berman with his campaign?

I'm doing everything I can to help him. I didn't even realize I was going to have a race myself, so I was focusing more on his campaign than I was on my own

So, how's it going meeting with constituents this week?

I've been here almost all of August [and the beginning of September]. I've been taking time to meet with [members of] the aerospace industry [in the South Bay]. They're involved in satellite communications as well as national defense. I've learned that one of the issues that concerns them a great deal is that we continue to have the L.A. Air Force base in the El Segundo area, because a lot of the aerospace industry is tied together by virtue of that base being there. There has been a fear that it could be closed. [Former] Congresswoman Jane Harman (D-Los Angeles), who represented that area for many years, was a staunch advocate for the Air Force base. I told people that with my seniority, I will do everything I can [to] help keep that Air Force base there. I'm learning new issues, meeting new people and running a campaign actively for the first time in a long time.

How does that feel?

It's a very interesting process. When I decided to take a poll, my pollster asked me, "Can we see the last poll you took?" I had to tell him I had never taken a poll before. I've always had the benefit of a district that's been heavily Democratic. If there had been a challenge it would have been in the party primary. The Republicans haven't really put up serious candidates. I've never taken any campaign for granted, but for the most part I've had campaigns where I haven't had to use the money I've raised to fight a campaign; I've been able to help other Democrats. This time I have to ask people for the first time to help me because I can't write a check to fund my own campaign, and I've got to ask for people to be active in supporting me financially, and by putting up yard signs and bumper strips and talking to their neighbors.

Back to redistricting, how do you think having some of the Beach Cities and Palos Verdes and less of the Valley is going to change the character of the district?

The district is very much a coastal district. I've had a large part of the coast to start with from the Ventura County line through Malibu and Palisades and Santa Monica. Moving south I'll have the rest of the Santa Monica bay area, and there are issues that relate to that territory that's coastal. For example, I recently had a press conference where I released a report of all the anti-environmental proposals the Republicans in the House have made to weaken protections for our coast, including trying to drill right off the coast of California for oil. Showing the record of what the Republicans are pushing is something I want people to know about because I believe that this House of Representatives, which is controlled by the Republicans, has been the most anti-environmental House in the history of our country. They were trying to repeal laws that were passed with overwhelming bipartisan margins, even signed by Presidents Nixon and Bush.

We're trying to bring out these issues. I plan to run with President Obama. I strongly support him and was happy to get his [endorsement] this week. I'm going to run with Senator [Dianne] Feinstein, who I'm supporting for reelection. I'm strongly going to support [Governor Jerry Brown's] ballot initiative on taxes, and I'm strongly opposing Prop. 32, which claims to be a reform of campaign spending, but it's targeted strictly at labor unions. They're trying to keep them from being able to participate in the campaigns the way that corporations are doing. I think this year exemplifies the role of big money in campaigns. I think it's really perverting our democratic system. We have, according to the Supreme Court, the ability for corporations to come in like they're individuals and provide unlimited funding for campaigns, even funds that are never going to be disclosed. In my campaign, we have a man who has got a fortune, and he wants to just spend that money and become a member of Congress. I think nobody should buy a presidency or a congressional seat, either of his own funds or with the heavy support, in the case of Governor Romney, of the major

The City celebrates its first local historic landmark—The Beverly Hills Hotel By Melanie Anderson

Before Beverly Hills was incorporated as a city in 1914, The Beverly Hills Hotel established itself in 1912 as a destination for prospective buyers to check out undeveloped land surrounding the hotel.

Since then, Beverly Hills has dramatically developed, and the hotel remains a destination for locals, tourists and celebrity guests 100 years later.

Last night, Beverly Hills City officials, hotel executives and community members, including hotel founder Margaret Anderson's great-grandson Robbie Anderson, gathered in the hotel's Crystal Foyer and Garden for a ceremony officially designating The Beverly Hills Hotel as the City's first local historic landmark.

The City Council voted unanimously on July 24 to approve the hotel as a historic landmark and to designate Sept. 12 "The Beverly Hills Hotel Day," which was celebrated last night with the unveiling of a plaque identifying the site as a landmark and remarks from Mayor Willie Brien, Dorchester Collection CEO Christopher Cowdray, and The Beverly Hills Hotel General Manager Edward A. Mady.

In June, shortly after the hotel celebrated its official centennialthe hotel opened in May 1912—the City's recently established Cultural Heritage Commission made the findings that the hotel was eligible to be the first property listed in the City's new Register of Historic Properties.

"The Beverly Hills Hotel meets the City's criterion for designation as a local landmark due to it being identified with important events and exceptional contributions to local history as a hotel and [as a venue for] the social life of our community," Cultural Heritage Commission Chair Noah Furie said. "It is also directly associated with the lives of significant persons important to national, state and local history. The hotel's design embodies the distinctive characteristics of a luxury hotel and represents the works of Elmer Grey and Paul R. Williams."

Grey designed the original 1912 Mission-style hotel, and Williams designed the more modern Crescent

The Beverly Hills Hotel's iconic entrance Drive wing, which opened in 1949.

Both architects appear on the City's list of master architects.

When the hotel came up for the City Council's consideration for landmark status. Vice Mayor John Mirisch suggested indicating the hotel is also associated with "the lives of significant persons" because, as an example, the hotel was the location for some of actor and producer Harold Lloyd's work.

Furie said the hotel also qualifies for landmark designation because it retains its integrity from the period of significance (1912-1954) and its historic value to the City.

"The hotel represents the first major building in Beverly Hills, completed in 1912 by Margaret Anderson, the hotel's founder and original owner," Furie said. "As reported by the press at the time, the new hotel 'had every known convenience and appointment,' and was 'a city to itself."

In fact, prior to the City's incorporation in 1914, a post office and primary school were located at the hotel. The development of the hotel is closely tied to the development of

"By 1910, less than six homes had been built north of Santa Monica Boulevard, and by 1914, the year the City was incorporated, the population had grown to 550 people,' Furie said. "The hotel played a significant role in the City's development and as its social center. The reason the hotel even got built was because the Rodeo Land and Water Company had developed these home sites and the hotel was a way to get prospective buyers to come out and enjoy the beauty of what would become Beverly Hills and also purchase a lot."

Hoping to discover oil, Beverly Hills cofounders Max Whittier and Burton Green, along with partners including Charles Canfield and Frank Buck, purchased in 1900 the 2,000-acre Hammel and Denker Ranch, which included the Morocco Junction rail station at present-day Santa Monica Boulevard and Canon Drive. After drilling unsuccessfully for oil, the partners founded the Rodeo Land and Water Company in 1906 to develop a new housing community.

According to Marc Wanamaker's book, Images of America Early Beverly Hills, the rail station at Santa Monica Boulevard and Canon Drive was first built in 1896 and served as a Southern Pacific and Pacific Electric depot. The station eventually was used as a real estate office and staging area to show prospective property buyers around Beverly Hills. After it was torn down in 1933 to build the Beverly Hills post office, a new station was built on the southwest corner of the same intersection in 1934. Trains continued through Beverly Hills until

Beginning in 1912, a trolley stopped in front of The Beverly Hills Hotel on Sunset

Margaret Anderson, who previously managed the Hollywood Hotel and oversaw its expansion from accommodating 16 guests to 250 rooms, opened The Beverly Hills Hotel with her son Stanley Anderson.

The hotel not only played a role in settling the residential community of Beverly Hills, but also the establishment of parklands in Beverly Hills. Will Rogers Memorial Park, which was originally part of The Beverly Hills Hotel's grounds, became the City's first municipal park after the Anderson family donated the land to the City in 1915.

Over the years, the hotel has been a magnet for celebrity guests. In the 1930s, the children's dining room was transformed into a bar and lounge that was eventually named the Polo Lounge in 1937 to memorialize Will Rogers, who had frequented the lounge with his polo buddies. Charlie Chaplin was known to reserve Table No. 1 at the lounge during his visits.

The hotel's famous pool, which was installed in the 1930s, included a sandy beach and cabana area featuring sand imported from Arizona. The pool was the site of weekly fashion shows sponsored by local department stores, including Bullock's Wilshire. Svend Petersen, former pool manager for 45 years, was scheduled to attend last night's event.

Although the hotel is often associated with glamour, it has also faced some challenging times. The hotel closed for a couple of years following the Great Depression, but the bungalows continued to be occupied under individual leases. In 1932, trustee Bank of America reopened the hotel.

More recently, the Beverly Hills Hotel was the subject of controversy when five former employees filed a lawsuit in June 2011 against the hotel's formal general manager Alberto del Hoyo and manager Micah Paloff, alleging harassment, discrimination and wrongful termination among other allegations. Del Hoyo retired shortly before the lawsuit was filed. Rob Hennig, the attorney who filed the lawsuit on behalf of the five employees, said Tuesday the lawsuit is still in the litigation process.

Last year, Mady was brought on as general manager of The Beverly Hills Hotel and Dorchester Collection west coast regional director, meaning Mady also oversees Hotel Bel-Air. Mady came to Beverly Hills after two years as general manager of The New York Palace, another Dorchester Collection hotel. Prior to that, Mady spent two decades working for Ritz-Carlton.

The Crescent Drive Wing, which was completed in 1949, was designed by master architect Paul Williams

Wednesday night's ceremony also featured the recovery of a time capsule that was planted at the hotel's entrance in 1993 at the ground-breaking ceremony for the most recent major renovation project. That project lasted approximately two and a half years, during which the hotel was closed. The capsule was marked by a plaque stating the capsule was to be opened during the hotel's 100th anniversary.

Contents included a cigar that belonged to Milton Berle, hand drawings by Tony Curtis, a Dionne Warwick cassette, and an original invitation from the hotel's 1912 opening that described the location as "halfway between Los Angeles and the sea." At the ceremony, the hotel showed a 100th-anniversary film that included footage of individuals depositing their belongings into the time capsule at the 1993 groundbreaking ceremony.

After revealing the contents of the 1993 capsule, a new capsule was packed with artifacts representing guests, employees and the community. The 2012 capsule was buried with instructions to open it a quarter century from now.

Kimberly Vinokur Reiss, founder of the "Beverly Hills Historic Preservation" Facebook page, called the hotel the "perfect inaugural landmark" for the City because she believes it to be the most historically significant structure in the city.

"[The Beverly Hills Hotel] is very deserving of the honor it is receiving," Reiss said. "We are fortunate that the original hotel and its midcentury update are both still in existence today, considering the amount of demolition that has taken place in the last 25 years within the city limits. Hopefully, with the newly enacted preservation program along with the work of the Cultural Heritage Commission, we will be able to preserve more of the city of Beverly Hills' past for future generations."

The Beverly Hills Hotel official historian Robbie Anderson did not return a phone call from the Weekly.

BHHS Football Team Defeats San Marcos

The Beverly High football team got touchdowns from their running and passing games and special teams and shut out San Marcos in the second half of a 33-12 victory in a nonleague game Friday night at Nickoll Field.

The Normans (1-1) never trailed, with Montay Monroe running five yards for a touchdown one minute, 20 seconds into the game.

Beverly Hills increased its lead to 12-0 on Chase Crossley's 50-yard touchdown pass to Austin Towns with 6:50 left in the first quarter.

Royals quarterback Wesley Ghan-Gibson scored on a keeper with 2:24 remaining in the first quarter.

Sajun Bibbs returned a punt 55 yards for a touchdown with 10:14 left in the second quarter to give the Normans a 19-6 lead.

San Marcos (0-3) cut the lead to 19-12 on Esteban Alfaro's six-yard run with 3:21 to play in the second quarter.

Ole Woods ran three yards for a touchdown to give Beverly Hills a 26-12 halftime lead.

Monroe ran five yards with 2:16 left in the fourth quarter for the only touchdown of the second half.

Crossley completed two of four passes for 95 yards and teammate Zack Bialobos six of nine passes for 72 yards. Monroe ran for 40 yards on seven carries.

Woods made a team-high nine tackles.

The Norman defense played "fairly well" in the first half and excellent in the second half following halftime adjustments, according to defensive coordinator Derrick Robinson

Towns and Woods, both linebackers, drew praise from Robinson, as did defensive linemen Jared Forman and Legend Waters.

The victory ended a five-game losing streak dating back to last season.

Beverly Hills is scheduled to play at Peninsula Friday in a nonleague game beginning at 3 p.m.

The Panthers (0-2) have a run-oriented, very physical offense, according to Robinson.

The Normans need to be "more consistent in our defensive assignments, our tackling and foremost stop their run," Robinson said.

Beverly Hills is 0-8-1 against Peninsula, formed in 1991 by the merger of Miraleste, Palos Verdes and Rolling Hills high schools, including a 32-28 loss last season.

The Panthers opened their season with a 42-3 loss at North Torrance Aug. 31 and lost at Culver City, 41-15 Friday.

BHHS Runner, Team Win Season-Opening Cross Country Race

Sydney Segal of Beverly High won the girls' Division 2 Seniors Fastback Shootout race Saturday by 31.4 seconds over runner-up Valerie Mares of Ontario Colony, leading the Normans to the team title in their season-opening race.

Segal completed the 1.9-mile course at Mt. San Antonio College in 11 minutes,

Walk this way: Vreeland inducted into Walk of Style

Family members of the late fashion editor Diana Vreeland celebrated Vreeland's posthumous induction into the Rodeo Drive Walk of Style Monday morning. The ceremony, which was sponsored by the Rodeo Drive Committee and City of Beverly Hills, involved dedicating a plaque on Rodeo Drive with Vreeland's signature and quote: "You gotta have style. It helps you get down the stairs. It helps you get up in the morning. It's a way of life. Without it you're nobody."

40.3 seconds.

Segal had the fourth-fastest time among all runners.

Beverly Hills won the team competition with 30 points, one fewer than second-place Colony. The Normans had three of the top five finishers. Lily Ting was fourth in the team competition and ninth overall in 13:09.6 and Marissa Rothman fifth and 15th in 13:44.8.

Eli Flesch was the fastest Beverly Hills boys' runner, completing the 1.9-mile course in 10:37.83 to finish ninth in the Division 2 Seniors race.

BHHS Girls' Tennis Team Loses to Corona del Mar, Mira Costa

The Beverly High girls' tennis team lost to Corona del Mar, 10-8, in its season-opening nonleague match Aug. 30 at Beverly High, despite Martina Bocchi, its No. 3 singles player, winning all three of her sets.

Miriam Binman and Charlotte Frank, the Normans' No. 1 doubles team, won its final two sets, 6-4, 6-3, following a 6-4 first-round loss. Katarina Stefanovic, Beverly Hills' No. 2 singles player, won her final two sets, 6-1, 6-3, following a 6-4 first-round loss.

Alison Isaacman, the Normans' No. 1 singles player, defeated Siena Sharf, 6-1, in the second round.

The Normans lost to Mira Costa, 14-4, in a nonleague match Sept. 5 at Beverly High as the Binman-Frank team won its final two sets, 6-3, 7-5, following a 7-5 first-round loss

Bocchi was a 6-0 winner in the third

Beverly Hills substitutes Emily Dekhtyar and Jenny Zatikian won their third-round doubles match, 6-3.

The Normans trailed 6-0 at the end of the first round and 11-1 at the end of the second round.

BHHS Boys' Water Polo Team Loses to Crespi

Beverly High lost to Crespi, 13-9, in a nonleague boys' water polo game at Pierce College Sept. 5, trailing 5-0 six minutes into the game and never getting closer than two goals.

David Hakakian, Frosty Poppadinkus and Ariel Rafalian scored for the Normans (1-1) in a 1:51 span of the second quarter to cut the Celts' lead to 5-3 4:41 before halftime. Crespi responded with three unanswered goals in 2:55 to lead 8-3 with 1:19 left in the half

Looking beyond the election, what are your legislative priorities for the new year?

I want to work with President Obama to figure out how to reduce the deficit in a way that doesn't undercut our commitment to seniors and low-income people and children. The Republican proposal would cut back on investments of research at the National Institutes of Health and research in other areas where unless government sponsored that research it just wouldn't get done. They want to cut back on education funds. They want to cut back on the safety net funds. I think we can reduce the deficit once our economy is moving again in a more balanced and fair way, but Republicans have been unwilling to talk about any increases in revenue of any sort and therefore they want everything to come out of cuts.

Secondly, I want to work with the president on reforming the tax system. The tax system is chaotic, it's full of loopholes, and it's generally looked at as unfair. Thirdly, I want to work with the president on comprehensive energy reform that will address our independence from oil being brought into the United States from Saudi Arabia and Venezuela and other places where there's so much uncertainty as well as political opposition to the United States, and move away from oil and coal and other fossil fuels that are causing global warming and climate change. We've got to take a leadership role and not deny the science and think that the problem doesn't exist, because it does exist. We've just seen record heat waves all around the country and around the world, and we've seen droughts at our farms in this country.

Do you feel environmental issues have taken a backseat because of the economy?

I think if we looked at putting a tax on carbon, which would be an incentive for reducing carbon emissions and using alternatives to oil and coal, that it would be a boost to our economy because we'd be sending a clear market signal that we want investment in that area. We want more renewable fuel, we want more alternative systems, we want more technology to reduce pollution. We'd be the leader in the world and we'd be selling that technology around the world. That would help us with our economy as well as our environment.

Do you think there's a chance the House could shift to the Democrats in the next election?

I'm hopeful and I'm optimistic. I think a lot of people are so upset at Congress. Congress is now at a support level of 10 percent of the population, which means 90 percent think Congress has been doing a terrible job. What they need to understand is that the Congress that they're angry at has been the Republican Congress. The Republicans control the House and they really control the Senate, because they've been able to block the president's proposals by not allowing the measures to come up for a vote and giving the 60 votes necessary to stop a filibuster, even if they want to vote against a proposal. I still hope that we'll get a majority for the Democrats in the

The Westside Subway Extension is a hot issue in Beverly Hills. Back in the 1980s after the Ross Dress for Less methane explosion, you withdrew support for the subway extension. Tell us about that.

What I did was I insisted that they not tunnel in an area where there was a high possibility of an explosion for methane gas. I insisted I would support the subway, but they had to avoid the Fairfax/Wilshire area, which was the law for quite a long period of time. Mayor [Antonio] Villaraigosa asked me to reconsider my objection to tunneling down Wilshire. Going down Wilshire to the ocean certainly makes a lot of sense in terms of ridership. I said I'd be happy to reconsider it, but I just didn't want to take the views of the people who were going to build it; I wanted an independent panel of technical experts to look at it to see whether we have the ability to tunnel safely. My primary concern then and now is that the routes for the subway be driven by safety, and the best available science. This commission met and said that they felt that the technology was there and that the drilling could be done safely. Based on that I withdrew my opposition, even changed the law so that the Metropolitan Transportation Authority could pick a route down Wilshire Boulevard without having to avoid that Wilshire/Fairfax area. In Beverly Hills there's a real controversy over whether the proposed Century City station at Constellation Boulevard should be accepted because it entails tunneling under the Beverly High campus. I've heard from people who are very much against doing that.

I wrote to the MTA and said to them that I wanted to ensure the voice of Beverly Hills residents is heard on this process. On April 12, I sent a letter to MTA CEO Art Leahy urging the Metro board to carefully consider the data and analysis provided by the independent experts commissioned by the City of Beverly Hills and the Beverly Hills [Unified] School District, and to only tunnel under the high school if it is the safest alternative. I supported MTA's decision to hold a public hearing at the behest of Beverly Hills that was dedicated entirely to reviewing the Century City station location and the implications of tunneling under the high school campus.

Where we are today is that the Metro board finalized the Constellation alignment and they determined it is the safest alternative because the seismic hazards posed by fault zones on Santa Monica Boulevard could not be mitigated. On Aug. 14, the Federal Transit Administration granted a "record of decision" approving the final environmental review and clearing the project for entry into the federal New Starts Program. I know that this decision is being challenged by litigation. [The City of] Beverly Hills [and] BHUSD filed a lawsuit in state court on claims that it violates the California Environmental Quality Act, and the school board voted to extend the contract with their lobbyist [Venable] for $132,062, considerably more than their existing $15,000-a-month contract in order to begin working on a federal suit challenging the subway under the National Environmental Protection Act, and the funds are coming from a bond initiative for school construction.

Whatever the outcome of these lawsuits, I'm committed to ensuring that Metro fully complies with safety measures it has proposed for hazard mitigation at every step of the way, particularly the Westside Subway Extension. We all want the subway to be a successful project. It will bring jobs, it will bring mobility and reduce the utter gridlock that paralyzes the Westside of Los Angeles. Some people are saying they would rather have no subway than that particular tunneling underneath the high school. I can't agree with that. I think we need to go forward and rely on the best technical and scientific information to make sure that safety is our No. 1 consideration.

Do you feel confident in Metro's decision, which proposes tunneling under the high school?

They feel confident and it's their decision. Some people want to stop the whole subway, and I can't agree with that.

Tell us about your family.

We have a son and a daughter. Our daughter [Shai] is the mother of three children and they're living in Israel. [Her] two older kids are in the Israeli Army. They were born in Israel. I regret we don't get to see them as often as we would like.

Our son [Michael], who lived in L.A., moved with his wife [Marjorie] to the East Coast because she's an only child and her mother wanted her to be closer, especially when she had children. They have a five-year-old daughter and a three-year-old son. They chose to live in Bethesda, Md. So we get to see them more often because that's right outside Washington. I enjoy all the time I spend with both sets of grandchildren.

I'm married to the same woman, my first and only wife, for over 40 years, originally Janet Kessler, who attended Fairfax High and lived in Beverlywood. I grew up in South Central L.A. and went to Fremont High School. When I married my wife, one of the local papers had a headline-because I was in the state Assembly at the time—that said: "Assemblyman weds Fairfax grad." That was a really good local angle.
