"Korbatov calls Highlights editorial 'troubling" [Issue 680]

I was dismayed to read your article about School Board member Lisa Korbatov's diatribe against Highlights, the high school's student-run newspaper, of which my daughter is co-editor-in-chief. Apparently, Ms. Korbatov took issue with an editorial critical of the Board's choice to spend large sums on anti-subway lobbyists. The editorial suggested that some of those funds could have been better spent on other educational needs.

Elected officials such as Ms. Korbatov know that public criticism of their decisions comes with the territory. She is entitled to her opinion that the editorial was ill-informed, but she went out of bounds by railing that some statements in the editorial were "absolutely borderline inane." She then stated that she did not support Highlights staffers attending the upcoming national high school journalism conference in San Antonio, Texas, because, according to her, they do not need to "go all the way to Texas to figure out that they need to brush up on their journalistic skills." Ms. Korbatov further claimed that the editorial writer was obligated to speak with board members, or with seismic experts hired by the board, before writing the editorial.

In fact, it's Ms. Korbatov, not the Highlights staffers, who is ill-informed and who needs to do a little brushing up -- but, in her case, on the First Amendment, on journalism standards, and on the proper way for a school board member to speak to the students for whom she is supposed to be a role model.

High school students have the right to express their opinions, even if their opinions differ from those of school board members. And, just like school board members, students can sometimes even be wrong. The Founders believed that by vigorously exercising our First Amendment right to freely express and debate our opinions -- even "wrong" opinions -- with those who disagree with us, the best views will eventually win out. But for that system to work, each of us must respect others' rights to hold and express opinions contrary to our own. In my opinion — with which Ms. Korbatov is free to disagree — it's especially important for a school board member to show respect for students' opinions, even when she believes those opinions are misguided. # Parents defend Highlights staff at PTSA meeting Oct. 12

At a PTSA meeting Friday, Beverly High parents discussed Board of Education member Lisa Korbatov's comments at an Oct. 9 board meeting that she would not support a Highlights staff trip to a journalism conference in San Antonio because she had taken issue with an editorial criticizing the board in its efforts against the Metro Subway Extension plan to tunnel under Beverly High.

"My concern was our children were being discussed in a public forum in a way minors don't need to be discussed. We don't talk about our Courier editor, our Weekly editor that way in public, their writing style or their fact checking, and I was disturbed," said Beverly Hills Education Foundation Chairman Jonathan Prince.

Korbatov had said that while she did not have an issue with a group of people disagreeing with the board, the Highlights editorial board had formed opinions without the facts and without contacting any of the Board of Education members.

"For the Highlights board, it's a very important learning experience for them. You don't always agree with everyone, but you can't close your mind to the facts" she said in a phone interview. "I objected to the L.A. Times editorial because they also never spoke to us."

Board member Lewis Hall who attended the PTSA meeting Friday said he personally had taken issue with the article because of grammatical errors, but that he had supported the trip to San Antonio if it meant the students would become better writers.

"The greatest thing that you hope from a journalism class is that the kids learn to fight authority and the kids learn to write editorials that are controversial. This is what journalists go out in to the world to do and I think it's unfortunate that the class was criticized in a public forum," said PTSA Executive Vice President Franny Rennie at the Friday meeting.

Korbatov voted in favor of the trip to San Antonio on Nov. 14-18 after Chief Academic Officer Jen Tedford said the trip was for the Beverly High Watchtower yearbook staff and that it was identified as a journalism trip because Watchtower and Highlights are part of the same organization. The board voted to approve the trip 4-1, Pres. Brian Goldberg dissenting.

However, the trip is extended to broadcast students, and both Watchtower and Highlights staff, though they may not all have students participate, according the Highlights advisor Gaby Herbst.

"The field trip was filed by the Watchtower advisor," she said. "For journalism conferences or field trips, we all extend invitations to each other's students."

The Highlights publication is a 2011-2012 National Pacemaker Finalist. The winner of the Pacemaker Award will be announced at the San Antonio conference.

Korbatov gave a presentation on the Westside Subway extension to ASB and the Highlights staff on Thursday, Oct. 8.

"When I received the editorial, I went to the superintendent and said 'Why don't we bring the facts to them?" said Korbatov. "We had an honest forthright discussion. They were extremely receptive and some were taking notes. I think it was educational and instructive."

Korbatov said she takes the issue seriously because she was on Highlights and her oldest daughter was, as well.

"I think going to them shows that I do respect them or else I would've ignored them. It really matters to me what these kids think," she said.

Danny Licht, Highlights culture editor, declined to comment. Reported in last week's issue of the Weekly, Herbst invited Korbatov to write a letter to the editor.

7-Eleven convenience stores denied Beverly Hills location

The Planning Commission unanimously decided on Oct. 11 they could not make the required findings to allow a 7-Eleven to open in Beverly Hills. The final vote was 3-0 and made by Chair Craig Corman, Vice Chair Brian Rosenstein and Commissioner Dan Yukelson. Commissioner Howard Fisher was out of town, and the Planning Commission has a vacancy.

"We had concerns about the appropriateness of the business at that location. The way the facility was situated on the lot did not engage the street front to the extent the southeast task force was looking for," said Corman. "There was concern about noise and that it would be a potential magnet for crime, and the proposed facility did not have enough parking spaces to meet expected demand."

The 7-Eleven was being proposed at 401 S. Robertson Boulevard on the corner of Robertson and Olympic. The space has been a vacant lot since 2004. Beforehand, a gas station operated at the location.

In the past, convenience stores meeting the minimum code requirements could have been approved by right, but the City Council passed an interim ordinance last April requiring "high-impact convenience stores"—stores that dedicate over half the square footage to the sale of general food and drink products, tobacco, magazines and toiletries; open before 7 a.m. or close after 9 p.m.; and have on-site surface parking or are located within 300 feet of a residential zone—to be subject to discretionary review. As a result, any potential convenience store meeting that definition must apply for a conditional use permit to operate in Beverly Hills.

Margaret Chabris, director of corporate communications at 7-Eleven, said the company was disappointed they had not been approved to move forward on what she said was a "state of the art location" for Beverly Hills.

"We spent many hours and dollars to do what they had recommended and suggested and thought we were proceeding to a positive store that would suit the needs of the residents," she said.

Chabris said the company had put together a team familiar with Beverly Hills. Fran Cohen, former chair of the architectural commission, was 7-Eleven's representative at the meeting. Cohen declined to comment.

"We felt we had a solid team to help us do the right thing for Beverly Hills' needs," said Chabris.

She said they had commissioned studies at the request of the commission for environmental, parking, and traffic impact and all had shown the project would not have a negative impact.

Corman said there were already a number of convenience stores in the area, including a mini-mart in the Arco station across the street on the southeast corner of Robertson and Olympic, a mini-mart in the Shell station on the northwest corner of Robertson and Olympic, and another store in the mini-mall on the northeast corner of Robertson and Olympic.

There is an existing 7-Eleven seven blocks away from the proposed location, on the southwest corner of La Cienega and Olympic boulevards in Los Angeles.

Chabris said they had been looking at plans to sell organic produce, specialty products and kosher food at the proposed location.

The 7-Eleven had applied for a permit allowing the store to stay open 24 hours a day. Corman said the commission had a problem with the after-hours permit. The 7-Eleven had previously appeared before the Planning Commission for a project preview on Oct. 27, 2011 to receive feedback.

"It wasn't your standard 7-Eleven, but ultimately the concern that was voiced at the prior meeting was still there," he said. "But the applicant made a substantial attempt to address those concerns."

If the issue is appealed to the City Council, Vice Mayor John Mirisch will have to recuse himself because he lives within 500 feet of the project. Mirisch recused himself when the Council passed the convenience store ordinance in April 2011.

Bruce Cole in transit to Missouri

Former Beverly Hills resident Bruce Cole is on his way back to Missouri, through a private prisoner transportation company. The Randolph County Sheriff's office expects his arrival by the weekend.

Cole was arrested on Sept. 18 in Dana Point in connection with a complaint filed by the Missouri Attorney General's office charging Cole with five felonies -- one count of theft and four counts of securities fraud. That same day, the United States Securities and Exchange Commission filed a civil case against Cole, alleging two counts of fraud. The Weekly covered the charges in its issue #677 cover story.

Charges stem from a failed business deal Bruce Cole executed between his company, Mamtek, and the City of Moberly, Mo. to build a sucralose manufacturing facility which was expected to bring 600 jobs to the city of 14,000 residents. The City of Moberly committed a $39-million bond for the project.

Cole is accused of using a fake company to divert $6.6 million dollars for personal use. including an alleged $700,000 payment to his wife, Nanette Cole, Nanette Cole has not been charged of wrongdoing, but is a "relief defendant" in the SEC civil case, which seeks repayment of the allegedly stolen funds.

Missouri Governor Jay Nixon requested Cole's extradition. Once Cole arrives in Missouri, his bond will be set at $500,000.

Cole will have to apply for a public defender and be certified as indigent once he arrives in Missouri.

Cultural Heritage Commission recommends nine properties as local historic landmarks

The Cultural Heritage Commission unanimously recommended eight properties that appear on the National Register of Historical Places to the City Council as local historic landmarks on Oct. 9. A 1940's built residence at 603 Doheny Road designed by master architect James Beverly Wilshire Hotel F. Dickason was also recommended to the City Council.

The eight properties that appear on the national register are Greystone Mansion, the Beverly Hills Main Post Office, Beverly Wilshire Hotel, Beverly Hills Women's Club, the Virginia Robinson Estate, the Harold Lloyd Estate, the Frank Lloyd-Wrightdesigned Anderton Court shops on Rodeo Drive, and the 1960-built Karasik House on Spalding Drive designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, Jr.

"All of the properties that were up for consideration had been vetted by the commission at its Sept. 4 meeting," said Commission Chair Noah Furie. "The national register properties represent among the best historic resources in the city."

The Fox Wilshire Theater, which also appears on the National Register, was continued to the commission's Nov. 6 meeting at the request of the applicant.

In the future, Furie said the commission would consider a recommendation to amend the code so when a Beverly Hills property is designated on the national register it will automatically be included in the local register. Furie said the criteria for listing properties on the national register meet Beverly Hills' local criteria.

The application for the Doheny Road property was submitted by former Mayor Mark Egerman on behalf of the property owner to participate in the Mills Act pilot program, which requires that participating properties first be designated local historic landmarks. Gary Masino is listed on the application as the trustee for the property owner.

The Mills Act was passed by the state of California to encourage preservation and rehabilitation of historic properties by offering tax incentives to property owners.

The residence was occupied by Liliore Green Palmer, daughter of Burton Green, a Beverly Hills co-founder. Merv Griffin is included among later occupants of the home.

To qualify as a local historic landmark, properties must have architectural value, retain integrity from their period of significance, and meet at least two of six additional criteria of significance.

The Cultural Heritage Commission expects to discuss the 1920-built Witches' house on Walden Drive, the 1926-built Waverly Mansion on Hillcrest Road, and the 1953established Hilton office building at 9990 Santa Monica Boulevard at the commission's January meeting.

Friedman's grandmother, Gloria Boraz, taught at Horace Mann for 30 years. His mother, Nancy Friedman and aunts, Barbara Zarider and Leslie Boraz attended Beverly Vista and Beverly High and have taught at el Rodeo, Beverly High and Horace Mann. Boraz was profiled in a Valentine's Day cover story last year in Issue #645.

Friedman, who attended El Rodeo, felt joining ASB was his way of expressing his love for the district. Elected by Beverly High students in June 2012, Friedman said he ran unopposed. He represents the approximately 4,500 students in BHUSD.

"[The experience has] allowed me to keep the focus on the student population. We're going through a time where we're worrying about the subway, which is important to our future students," he said. "We have a lot of issues that do tie back to the student."

Though the student board member is allowed to give an advisory vote, student members have not exercised that right for at least four to five years, according to Friedman. He approached Pam Kraushaar, assistant to the superintendent and asked her to call his name during roll call votes.

"The hot topic is, 'Is my program safe?" he said. "'Jason, will you protect it?"

The student board member must be a senior and must have been in ASB for two semesters prior to running. Friedman is also a member of Beverly High robotics team, Mortorq. Friedman would not tell the Weekly where he is looking to attend college. As for picking a college major, he is undecided. But he is interested in education and policy, and said maybe there is a future in both.

As for his most memorable experience thus far, Friedman recalled when Board of Education President Brian Goldberg told him that his opinion had changed Goldberg's vote on a decision regarding filling a vacant secretary position.

"A few weeks ago, they were voting whether or not to fill that position, and I voiced how having that position filled is important to the student body. Lines would have been half a mile around the attendance office," said Friedman. "It was refreshing that I heard from the school board president that I changed his vote."

at the City Council meeting on Oct 23.

According to City officials, a 2005 audit found the center was not filing under the appropriate tax classification and owed $5.5 million in back taxes, penalties and interest.

Specialty Surgery Center had been filing under classification C, which is intended for professionals and semi professionals, such as physicians and lawyers. These businesses are taxed relative to the number of employees and hours worked. Classification F is intended for businesses that lease commercial space. They are taxed based on gross receipts of approximately $23.53 per $1,000.

The audit found that part of Specialty Surgery Center's business is professional and the other part is renting space for a fee. They needed to register in both classifications C and F, according to Noel Marquis, assistant director of Administrative Services.

At an Oct. 3 town hall meeting organized by Stella Sarraf, whose husband, James Khodabakhsh is an ophthalmologist and managing partner at Specialty, speakers argued surgery centers did not lease or rent commercial space.

"The doctor is not renting a space, the doctor is performing a procedure there. The patients aren't renting the space. They're having a colonoscopy," he said at the meeting.

Speakers also said if Specialty lost the appeal, filing under both tax rates would

Run Jimmy Run?

History and candidates
By Rudy Cole

Former Mayor Barry Brucker's surprise announcement that he would not seek a third term has opened a political spigot of possible and talked about candidates for City Council.

One of our most well known former mayors, Jimmy Delshad, told this column last week that he is seriously considering running. He would not be the first to leave without ever losing and return for another term: Donna Ellman Garber (1976 &1981) managed that feat.

Others mentioned who might be willing to run, if given sufficient encouragement, are former school board presidents Lillian Raffel and Myra Lurie (hopefully Stuart Raffel and David Goldman do not have me on speed dial).

Delshad has been testing the political climate, and both Raffel and Lurie have reportedly been receiving calls urging them to run. Lurie was a recent unanimous appointee to a City commission and is denying any interest in a council race, but she would be formidable. When she successfully ran for reelection, and despite a strong anti-school board campaign, she far outdistanced another winner: Dr. Brian David Goldberg. Steven Fenton led the field in the same election.

Raffel also won unanimous appointment to a City commission and has served more recently as president of the Beverly Hills-West Hollywood Democratic Club.

AJ Willmer may have considered – he has been an active and effective prexy of Rotary, and also served on the school board – but has not confirmed any real interest yet. The highly popular Alan Kaye could have been a very formidable candidate for City Council or treasurer, but business obligations make a run now, according to Kaye, very unlikely. He did not rule out a future race for either office.

Last week we reported that current school board member Lisa Korbatov told us she was "leaning, maybe" but no word on her plans since Brucker's withdrawal. Probably less likely.

Planning Commission Vice Chair Brian Rosenstein, clearly an early favorite, is not taking anything for certain. He has started coffee hours and the tedious chore of walking to every home in the city. Walking is probably our best political activity – voters meet the candidates and contenders actually learn what voters want and think about our needs.

However, the front runner should be Dr. Willie Brien, as we have said – best name recognition, most able to build consensus, and a strong leader.

Repeating past observations, John Mirisch does very well in forums, appeals to many anti-council majority activists and loves being in the opposition – no matter the issue. Incidentally, he and Korbatov are registered Republicans, a throwback to the days when the local GOP ran city politics. Korbatov is more active in the party, supporting Republican candidates around the country.

Dr. Brien neither exploits nor demurs from his familial ties to his illustrious grandfather, Earl Warren, California governor, and possibly our greatest Chief Justice of the United States. (For civic student readers, the Chief Justice's title is not Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, but Chief Justice of the United States. Aside from being the presiding justice on our highest court, the "Chief" is also the top administrator of the entire federal judicial system, an enormous responsibility.)

Brucker has received a considerable number of messages urging him to reconsider, but his decision appears, at least as of this writing, to be final.

Delshad parlayed his mayoral service (2007 & 2010) into international recognition, in part because of his unique personal history– fleeing Iran to make a new life and home in America, rising to become mayor of Beverly Hills.

FORMER MAYORS, PERSONAL REMEMBRANCES:

Although few Beverly Hills mayors received as much attention as Delshad, many did make news in and out of Beverly Hills. Our most famous was, of course, Will Rogers, (1926 to 1928) but he was an "honorary" not elected mayor before the city was incorporated.

A brief mention of others who became known beyond our borders:

Dr. Charles Aronberg (1974 &1979) was a UCLA Alumni of the Year, a well known expert witness throughout the nation in medical malpractice law suits, and Rodney King's eye doctor - trial witness. Aronberg was also eye doctor for the Raiders when they played at the Coliseum and an early eye doctor for the Lakers.

Hugh Darling (1960) was the managing partner of a leading Republican law firm: Darling, Shattuck, Hall and Call. Asa Call had been Republican National Chairperson and the firm was a leader in representing airlines, then including the regional Western Airlines.

We had two general officers, Major Gen. Leroy Watson (1966) and Lt. Gen. Harold George (1954 &1959). Watson was at Nuremberg and really "got" what we were doing in trying war criminals. However, later in his career he turned way to the right, joining the John Birch Society. (We had any number of Birchers in Beverly Hills then.) George, on leaving the council, became a senior corporate officer of a defense contrac-

Probably the most famous business name ever to serve on the council but not as mayor was Leonard Firestone (1956 to 1960), heir to the tire company. He was a very moderate Republican, backing Thomas Kuchel in his three campaigns for United States Senate, the last against a fiery right winger, Max Rafferty, who was, incredibly, state superintendent of public instruction.

One former mayor, Eugene Gunther (1953), was a druggist and operated a pharmacy at the corner of Canon and Little Santa Monica – fill a prescription and file a complaint about garbage collection at the same time and place.

Not sure if any other mayor wrote a book—Delshad probably should — but our city's most famous author is certainly Robert K. Tanenbaum (1988 &1992) whose works of fiction and non-fiction, mostly about law and crime, have made him a nationally recognized, New York Times best-selling author.

In recent years, Robert K. and I have found some areas of agreement—he was a rock on the permit parent effort—but we strongly differed when he became a critic of our own law enforcement agency. That dispute, and retelling it here would take far too much space, but it also involved my close friend, Mayor Maxwell Salter, who backed our cops. It was ironic—Max and I were both card carrying civil libertarians, Max even more so, a lifetime backer of the ACLU, in conflict with Robert K., a tough, former New York prosecutor.

The then political battle – Max helping fund the campaign to deny Tanenbaum a third term in 1994 – was exhausting and I looked forward to returning to my hometown of Fostoria for a high school reunion. To get to Fostoria, we had to take a bus from Toledo, arriving at the station which was also the village's largest drug store. What did we see first when we entered: a massive display of Tanenbaum's most recent novel.

When Tanenbaum celebrated his second inauguration as mayor, these were actually his bizarre first words at the event, and I am not making this up. Tanenbaum said: "I have just spoken to the Attorney General, and Rudy Cole has been cleared of any involvement in the assassination of Robert Kennedy." I suggested to him that he leave the humor to Charlotte Spadaro (1986).

About Spadaro: Her fame came mostly after she left the Council, paradoxically being charged with animal cruelty, despite her long role as an advocate of animal rights.

For political paradoxes, how about former Mayor Joe Tilem (1978) becoming a legislative advocate for developers? His first real political involvement in Beverly Hills was as president of the Beverly Hills Municipal League when he led a quixotic and unsuccessful fight against the Bank of America building on Little Santa Monica (Why would anyone want to change that to Santa Monica South? No respect for history, I suspect.)

Although Phyllis Seaton (1973), our first woman councilmember and mayor, had many personal achievements by herself, she was the wife of one of the most respected names in the entertainment industry, George Seaton, a one-time president of the Academy.

Quite accidentally, certainly not something I could have ever planned, but when I was managing Leonard Horwin's election to the city council, we had sent a mailer to voters with George Seaton's endorsement. The Monday before the election, Seaton received the Humanitarian Award at the Oscar's.

George Slaff (1968 &1975) was one of the best known lawyers in the entertainment industry before and after his election to the council. His most important client was, for years, Samuel Goldwyn, but he also represented Raquel Welch and the Smothers Brothers – all appearing at a special retirement party when Slaff left the council.

Another personal connection: I was having lunch with then Los Angeles Police Chief Tom Reddin at a Hollywood restaurant when Slaff spotted me from across the room and came over to say a quick hello. He had not seen Reddin until he arrived at our table and I quickly introduced them. Although they had never met, it was Slaff, then chair of the ACLU, who had just filed a civil rights law suit against the LAPD! Not my most comfortable moment

Vicki Reynolds (1991, 1994 & 2000) probably had the best ties to the Democratic Party. She was an early supporter and friend of Sen. Dianne Feinstein.

One more note on Salter, but when then Senator Joe Biden once spotted Salter at the Beverly Hills Hotel, he prostrated himself in a mock tribute. Max was also proud of another accomplishment: He made Richard Nixon's infamous "enemies list."

NOT TO MISS:

Good event to attend: One of the most relaxed and enjoyable annual events is always the Beverly Hills Athletic Alumni dinner, this year at our finest banquet venue, the Beverly Hilton.

This year's honorees include Mayor Dr. Willie Brien and Nicole Avant. Steven Fenton and Leeza Gibbons are hosting. (Some dinners you attend because of civic duty, this one is truly fun, too. For information: call 310.385.0679)

LOCAL HEROES:

Although many staff people and City officials, including Mayor Brien and all members of the City Council plus community leaders deserve accolades for working out the compromise at Roxbury Park, three who merit special mention are Councilmember Lili Bosse, Project Manager Donielle Kahikina, and Assistant Director Community Services/City Librarian Nancy Hunt-Coffey.

Kahikina and Coffey took the preliminary plans, carefully listened to council direction and promulgated a new plan that met the test of the possible and the utilitarian – and it is exciting and works. Bosse's conciliation and leadership responded to neighbors' concerns and colleagues' needs with tact and compassion. Together, these three helped make it happen. They are this week's Local Heroes.

Funeral for Beverly High soccer coach to be held Oct. 19

Darren Davie

Beverly High soccer coach, Darren Davies, passed away from a sudden cardiac arrest on Oct 10. He was 30 years old.

Davies was an assistant coach for the Beverly High varsity soccer team and the head trainer.

Davies was also an AYSO Region 76 coach.

"The hardest part other than trying to deal with his loss," said varsity soccer coach Steve Rappaport, "was that Wednesday morning, having to inform over 60 players that were involved with Darren about what happened."

Rappaport, who organized the event, said over 300 people were in attendance. Among other reasons, Rappaport said the memorial was organized because Davies coached young kids not only at the high school, but also in AYSO and 9 to 10-year-old players on the A.C. Milan club team. The service provided a place where the kids could go.

Speakers at the memorial Sunday included Davies' wife and father, Ligia Rodrigues Davies and Alvin Davies, Board of Education President Brian Goldberg and Vice President Jake Manaster, and senior soccer captains Elijah Lichtenberg and Josh Horowitz. Rappaport said speakers covered Davies' entire life and also included his high school soccer coach, speakers from A.C. Milan, AYSO, and childhood friends.

"He was as much a life coach as he was a soccer coach," said Rappaport. "That was the relationship he had with everybody, adults to little children. He had that kind of connection about him."

The Weekly's exclusive interview with BHPOA President Officer Finn McClafferty

By Melanie Anderson

So, how did you get involved with the Beverly Hills Police Officers Association board of directors?

Working my way as a police officer, I feel it's important to be a part of the community relations aspect of it, and establishing not only a working relationship, but [also] a friendship to bring business people and residents together and be more efficient as a police officer. As far as the board, I worked my way in as a shop steward, [which is] a liaison between your standard patrol officers and field sergeants to the department and the management staff and also the City.

I believed [being part of the board] was very important as far as not only fulfilling my professional goals but also personal goals [by] building the department up into a good, positive place to work and working with the community. It's such an incredible place to work, and the equipment, benefits and the pay that we have here is fantastic. As far as being involved in all aspects of the community, the Beverly Hills Police Officers Association supports [non-profits including] Beverly Hills Education Foundation and The Maple Counseling Center and other community related events.

Before becoming president, you were secretary and then vice president. Tell us about that.

I started out as a member-at-large, [which is] a member who is on the board and helps in making decisions for the association. After serving two years, I officially became the secretary. After several years, I worked my way up to the vice president and Terry Nutall was the president.

I became president [approximately three months ago] when Terry Nutall was promoted from sergeant to lieutenant. As soon as you become a lieutenant, you're no longer represented by the Beverly Hills Police Officers Association. It's in our bylaws. He was a fantastic president. He did an incredible job with the community and with our department and our officers as far as pay, benefits, working conditions and established some incredible friendships.

How has Nutall helped you transition into the role of president?

He's been an incredible mentor as far as providing me guidance and education on the role of the president, leadership and moving forward in the community, and making sure that we have a good, positive relationship with the businesses, the citizens and also with the City of Beverly Hills' management, city manager and city council.

Tell us about your goals as BHPOA president.

My No. 1 goal is to provide the citizens and the businesses here in Beverly Hills with five-star service. The main thing is being professional, being polite, establishing a good friendship and a working relationship as police officers; being good ambassadors to the police department and representing the City, its residents and its businesses; always maintaining a high level of professionalism and compassion to all parties; and making sure that the residents are very happy with the service, and also making sure retired. Tell us about BHPD's transition to fill the vacancies.

We did lose a lot of incredibly veteran police officers due to the contract [negotiations] and now as far as the transition stage of recruitment and retention, the City and the POA and its members are actively recruiting police officers, whether they're at the entry level or at the lateral level to come and work for the police department.

Has the department made some new hires since the retirements?

Yes. I believe at [the present] we have hired approximately eight officers and a majority of them are at the entry level. I believe we have six at the entry level and "I always looked up to police officers, firefighters, public service as incredible role models. Some of them were active in my life as my football coaches, swim coaches, and water polo coaches. I looked up to them as mentors. As a little kid, I said someday I would like to become one of them."

we're maintaining a level of confidentiality amongst the businesses and the residents. They want to make sure that they're secure in their homes and secure in their businesses and that we provide that type of confidentiality in any type of circumstances.

How do you execute such goals?

We provide in-house training. As POA members, we will go out and into roll calls. Whatever division you are in, we have roll calls and we give them advice on maintaining that high level of professionalism and customer service and making sure that we are good stewards of the City.

Any other goals you want to highlight?

One of the goals is to continue funding our lifetime medical [benefits] for retired police officers and their spouses [by] finding donors for the police officers' medical trust. That's one of the major objectives for the POA. [Another goal] is to find or encourage donations to the police officers' children's college fund to provide assistance to any we just received two laterals, one from the California Highway Patrol, and one from the Los Angeles Police Department.

Do you think contractual changes such as officers contributing to their own pensions for the first time and the implementation of the two-tier retirement system, in which new hires get different benefits from continuing officers, are affecting BHPD's recruitment?

Yes. As far as seeking out experienced law enforcement officers from other agencies such as the Los Angeles Police Department and Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, we're having a difficulty getting those types of experienced officers wanting to lateral over here because of the changes in benefits and contributing more to their retirement.

We're still getting incredible [applicants], and Beverly Hills Police Department does an incredible job in their background in finding the officer that fits our strict criteria of being a member of this department. I truly believe our testing process is probably the most thorough in all aspects, whether it's academic, athletic training or work experience. They take great pride in the selection. They're very detailed on that hiring process. I think the six people we hired are fantastic and I think they're going to be outstanding officers. It's just that employment pool, where we're able to attract 10-year plus veterans that were detectives or specialized units at some of these other agencies, has become a little bit more difficult to try to recruit.

What do you think about the contractual changes?

I think that in today's financial climate, some of them are necessary. As far as fiscal responsibility for the City, for its residents, for its businesses, all residents and everybody that works here needs to share in that. I do believe we all have that fiscal responsibility to provide not only the best service, but also understand if there is some sort of financial crisis, we need to share in that and all work together to accomplish that goal.

Tell us what inspired you to go into law enforcement.

I'm the son of immigrants. My parents were immigrants from Ireland. My mom was a maid in Beverly Hills; my father was a lineman for the Department of Water and Power. One of my brothers is a fireman. My parents have always been huge on public relations and friendships, and having a mom be involved in domestic help, having an incredible work ethic, and my father, [who] passed away when we were young, had a strong work ethic.

As far as the police department, I always looked up to police officers, firefighters, public service as incredible role models. Some of them were active in my life as my football coaches, swim coaches, and water polo coaches. I looked up to them as mentors. As a little kid, I said someday I would like to become one of them.

After I graduated from college I started seeking full-time employment in public service. I was a paramedic and ranger for the [California state] park service. I was assigned to law enforcement. Prior to that, I was a college swimmer and water polo player and during that time I was a lifeguard at the beach [in Huntington Beach].

Tell us how you started out as a police officer.

After working for the park service, I had a friend that left the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department. He was the No. 1 recruit in the Sheriff's class of 168 officers. He worked for the Sheriff's Department and then met several officers from Beverly Hills Police Department that were in his class. They were bragging how incredible an agency Beverly Hills was to work. I was familiar with Beverly Hills because my mom was a maid here and I knew some of the officers that worked here. I never even thought that this would be a fantastic place for me to work also. After my friend applied and got the job, he encouraged me to do the same and I followed in his shoes. That was Officer Michael McKessy, [who is] a motor officer for the department.

So, how did you become a K-9 handler?

[My family] used to go back to Ireland and we had hunting dogs in Ireland. We also had Labradors as pets, so I was very familiar with training dogs and working dogs. I saw that there was an opportunity I could take my experience and my passion for dogs and use them as a police department function. [I've been a K-9 handler for nine years, and been with BHPD for a total of 15 years.]

Tell us about the duties of the K-9 unit.

The Beverly Hills Police Department has five dogs. Four of the dogs are assigned to patrol, [but they] are also dual purpose. What that means is they do suspect apprehension and they also do some type of detection work, whether it's explosive detection or narcotic detection. We have one other dog, which is our Labrador that's assigned to our narcotics unit, and that dog is specifically only for drug protection.

As far as the duties of a K-9 officer, specifically patrol, is to provide a visibility element in the City to deter any type of crime. If we're looking at somebody who is a predator that is looking around to maybe commit a crime of robbery or burglary, us being a high visible unit patrolling the area, if they see that the K-9 element is there, generally they don't want to commit a crime, because they know that we'll have a rapid response time to any type of crime in progress. We have this incredible tool to search and locate the suspect if he's trying to conceal himself from being captured.

As far as explosive detection, being the benefit of Beverly Hills, we have two presidents that stayed here [last week], President [Bill] Clinton and President [Barack] Obama. We also have high-level dignitaries, domestic and international, staying here in Beverly Hills. We provide K-9 sweeps for any type of dignitary that's been identified by the State Department that has some type of credible threat. We'll provide that five-star service of providing a K-9 sweep for them to make them feel comfortable and protected in our city.

BHPD's dogs are trained to respond to commands in German. Why is that?

The discipline of police dog training, the evolution of it began primarily in Germany. That is the culture that has embraced having police dogs actively involved in police work. Our dogs and typically throughout law enforcement, most of the dogs have what's called a schutzhund background. That's the basic discipline background for obedience and protection. There are three levels of schutzhund: schutzhund II, schutzhund III, schutzhund III, and our dogs are generally at a schutzhund III level. Any member of the general public can be involved in schutzhund but as far as training a police dog, we take it to a higher level. We need to do it in a hazardous or dangerous situation when we're trying to apprehend a suspect who is trying to hurt, harm or kill a police officer or a citizen.

Do all of BHPD's dogs receive training in Germany?

A majority of our dogs are from Germany. As far as the way our training works, it's kind of unique. Here in Beverly Hills, generally we train our dogs from beginning to end. The actual handler assigned to that dog will be training that dog up through schutzhund and training it through the basic skills to increase that bond with the dog.

Are German commands also used to prevent suspects from attempting to control the dogs?

That relationship with the handler and the dog kind of provides a unique environment where the dog is not confused on commands, and as a general rule suspects don't know commands in German. It's a little element of secrecy where other people will not have that tactical advantage of trying to communicate with the dog.

Tell us about your family.

I have been married [to Kristy] for 19 years. I have a daughter [Kayla] who is 17 and a son [Kaden] who is 13. I live in Van Nuys and my mother-in-law lives with me and my father-in-law lived with me, [but] he just passed away. I also have another dog [Max], a Labrador, as a pet.

Are the commands to your pet dog in English?

No, they're in German, too. My kids and my mother-in-law all speak German commands to him, too.

The annual BHPOA Black & White Gala is coming up Nov. 5. Tell us about that.

That is going to be Monday, Nov. 5 at The Beverly Hilton. It begins at 6 p.m. with the silent auction and the dinner will be at 7 p.m. At the event, there will be awards given to the employees for [their] accomplishments, [including] officer of the year, [recognition for] investigative arrests, and also of some unique situations that [officers] solved or resolved, whether it's detectives or police officers, field police officers or motor officers, or K-9 officers. We recognize some of the accomplishments they've made through this calendar year. It's our largest event, where the community comes and supports the Police Officers Association and interacts with the officers and their families.

Beverly High expands Mandarin Chinese program

The Mandarin Chinese program began at Beverly High three years ago with one section of level I. The school has added a section every year and is now offering the fourth year for the students in the language program, according to Assistant Principal Amy Golden.

Mandarin teacher Jing Zhang-Brooks is from China and has lived in the United States for 22 years. She said Tuesday was her three-year anniversary at the school, and that during her first year, the class shared a room with a Spanish teacher. She took over the level I class about a month and a half into the school year. Prior to teaching at Beverly High, she taught at Santa Monica High School.

Now, the school offers all four levels of Mandarin and Zhang-Brooks has had her own classroom since the second year of the program. Zhang-Brooks said most of her students are Asian but not necessarily Chinese. Some are Korean, Filipino, and Malaysian, she said.

Four students, now seniors, have been in the program since it began and will be the first to complete all four years at Beverly High.

Artem Kondratiev, a senior who's taken all four years of Mandarin, said he chose to take Mandarin because he lived in China nearly all of his life.

"At the end of freshman year, we didn't have a lot of people," he said. "As a senior, the program is really starting to develop and there are a lot of people in the program and we're really happy for our teacher."

Kondratiev said he sees an interest spreading on campus.

"People are starting to realize that China and Chinese culture is going to be a factor in the coming years," he said. "I actually saw in our level I and II classes, there are different ethnic backgrounds. People have begun to understand how crucial Chinese is."

Senior Allison Lee, who is Chinese, said she had learned Chinese before and had not been interested in learning other languages. She said she had always expected the program to grow.

"I think that Chinese is an interesting language and people will take interest in the class," said Lee, who occasionally speaks Chinese at home.

Injury-Depleted BHHS Football Team Shut Out By Santa Monica

Injuries reduced the Beverly High football team to about 25 varsity players for Friday night's Ocean League game against Santa Monica, augmented by about 15 junior varsity players, according to coach Donald Paysinger.

The shortage of players "makes it very hard because you can't compete in practice the way you want to because you're afraid of getting somebody hurt and in turn it carries over to the game night," Paysinger said after the 24-0 loss at Santa Monica College.

When asked if many of his team's problems were because of a lack of healthy players, Paysinger responded, "Yes."

The players sidelined by injuries include starting quarterback Chase Crossley, who tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee when he "stepped awkwardly" when he was hit on a roll out pass in a 45-0 loss at San Marino Sept. 21, Paysinger said.

Friday's loss was the fifth in a row for the Normans (1-6, 0-2 in league play), the second time they have been shut out this season and the fifth time they had been held to seven points or less.

"We're not able to throw the ball and teams know that so they line nine guys up in the box and take away the run knowing that we can't throw the ball," Paysinger said.

ics lesson does she teach the students when she expresses her disagreement with their opinion so disrespectfully? What's worse, her putdown of the Highlights staff is even more destructive of the students' spirit because she is a public official who exercises authority over them. If Ms. Korbatov disagrees with a Highlights editorial, or believes that it was based on inaccurate fact reporting, her recourse is to write a letter to the editor, not to ridicule or bully the students from the pulpit of her elected office.

As to her claim that the students breached some journalistic rule, I say: bunk. All of us, including the students, have read many news reports and interviews detailing the Board members' and hired experts' views on the subway controversy. The Highlights staffers were no more required to interview the board members or the experts, before writing their editorial, than would the editorial board of the Los Angeles Times be required to interview the president before editorializing about his policies. Would Ms. Korbatov like to have an opportunity to argue her opinion to the editorial writer? You bet. But is it required? No. Remember, we're talking about an editorial, not a news report.

Beverly Hills is scheduled to play host to Morningside (4-3, 1-1) Friday night at Nickoll Field in an Ocean League game. The opening kickoff is set for 7 p.m.

The teams have one common opponent, Santa Monica, which defeated the Monarchs, 35-20, on Oct. 5.

The high school football website Calpreps. com is projecting a 22-8 victory for Morningside. It projected that Santa Monica would defeat Beverly Hills 48-6.

The Normans lost to the Monarchs, 6-2, last season in a game where Beverly Hills tight end Madison Moore was stopped less than one yard from the end zone on a fourth down pass with less than two minutes to play.

Senior Sydney Segal set a course record of 18 minutes, 2 seconds helping lead the Normans to the victory in an Ocean League girls' cluster cross county meet Oct. 11 at Rancho Park.

Segal finished 48 seconds ahead of the second-place finisher, Alice Wasserman of Santa Monica.

Lily Ting was the next Beverly Hills finisher, finishing third in 19:28, followed by fellow Norman senior Marisa Rothman, who was fourth in 19:37.

Beverly Hills finished with 22 points, 11 fewer than Santa Monica. Culver City was third with 81 and Hawthorne was fourth with 102 ers' attendance at journalism conventions reflects poorly only on her, not on the students. The students who represent and compete for Beverly at those conventions do our school district proud. Most recently, Highlights placed seventh nationally for papers of its size, was awarded First Class distinction by the National Scholastic Press Association, and is now in the running for the national Pacemaker Award, the "Oscar" of American high school journalism. For decades, Highlights has elevated the reputation of our school district, just as do the Madrigal Singers and the productions of the Performing Arts department. The students and their faculty advisers spend many long hours of hard work, mostly after school hours, to produce a paper that has brought great credit to our school district and our city. They deserve to be applauded, not ridiculed.

BHHS Boys' Water Polo Team Defeats Villanova Prep, Alemany

Beverly High defeated Villanova Prep, 10-8, in a pool play game of the Malibu Tournament Sept. 20 as David Prokopenko scored three goals and David Hakakian and Frosty Poppadinkus two each for the Normans.

Beverly Hills goaltender Hans Tercek made seven saves.

Bernardo DiPietro, Devyn Maggio and Keon Youssefzadeh also scored for the Normans.

Beverly Hills defeated Alemany, 6-5, in a fifth-place semifinal Sept. 22, as DiPietro scored twice and Maggio, Poppadinkus, Prokopenko and Ariel Rafalian once each.

The Normans lost to Flintridge Prep, 9-7, in the fifth-place game Sept. 22, despite three goals by Prokopenko and two by Poppadinkus.

He wrote, "even the highly conservative Orange County Register has editorialized against this Neanderthal scheme."

Rudy Cole is an experienced writer, and he knows exactly what that sentence means, if you read it literally. He is saying that the O.C. Register editorial board opposes Prop 32. I did some fact checking, and his statement is ABSOLUTELY, 100% FALSE! Proof: http://www.ocregister.com/opinion/union-373543-unionsprop.html . The official position of the paper is YES on 32, but because the paper is so open to other viewpoints, they allowed individuals (union people and academics) to write guest columns that opposed Prop 32. The O.C. Register is, of course, too classy to call those Prop 32 opponents "Neanderthals".

Rudy's prior career as a Democrat Party activist, consultant, and fundraiser obviously colors everything he writes about, especially good government reform measures like Proposition 32. If Prop 32 fails, you can thank people like Rudy and his fellow party and union hacks who have told every imaginable lie to shoot this entirely sensible ballot measure down.

RUDY COLE RESPONDS: The publication is listed as one opposing Prop. 32. (I hope I was wrong.) Mark is right about my prior life as a Democratic activist, but not on fundraising. If the party of Jefferson depended on me for financing, Ronald Reagan would still be president. However, keep reading - not even Josette is as attentive a reader.

"Barry's Big Announcement" [Issue #680]

I want to thank Barry Brucker for his many years of service to the City of Beverly Hills. He has done an outstanding job over that time while making tough decisions that were not always popular. Barry did what he felt was in the best interests of our city and us. People who are elected to serve are often second guessed, ridiculed, called out by the press and so on. Barry was no exception. Through it all, he came through with flying colors. Those who follow Barry Brucker in the years to come had better take his example of what it takes to be a leader. After all, our city deserves the best.

Don't sell your life insurance policy know the

Alan L. Kaye, CLU, ChFC President

Most people over the age of 70, who want to sell their old insurance policies for more than their cash surrender value, are not getting the most money from their assets.

AVOID RISKS OF INSURANCE FINANCING STRATEGIES

Others, who expect to create "something from nothing", participate in insurance financing plans without having full knowledge of the chances they are taking. You can avoid these risks by becoming informed of established procedures and you won't make costly mistakes.

The Alan Kaye Insurance Agency is a leader in the field of insurance and estate planning. Now, as a wholly owned subsidiary of National Financial Partners, an NYSE company, they have expanded their resources to better provide the latest planning strategies. This is a particularly important resource when performing due-diligence on life insurance settlement companies.

THREE ESSENTIAL RULES THAT CAN PREVENT YOU FROM MAKING COSTLY DECISIONS

- Provide full and accurate descriptions of all offers relating to the sale of your policy.
- Acquire at least five offers from unrelated insurance purchasing companies.
- Complete background checks on potential purchasers to make sure they are financially and commercially acceptable firms to do business with.

ARE YOU COMPLETING A LIFE INSURANCE SETTLEMENT OR JUST SETTLING?

What kind of insurance professional is helping you sell your old life insurance policy? Are you dealing with a life settlement specialist? Are you represented by a licensed professional with E&O Insurance that covers life settlements? Has your agent explained the risks involved in financing your life insurance?

Call us today to find out what your insurance is really worth and we will help you decide whether to sell, surrender, keep or replace your old insurance policy.
