Correction [Issue 750]

In the article, "Sparks Fly at Board of Education meeting," Former Board of Education Member Mel Spitz's quote was transcribed incorrectly. Spitz discussed that the superintendent's position is analogous to the CEO of a corporation, and Board of Education Vice President Brian Goldberg disagreed and saw the Board of Education as the CEO. Goldberg did not say it is the responsibility of the school board to run the schools according to policy rather than the superintendent.

HEAL THE BAY WILL ROGERS STATE BEACH

Ian MacDonald (left) and Ben Lipschitz (right) joined their El Rodeo 6th grade classmates at Heal the Bay Beach Cleanup Day at Will Rogers State Beach on Saturday where they learned about toxic and hazardous waste and helped clean up the beach. One hundred twenty pounds of trash was collected. such an initiative ideal. Half to 70% of residential water use in Southern California is for landscape uses, i.e., to keep our lawns green. This problem is greater in Beverly Hills, where the lots are larger and the lawns are greener, than in other nearby cities. Water wise and drought tolerant plants from other parts of the world offer a partial solution to the problem, but do not help the native birds, butterflies, and bees which have evolved to use mainly, or in many cases only, California native plants for feeding and breeding purposes.

California native plants have many other benefits: one-seventh the water use of a lawn, no pesticides, no fertilizers, no soil amendments, and decreased maintenance needs and yard waste. These benefits extend beyond water use to decreased pesticide and nitrogen runoff into streams, rivers and the ocean.

Relying on homeowners to plant native plants may eventually work if the drought persists or if the City of Beverly Hills raises residential water rates high enough, but this may take a long time. The City should take a leadership role in landscaping parks and schools with appropriate native plants, and perhaps eventually in terms of city ordinances governing water use and plantings. Green lawns are needed for athletic activities and native grasses are not a good substitute for these activities, but the City can begin to plant California native species in decorative areas surrounding the heavy use areas.

While there are native cacti and succulents, these represent the minority of native plants. Thanks to the diversity of California's terrain and climate, there are people- and pet-

Beverly in Gardens Park created disagreements between the Fine Arts and Recreation and Parks commissions regarding each commission's responsibilities. According to Tuesday's study session agenda, "confusion about the roles of the two commissions is leading to difficulty in accomplishing commission work."

Gold and Krasne met with both commissions to reach a consensus on roles and procedures. The amended responsibilities were brought to the City Council at Tuesday's Study Session meeting.

"We had no reference to maintenance, light-Committee ing or protection of the [art pieces]," Gold members said. "We called those out as specific issues Julian Gold that need[ed] to be addressed." Nancy

Under the amended responsibilities, the Fine Art Commission has the authority to purchase, protect, maintain and develop lighting options for fine art to be placed within the city. If the art piece were to be placed in any of the City's parks, the Recreation and Parks Commission need to be included in the discussion to select a location within the park.

If both commissions come to a consensus on if the art piece is appropriate for the park, including location, it will be presented to the City Council as a joint recommendation. If both commissions disagree, both commissions will bring separate recommendations to the City Council.

"It behoothes the Fine Art Commission when they're picking a piece to not only think of the ramifications of the piece that they're putting in the park [but also that] it will be exposed to people and children, dogs and cats, and everybody else that walks in the park," Krasne said.

According to Gold, the Fine Arts Commission will have the financial responsibility for the protection of art pieces.

"I think the people who are going to protect the piece ought to be the people who acquire the piece." Gold said.

Recreation and Parks Commission Chair Howard Rosoff said that if the art piece is potentially dangerous to park patrons or if the art will have a high maintenance cost, then the Recreation and Parks Commission should be able to have an opinion on the art selection.

"Our position is to look at [the art piece] and accept the fact that Fine Arts considers that a worthy piece of art is to be acquired," Rosoff said. "Then the question is, do we see any reason why it shouldn't be in the park?"

Fine Arts Commission Chair Fiona Chalom referred to past Recreation and Parks chairs who have had the opportunity to "voice their opinions about any of the pieces that have either been optioned or purchased."

"With regard to safety, we do have a risk management department and each and every one of the pieces that have come before us have [been] vetted through risk management," Chalom said.

Chalom also said that a packet detailing potential fine art pieces to be acquired contain multiple location possibilities for the Recreation and Parks Commission to decide upon, who also have the opportunity to recommend other sites within the park to place future art pieces.

on Thursday, February 27, 2014, will hold a public hearing beginning at 1:30 PM, or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard to consider the following:

Zone Text Amendment. A request for a Zone Text Amendment to amend the Beverly Hills Municipal Code regarding provisions for rooftop employee lunchrooms on commercial buildings. Current code provisions allow for rooftop employee lunchrooms to be exempted from applicable parking requirements only when the rooftop lunchroom would exceed the otherwise allowable maximum height for the property. The requested amendment would allow rooftop employee lunchrooms to be exempted from providing parking, regardless of whether said employee lunchroom exceeds the otherwise allowable maximum building height; and Development Plan Review. A request for a Development Plan Review for the property located at 228 South Beverly Drive to allow the construction of an approximately 2,200 square foot rooftop employee lunchroom on the roof deck of the existing building without providing additional parking spaces. This request is being made pursuant to the proposed Zone Text Amendment described above, and would be contingent on the approval of the Zone Text Amendment by the City Council.

This project has been assessed in accordance with the authority and criteria contained in the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), the State CEQA Guidelines, and the environmental regulations of the City. The project qualifies for a Class 5 Categorical Exemption for minor alterations in land use limitations and a Class 1 Categorical Exemption for interior and exterior alterations to an existing commercial building, and the project has been determined not to have a significant environmental impact and is exempt from the provisions of CEQA.

Any interested person may attend the meeting and be heard or present written comments to the Commission.

According to Government Code Section 65009, if you challenge the Commission's action in court, you may be limited to raising only those issues you or someone else raised at the public hearing described in this notice, or in written correspondence delivered to the City, either at or prior to the public hearing.

"The goal in doing this was to hopefully streamline the process so that we don't have as much conflict and there was clarity amongst the roles," Gold said. "It just becomes a matter as to staying to the spirit of the words."

Beverly High bell schedule studied; sixth period to be held after lunch

Principal Carter Paysinger reported two goals at the PTSA meeting on Feb. 14 in determining Beverly High's bell schedule, which are consistency and the best possible bell schedule to minimize future schedule changes.

"Consistency is really important," Paysinger said. "I can't tell you when any one of our classes starts or ends."

According to Paysinger, teachers and students prefer a modified block schedule to a daily schedule. Modified blocks provide late start days and students won't have homework for every class every night. From the five potential bell schedules, all of them had sixth period after lunch for three or four days out of the week. "We want to go through this process one time, and hopefully come up with something we can live with for multiple years," Paysinger said. "Changing a bell schedule every year is ridiculous."

Paysinger said another problem that teachers have is when to administer exams to students missing classes.

"In order to have a longer academic day, the only way you could do that is to put period six after lunch," Paysinger said.

According to Beverly High Co-Athletic Director Jason Newman the bell schedule is not driven by athletics.

Newman said that not only do athletes suffer because they miss classes, but the teachers need to adjust their teaching to make sure the kids missing classes are caught up without setting back the other students in the class.

"We're trying to take care of the problems that are brought up by athletes missing period six all those times," Newman said. "The way the bell schedule was constructed was absolutely in everybody's best interests; the athletes, the other students and the teachers."

Wilshire/La Cienega subway station construction plans

Projected construction plans for Wilshire/La Cienega subway station

Metro staff held two public meetings on Feb. 13, one at 8383 Wilshire Boulevard and one at the La Cienega Community Center, to discuss construction procedures and to receive public input concerning the Wilshire/La Cienega station for the Purple Line extension.

Currently, Metro is seeking permits from the City in order to begin utility relocation. The projected work schedule for utility relocation includes a 48-hour workweek for 30 months. The daytime work hours will take away street parking in the work zone, and will have the most construction noise. Construction will also take place during the nighttime.

Metro submitted two permit requests for fiber relocation and well monitoring in October, and City staff approved the permits in December. At the City Council Study Session on Jan. 21, the City Council deferred the permit requests with a 4-1 vote, with Councilmember Willie Brien approving the permits in order to not further delay the construction timeline. The permit were denied because the City Council wanted to give residents and businesses a chance to give input, and the community should have more than a three day notice before Metro began relocating utility lines to begin the first phase of the subway station extension.

If Metro is granted the permits, fiber optic cables will be relocated in the second quarter of 2014, gas lines will be relocated in the third quarter of 2014, and water, sewer, storm drain and power lines will be relocated within the third quarter of 2014 until the third quarter of 2016.

Once permits are approved, Metro will send general public construction notices three weeks prior to the pending work, and detailed public construction notices will be sent three days prior to the actual work.

Relocating utilities will allow for continued utility service and clears the way for station construction.

The station will be located at the northeast corner of La Cienega and Wilshire, and the underground station will stretch out towards Tower.

Along with relocating utilities, the station will be dug out from the ground down with a depth of 90 feet. During the excavation process, two lanes of traffic and all sidewalks will remain open, and businesses will still be accessed.

It will take approximately three years for the hole to be covered by steel plates and concrete decking to allow traffic to continue on the street level. Underground construction work will take approximately five years to complete.

The Wilshire/La Cienega station is part of the 3.9 mile purple line extension, which includes stations along Wilshire at La Brea and Fairfax. If the construction is on time, the stations will be operable by 2023.

Samani registered as a bone marrow transplant donor when she was 18. She is currently 22 and was contacted in December for a potential match with a patient. After doing a blood test to test the compatibility with the "One little donation is the difference between having a future and being able to have their whole family prosper and get through the whole situation," Samani said.

Samani was initially going to donate by PBSC, or peripheral blood stem cells, a simpler procedure, but because her veins were too small, she decided to go through with the surgical procedure where liquid marrow is withdrawn from both sides of the back of the pelvic bone with a needle and anesthesia is given to feel no pain.

"The patient and myself, we both had different doctors and different nurses," Samani said. "Everything they told me was in my best interest to help me go through the process."

Patients who are in need of a bone marrow transplant suffer from blood cancers such as leukemia and sickle cell anemia. In order for the patient to produce healthy red blood cells, white blood cells and platelets, healthy bloodforming cells are needed from a match donor.

Samani had the procedure done at Ronald Reagan UCLA Medical Center, and was released on the same day. She did not have any side effects from the procedure, other than having a hard time sleeping and her lower back being sore.

"My procedure was smaller than the usual procedure because it's for a much younger patient," Samani said. "The temporary pain is worth helping this child get out of permanent pain for the rest of their life."

Currently, Samani has limited information

Architects discuss plans for Beverly High

Preliminary concept drawings were sketched for Beverly High's modernization project after a three-day study session last week that ended on Feb. 14.

"What we have to do as architects is we have to work together with the Board to determine what is the right solution," DLR Group Principal and Architect Andrea Gehring said. "We just have to continue to do the planning and work with the board, high school faculty, staff and students to see what makes the best sense."

Concept drawings propose that Heath Avenue inside the campus would be transformed into Norman Walk. A paved, pedestrian walkway will replace the vehicle access road through the campus, and green landscaping and open areas for benches and tables will be placed on Norman Walk.

Architectural features will be taken down, such as the white, concrete moldings covering the outer portions of Building A and B along Norman Walk and the beige arches lining the upper portions of the buildings. All of the walkway bridges between the buildings, with the possible exception of one bridge, will also be taken down and the stairways opened up.

"We have to be careful [if the bridge is] really necessary or [if it's] convenient," Educational Design Strategist Victoria Bergsagel said. "I've been a principal who's had to run from this area of the campus to that area of the campus, but I had to run [up and down the stairs and] that's okay."

According to Gehring, eliminating the architectural features will create a more inviting and open environment.

The Salter Wing, K.L. Peters Auditorium and The Science and Technology Building will remain relatively untouched unless necessary renovations are needed.

Building A, which is next to the Science and Technology Building, is currently the main classroom building that houses the cafeteria, the library and the planetarium, and on the lower levels a multi-level parking lot. Some of its facilities will move to the portion of Building B between the K.L. Peters Auditorium and the Domestic Science Building (above the current tennis courts). All academic classrooms to the left of K.L. Peters Auditorium will all be moved to the main classroom building.

There are two different plans for Building B and the building above the tennis courts.

One is to have the building above the tennis courts transformed into the library, and Building B will have a first floor cafeteria and the second floor would hold the administrative office. The second plan, shown in the image, will replace the building above the tennis courts with the cafeteria, and have a two-story library and two-story administrative office in Building B.

"That depends on when we start laying out all the spaces, on the entry sequence [and] the flow of things like that," Gehring said.

Building A's second and third floors would have the same layout of classrooms and separate student and teacher conference areas. Separate areas for an open two-story courtyard and an open stairwell leading up from the second story to the third story are also in the plans. The planetarium will be retained on the third story.

"[The planetarium is] functional, it's up and running, there just isn't faculty [teaching astronomy] right now," DLR Principal Ben Levin said. "We're possibly going to modify it was in art and not so much in real estate law, which was what I was doing."

Selwyn said that his parents were strong influences in cultivating his art passion. His father, Paul Selwyn, is the Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts Founding President and was a former member of Planning and Architectural Commissions. His mother Joan Selwyn was a former Fine Art Commissioner and the Friends of Robinson Gardens Founder.

"I just hope that the gallery will become sort of a community center and a place where people come to appreciate art," Selwyn said. "I hope that we'll be able to help educate Beverly Hills residents about contemporary art and expose them to things that they wouldn't otherwise see."

The approximately 300 attendees of the private opening event enjoyed artwork from Mel Bochner, Richard Misrach and Robert Heinecken among other artists represented by the gallery. The inaugural group show is opened to the public until March 15.

Preliminary schematics (subject to change) for Beverly High's construction and enter from one side, and get a classroom on the other side. It really depends on what we need classroom wise, but we're keeping it."

The Continuation School (or Moreno High) and The Konheim Athletic Building will be demolished to create room for competition regulation sized sports fields, which includes a softball and baseball field, football/soccer/track and field area, and another pool. The Swim Gym will be renovated.

The tennis courts would move to the back of the school behind the baseball field, and an underground parking lot will be constructed where the current tennis courts are located. According to Gehring, the underground parking lot will either be one- or two- stories depending on cost. Adding additional levels will increase the cost. On top of the proposed underground parking lot would be a triple gym and a two-story gym facility.

By renovating the sports fields and building a pool that follows competition regulations, the potential ability to host CIF competitions and increased community use may cause traffic.

Gehring said that the designs would try to maximize parking to accommodate the visitors to Beverly High, whether it is for performing arts shows or for sports events.

According to the Measure E Bond Fund, approximately $170 million was budgeted for Beverly High's modernization plan. Gehring said that the designs are made according to the available budget, and at every design phase an estimate cost will be made.

"Everything we're showing, we will develop the ideas that we could afford of those ideas," Gehring said. "We may not be able to afford everything we're showing you. That's what we call the process of design. At every phase we will do an estimate [and] we will estimate what we're showing today and do a little test to see how we're doing."

friendly, colorful, water-wise native plants for almost every landscape need.

The Theodore Payne Foundation has experience in working with local cities and agencies to help choose California native plants and to design outdoor plantings for different settings. We have worked with the Metropolitan Transit Authority, for example, on the Exposition Line right of way (which will now have 90% native plants), with the Los Angeles Police Department for plantings at the Topanga Police Station in Canoga Park, with LA's Best for native gardens at many schools, and with the Los Angeles Department of Recreation and Parks for the Silverlake Meadow.

I would suggest that the next step be a design for a small demonstration garden, perhaps one designed for butterflies or hummingbirds, in one of the parks or perhaps even at the City Hall municipal complex.

Daniel J. Fink M.D. Beverly Hills

COVERSTORY WATER WSE

The Weekly's interview with Metropolitan Water District Representative Robert Wunderlich

By Nancy Yeang

How did you become the Beverly Hills representative for the Metropolitan Water District?

I'm appointed by the City Council. I'm not an employee of Metropolitan, but [it's] a government agency [that's] a water wholesaler for all of urban Southern California.

It's a long-standing position. MWD is very much tied in with the history of California. It was founded back in 1928 because the cities around Southern California knew that they were going to need a water source. This was the time period that the City of Los Angeles was building its aqueduct to go back into Owens Valley. If you wanted to maintain your independence [from Los Angeles] you had to try and find another source of water. Several cities, including Los Angeles, got together in 1928 and founded this inter-city inter-county government agency to secure other sources of water for Southern California. Ever since that time, the cities and water agencies that make up Metropolitan has been able to elect or select a city council director to Metropolitan. Beverly Hills is one of the original members. There's a long history dating back in 1928 of Beverly Hills of having a representative at Metropolitan and I'm just the most recent one.

What is your role in the MWD?

MWD is governed by a board and I'm on the board. The policies of Metropolitan, [in terms of how it should go about securing supply and how it should fit rates,] are set by the board. Metropolitan has many employees; very roughly it has something like 1,800 employees and a general manager that runs the day-to-day operations of Metropolitan.

I, of course, don't dictate what MWD does; I'm just one of the votes. But the board members vote [on policy issues] and we have a responsibility to represent the interest of Southern California as a whole, as well as their individual constituencies. I'm not suggesting that it's as high up of a position as being in the legislature or something like that, but it's similar in that you owe an obligation both to your region and to the individual district that you represent.

What kind of issues does the region of Beverly Hills have, relating to water?

Beverly Hills is very dependent upon MWD for its water. Beverly Hills buys 90% of its water from MWD. It gets about 10% of its water from local groundwater wells, but most of the water in Beverly Hills is purchased from MWD. That percentage varies throughout the whole southern California region but Beverly Hills is relatively, highly dependent on Metropolitan. For us to have a secure supply of water, it means Metropolitan has to have a secure supply of water.

You mentioned that approximately 10% of the city's water needs are met through local resources and 90% of the city's needs are met through the MWD. Why doesn't Beverly Hills produce more of its own water?

A couple of reasons. One is that we do have some groundwater and aquifers underneath Beverly Hills, but those aquifers have not been productive enough for us to be able to greatly increase the amount of water that we get from the aquifers. It's possible that we will be able to increase it and the city is looking into trying to increase the amount of water that we get from the aquifers.

I should point out that I work with the other city agencies. Within the city, there's the Public Works Commission and the Department of Public Works. The Department of Public Works would be the city employees who, on a day-to-day basis, manage water issues for the city as well as other issues such as trash collection and paving roads. The [Public Works Commission is] responsible for setting policies for those issues on a citywide basis. When I say we are looking to see whether or not we can increase the amount of water that we get from ground water, that would be some of the things the Public Works Commission or the Department of Public Works are [also] looking into.

We are looking into other sources for the city, but in Beverly Hills the groundwater is actually more expensive than purchasing water from Metropolitan. It's good to diversify the portfolio because things could change in the future and it could become a cheap resource in the future, but as it stands right now, the 10% or 15% of water that we get from groundwater is actually more expensive than the water that we purchase from Metropolitan. It's the cost of the wells, the cost of operating the wells [and the cost] to treat the water. The water that the city buys from Metropolitan is already treated water but the water that the city gains from its own wells, the city itself has to treat.

You mentioned that you work together with the Department of Public Works and also the Public Works Commission. In what ways do you work together to accomplish goals?

It's an inter-related process to get water to the residents and the consumers of Beverly Hills. The city does purchase most of its water from MWD so it's a critical part of city planning to ensure that the water will be available and what price the water [is] available at.

I appear at the meetings of the Public Works Commission and the City Council a few times a year to talk about water issues from a regional [and wholesaler] perspective, and the Public Works would be speaking among themselves and the Department of Public Works [on] the Beverly Hills' perspective.

Long-range planning for conservation measures involves interactions between the city and Metropolitan. There are a variety of rebates that people in Southern California are eligible to gain if they take those conservation measures. The basic money for that actually comes from Metropolitan [and] different cities can increase the basic amount.

When the city implements its own conservation measures, it's working closely with

Matthew Wunderlich, Michele Wunderlich, Andrea Spatz and Robert Wunderlich

Metropolitan to know what's available to be able to implement the things that are already available through Metropolitan. I know the Public Works Commission right now is actively considering the extent to which they want to add to some of the rebates that are already available from Metropolitan.

Public Works Commissioner Joe Shooshani led a committee to study untapped local water resources to increase local water production and to reduce the city's reliance on MWD. What other programs or goals are you guys working on?

First off, I'm [also] involved in that. I participate in the joint meetings and the joint calls so that's a cooperative effort.

We're talking to people from UCLA about possibilities that might be available to us. Beverly Hills in some respects has challenges relative to some other places in terms of finding additional sources of water.

Some other parts of Southern California happen to be above more productive aquifers. They have a greater ability than Beverly Hills does to draw upon aquifers. Other parts of Southern California have more opportunities to do things like have recharge bases where they allow water to percolate downward into an aquifer to store it there and then recover it during dryer times. Other places have more land available [but] Beverly Hills is well-developed already. We don't have a lot of open land [and] land is very expensive.

But we are brainstorming about the possibilities that might be available to us again. Just because it's another supply doesn't mean it's cheaper, but in general it does make sense to diversify your available supply. We're thinking about ways that maybe we can jointly operate some projects, perhaps with some other cities, and share in the benefits.

Recently President Obama came to California to aid the drought. How do you think this helped publicize the issue?

The drought itself of course is a bad story. Last year was a historically dry year for California and that really does demonstrate the need for everybody to conserve.

But a good aspect of that story is that Southern California was relatively well-prepared for this drought. Southern California has done and continues to do a good job at reducing the amount of water that we use per person. We're still using the same amount of water despite our population growth.

In addition, MWD has invested quite a bit to increase our storage capacity in Southern California. We built an extremely large reservoir called Diamond Valley Lake out in Hemet. Because of investments like that, despite that drought, it's not an immediate crisis.

In the last few years prior to the drought, Metropolitan was able to move water into Southern California and place it into storage close to home. Over this last year we've been able to meet demands by taking the water from storage. Southern California, MWD and the city is taking steps to be prepared for a drought and it has been effective. We are not in as drastic of a crisis as we could've been in had we not taken those steps.

Elsewhere in other parts of the state probably aren't as well-prepared. What President Obama was focusing on when he was coming out to Fresno was the immediate impact on agriculture in that area. In terms of agriculture it is a crisis issue and there are going to be great cutbacks in the water that will be available to agriculture in the Central Valley. For certain crops, California is the primary supplier of those crops throughout the United States. A drought in California really is felt in terms of the produce that's available throughout the United States. The farmers are facing a crisis in that they're going to have to fallow some fields this year because there isn't going to be enough water.

President Obama was out here trying to do what the federal government can do in terms of helping the farmers make do with the water that will be available. It's also great to call attention to programs that we have ongoing in the state this year for post programs that will try to increase our ability to weather droughts in the future.

There's a massive proposed project called the Bay Delta Conservation Plan. One of the primary places that we in Southern California, people in Northern California and agricultural areas in the Central Valley get water is from the Sacramento Bay Delta. Right now there are limitations on the amount of water that can be withdrawn from that area. What the plan would do it have what it refers to as co-equal goals. One is to restore the ecology of that area and the second is to improve the reliability of water sources from that area. The goal of the project in regards to water resources would be, in those years in which we are getting a lot of rainfall, to be able to place that water into storage so that we will have available water from storage to be able to handle droughts. President Obama coming to California is a great way of communicating the need for a plan like that.

What's your occupation?

The work I do for Metropolitan is volunteer work. I don't get paid for that.

In my real life I am an economic consultant. I'm one of the owners of a small economic consultant company [Discovery Economics Inc.] and we consult on economic and financial issues for a variety of businesses.

Being an economist has been a change in my career. I originally was a scientist and an engineer. I actually worked as a research scientist for ten years. It really was the dual sides of my background that was one of my inspirations for seeking to get appointed to was, "Well that sounds interesting, living in California for a while." [I] moved out here and met the woman who became my wife. You start your career out here and this is where you end up settling. I like it very much out here.

How did you meet your wife?

We actually met at a singles weekend at the Brandeis Institute up in the Simi Valley. We got married in 1986, so we've been married a long time now but that is how we met.

What water conservation and efficiency improvements can you suggest to Beverly Hills residents?

There's the easier stuff that everybody can do free, which is to be water-wise in your habits. Even with your existing landscaping, you should reduce the amount of watering that you're doing. You should not be watering during the heat of the day; you're just losing more through evaporation. You should fix any leaks in your house, don't have a running toilet, be conscious of trying to take shorter showers, [and] not leave the water running when you are using water.

You should have water efficient appliances in your house, and you could get rebates for doing that.

It makes sense given our region is adjacent to a desert, that we should all be moving towards having landscaping that is more efficient in its use of water. We should be cutting back in the amount of grass and moving to more efficient vegetation, and again there are rebates that are available to do that.
