Additional trenching slated for El Rodeo

At the Citizens' Oversight Committee Audit subcommittee meeting on August 14, BHUSD Administrative Assistant Barbara Beach revealed that additional trenching is being executed at El Rodeo this week, marking the third time that trenching is being carried out at the school.

"Until [the California Geological Survey] signs off, we can't give a final bill to the City," Beach said.

The assumption is that the City Council will fund the $650,000 project. The additional trenching, which has already been approved by the Board of Education, will cost around $350,000, bringing the total cost to $1 million.

"In a fault investigation, which this is, it is common for CGS to identify areas where the data provided does not appear adequate," California Department of Conservation Assistant Director Teresa Schilling wrote in an email Monday. "Identifying these locations is necessary so the consultants know where the specific areas of concern are so they can focus their investigation and gather additional data to further evaluate the potential for active faulting."

The actual trenching is expected to last three to four days; laboratory work is estimated to take 10-15 days.

"The trench will start approximately from where the basketball courts are and extend to the east along the southern part of the field," said BHUSD Superintendent Steve Kessler. "The trench will be approximately 20-feet deep, but it runs along storm drains, which means there is going to be some hand digging and it's very labor intensive."

According to Schilling, CGS is not performing or directing the subsurface investigation at El Rodeo.

"Subsurface investigations at this site are being performed by the [BHUSD's] geotechnical consults in response to the requests for additional information in the CGS review letter," Schilling wrote.

Council "comfortable" with Planning's decision to move forward on Olympic

Following a request by Vice Mayor John Mirisch, the City Council discussed the Planning Commission's July 23rd approval of a Conditional Use Permit (CUP) application for O'Gara Coach Company.

Under the permit, O'Gara will be able to operate a vehicle showroom inside the existing commercial structure located at 8955 Olympic Boulevard and carry out associated building modifications.

The area was formerly occupied by a Lincoln-Mercury dealership, but has been vacant for around two decades.

"Now we are going to have a three-block space, five major opportunity lots, that are going to now be car dealerships, including Infiniti, that could be something else," Mirisch said. "It's nice if there are things there that residents can use; I don't think a lot of our residents—especially in that part of town—are going to very often buy Bugattis or Rolls-Royces."

Though Mirisch backed O'Gara as a future tenant, he expressed concern about the area turning into "Cerritos Auto [Square]."

Pursuant to the Beverly Hills Municipal Code, the Council may order a review of any decision made by any Commission, Board or official of the city.

Mayor Julian Gold said that the Council is "comfortable" with the Planning Commission's decision, meaning the City is expected to move forward with the project.

Commissioners to recite pledge of allegiance under new framework

Under the new Commission framework, commissioners will now recite the pledge of allegiance at the start of each hearing.

The City Council approved the framework proposed by Commission Structure Ad Hoc Committee members Mayor Julian Gold and Councilmember Nancy Krasne at a Study Session meeting in June 2014.

The Council adopted a second hearing of an ordinance amending the Beverly Hills Municipal Code regarding commissions at a February 3rd hearing.

The staff report for the Traffic & Parking Commission meeting on August 6 reflects this addition, with "Pledge of Allegiance" appearing on the agenda for the first time.

"We have a new procedure, which we've been asked by the City Council to follow, which is we're going to do the pledge of allegiance," Commission Chair Lester Friedman said.

As stated in the staff report, the "City Council directed that a standardized framework be developed so that all commissions have the same basic process for training and conducting meetings."

In accordance with the amended structure, a commissioner must complete their existing term before applying to serve on a different Commission; Commission size will be maintained at five members; a commissioner's term will be two four-year terms for a total of eight years instead of six and the rotation of the Commission chair position will be based on seniority.

The process of modifying the Commission framework dates back to December 2013, when the Council first expressed the need to evaluate the Commission structure.

Loma Linda project withdrawn, as proposed

On August 12, one day before the Planning Commission was slated to discuss the controversial development being considered for 1184-1193 Loma Linda Drive, prospective owner Francesco Aquilini withdrew the project application.

Last December, the Commission reviewed the development, a two-story, single-family home standing 28-feet-tall and boasting a cumulative floor area of 23,632 square feet.

Then-Chair Howard Fisher was the only commissioner who did not firmly oppose the project, citing homeowner property rights.

"They should be allowed within reason to build what they believe meets their tastes and their needs," Fisher said.

Aquilini, owner of the Vancouver Canucks hockey team, is expected to submit a revised project application.

BHUSD approves certificated faculty pay hikes

At their August 11th meeting, the Board of Education unanimously approved a tentative agreement between the Beverly Hills Unified School District and the Beverly Hills Education Association that includes salary increases for certificated faculty.

The contract hinged on three areas: health, welfare and other benefits, discipline and the school calendar.

Certificated employees will receive a 3.4-percent salary increase, according to the contract. Pursuant to the 2014-2015teacher salary schedule, which is based on ten months of service, the minimum teacher salary is $49,545 and the maximum salary is $94,665. Teachers increase their salary based on seniority and additional semester units of graduate study.

A full-time faculty member teaches five periods a day. If enrollment allows, teachers can add a sixth class, also known as teaching "6/5's," which increases the teacher's salary by 20 percent. Therefore, some veteran teachers make over $100,000 for a 10-month year.

The contract between the BHUSD and the BHEA increases the district's contribution for each certificated employee from $7,500 for the 2015-2016 school year to $8,500 for the 2016-2017 school year.

Since the BHUSD is now a basic-aid district, budget projections are based on anticipated property tax. The property tax revenue is projected to increase at a five-percent rate.

According to the staff report, "steady increases" to the general fund revenue are expected to fund the ongoing cost of the agreement in subsequent years.

The first day of classes for the 2016-2017 school year will be August 8.

Albanese no longer works for BHUSD

A call placed to the office of BHUSD Special Education Executive Director James Albanese Tuesday morning indicates that he no longer works for the district.

After asking to speak with Albanese, Beverly Hills Weekly was told that he is no longer with the district.

The Board of Education unanimously approved a one-year contract with Albanese at a special meeting on May 19. Prior to being hired on by the BHUSD, he was principal of Pasadena Unified School District's Focus Point Academy.

It is unclear whether Albanese quit or was fired. The BHUSD will typically not comment on personnel issues.

Brien says Buresh had "another delusional moment"

Beverly Hills resident Alma Ordaz phoned into the City Council meeting Tuesday night to voice her concerns about student parking potentially being closed off at Beverly High for two years starting January 1, which BHUSD interim Facilities Director Tim Buresh told the Board of Education at their meeting last week.

"I think it would have a challenging impact, in terms of traffic and parking," Ordaz said.

According to Mayor Julian Gold, the Council has not yet had a "significant conversation" with the district about this matter.

"Nobody up here seemed to know what's going on and Mr. Buresh had another delusional moment, it sounds like, when he said he talked to the Council or the staff here," Councilmember Willie Brien said. The Board plans to close the parking lot as

Amber Stevens West takes unlikely path from ASB president to acting career.

By Steven Herbert

When Amber Stevens West was a student at Beverly High in the early 2000s, she auditioned for the school's production of the musical "Godspell."

The audition began with dancing and Stevens West was among the early groups to audition.

"I'm not a very good dancer," Stevens West said in an interview this week. "I couldn't pick up the choreography quick enough and I was eliminated in the first round and completely discouraged from ever auditioning again.'

However, Stevens West went on to become a professional actress, including being part of the cast of the comedy "The Carmichael Show," which premieres Wednesday at 9 p.m. on NBC. A second episode follows at 9:30 p.m.

Stevens West said her acting career stems from her modeling career, which began when she was an eighth grader at Hawthorne School, and her mother, Beverly Cunningham, who had been a model, would bring her to auditions.

The modeling agency she was affiliated with, Nous Model Management, opened a commercials division, "and they just starting sending me on commercial auditions without even really asking if I was interested," Stevens West said.

"They believed in my ability to act like a human being in front of a camera," Stevens West said.

Stevens West's first commercial was for Old Navy, where she has her arms on the shoulders of the young man in front of her as they wait to be admitted to a club as Fran Drescher walks by.

Stevens West's commercial agent recommended her to Robert Enriquez, a manager who "was just looking for talent," she said.

"I was 16 or 17 and I auditioned for him in his office and he (asked), 'Are you interested in being an actress?' I was like,

`I don't know. OK. I'll try that,'' she said.

"It didn't seem that much different from auditioning for commercials because I had to talk on camera. I wasn't afraid of that because my dad (Shadoe Stevens) was an actor for a lot of my childhood, so I was familiar with what it entailed."

Stevens West began taking acting classes after graduating from Beverly High in 2004 "and somehow it turned into my career," she said.

"It is not something I was really aspiring to do," Stevens West said. "I knew it would be really fun, but there was a part of me who wanted to be a musician. That's why I was singing in high school. I was writing music. I also play piano. I was working with different producer sand meeting with record labels and really thought that was the direction my life was going to go in.

"Little did I know that acting was where I should be."

At Beverly High, Stevens West was involved in student government, including a stint as ASB president, and a member of the Minnesingers.

"I adored that. Mr. Pressman was someone who made a big difference in my high school life," Stevens West said, referring to the school's late choral director Joel Pressman.

Stevens West's first television speaking acting role was uttering the word, Mahalia," her character's name, in a 2005 episode of the ABC comedy "Complete Savages.'

Stevens West went on to be a cast member of the 2007-11 ABC Family college comedy-drama "Greek," playing the best friend and roommate of the character portrayed by Spencer Grammer.

Stevens West's role on "Greek," led her to meeting Andrew J. West, who appeared in 12 episodes and dated her character. The two were married in December.

Stevens West's other television credits include "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation," "Grey's Anatomy," "How I Met Your Mother," "90210," "New Girl" and two episodes of "Criminal Minds," as the daughter of Behavior Analysis founding member (Joe Mantegna), a role she will reprise in the 2015-16 season.

Stevens West had previously auditioned for an NBC pilot starring "The Carmichael Show's" star, executive producer and writer Jerrod Carmichael.

"We had this great audition," Stevens West said. "We had a lot of chemistry. It was really fun. You don't ever hug people after an audition because you just met them, but we hugged afterwards."

Stevens West said she "wanted to be a part of that project so much," but was unavailable because she was filming the movie "22 Jump Street."

Another actor was cast, a pilot was shot and scrapped by NBC, Stevens West said.

Stevens West auditioned for the current version of "The Carmichael Show" and was cast as the therapist-in-training live-in girlfriend of Carmichael's character.

"I've wanted to work on a sitcom my whole acting career," Stevens West said. "Jerrod is so talented and has some really interesting ideas of what he wants to do for a show. He wants all of this creative control and NBC has really given him that.

"I'm really proud to be part of a show like this. It's fresh. It's been a while since we've characters like this on TV. This show is very smart. It's a really honest show about a real family having a real conversation about things that are actually going on in their life."

Lyn Goldfarb

Co-Producer of Bridging the Divide: Tom Bradley and the Politics of Race

Former Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley has been gone almost 20 years. Why did you want to make the documentary?

When I was growing up in Los Angeles, I saw this city as a white, conservative, provincial city-I saw a city that was not regarded very seriously. Then, when Tom Bradley became mayor, everything changed. As a filmmaker, I really wanted to discover what happened and how it happened, how change occurred. The other part of this is that I had made a documentary called The New Los Angeles, which basically looked at the transformation of Los Angeles through the lens of race, immigration and labor, and I saw that Bradley's election was the start of that. Even though it launched the change, I feel like I really wanted to understand the change, and that's why I made the film.

Bradley had support from many in the Jewish community, including in Beverly Hills. Tell us about that.

First of all, amazingly enough, when we think about it today, in the 1960s the Jewish community didn't have much political power. Jews and blacks and Latinos and Asian Americans [were] all excluded from political power. There was one Jewish city councilmember, Roz Wyman; she was the only Jewish person and the only woman. Jews and blacks had worked together in the civil rights movement, so they were allies in Los Angeles and they were both concerned about inequality and social justice, economic justice. When Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. would come to Los Angeles, and he did often, he would also come and speak at temples and synagogues, because of that affinity between blacks and Jews. And so when Bradley first ran for City Council in the 10th District, which was a district that was very mixed-it was African-American, it was Asian-American and it was Jewish. It was around the Crenshaw area, and that time, that was more a Jewish area. Jewish people supported Bradley; Bradley's first campaign manager for City Council was Maury Weiner. When Bradley ran for mayor in [1969], he had a lot of support from the Westside, primarily from Westside Jews, who thought it was great that a black man was running for mayor. The Jewish community in 1969 was somewhat divided because [incumbent] Sam Yorty, as mayor, tried to divide people by fear; he used racism, but mostly fear, he drove fear in the hearts of people. From the time Bradley lost—like the day after the election in 1969—he realized that he had to get out in every community and meet people, so they would know who he was. And that's really how he won in 1973, really by uniting the different communities. Again, the Jewish community [in the] Westside and San Fernando Valley rallied behind him.

What do you hope people take away from this documentary?

I really hope they understand, first of all, the history of Los Angeles-that we have a very rich and complex history and we really make progress when we all work together and the importance of coalitions in terms of making change but also coalitions in terms of public policy, in terms of making decisions and what happens in a city. When everybody is at the table, different kinds of decisions get made. And I think that Bradley really diversified city government and his whole policy, and practice of inclusion, was very important. We want people to talk about race and we want people to talk about police brutality and the obstacles and the roads that lead to reform. We hope the film encourages a dialogue and encourages a discussion. We want people of all ages to really engage in that discussion but we're also particularly interested in making sure that the film gets out to young people because we think there are a lot of lessons and a lot of points of discussion for students as well.

What are some upcoming showings?

We're talking to a number of organizations that want to set up screenings. Our national PBS broadcast is going to be in February 2016, and of course it will be broadcast locally again at that time. We had three screenings at the Laemmle [Music Hall] last week, one of them was sponsored by the Los Angeles Jewish Film Festival and we had a great turnout, about 150 people, and a great panel discussion with George Takei, Raphael Sonenshein, Bob Farrell and Lorraine Bradley, Tom Bradley's oldest daughter. [See photo on pg 2].

What were some of the challenges in putting the documentary together?

There were two significant challenges and the documentary took seven years to make, so the challenges were significant. One is, of course, the challenge of money. Alison [Sotomayor] and I are independent filmmakers, we didn't have any support from any organizations and we didn't work for any organizations, so we were always having to raise money. We received a national endowment through a humanities grant, so that helped a lot. The other big challenge is that Los Angeles does not preserve its history. We worked with over 50 archives—we really had been in contact with most of the local resources—but they don't really save the footage. We had to search far and wide to find the footage of Bradley and of him talking. And there was a lot of press coverage around the 1969 race because it was historic, because when Bradley ran in 1969, the black population of Los Angeles was only 18 percent, so it wasn't very large. He was running in a primarily white city, and it was only four years after the Watts riots, so it was a significant story. But as you get further it's harder to find the archival material, so you end up relying on news stories to shape the story, and they don't have much depth.

Bridging the Divide will screen at the National Council of Jewish Women, located at 543 N. Fairfax Avenue, on October 14 and Pasadena City College on October 15. Visit www.mayortombradley.com for more information.

What inspired you to apply for the Architectural Commission?

My father, Allan Gardner, has been a very proud father for more years than I want to have written [or] read-because that would give away my age. He had something from one of the local newspapers saying that they were looking for candidates for a position of landscape architect for the Beverly Hills Architectural Commission and he said, "Wouldn't this be great?" And I said, "I would rather eat zoo dirt-I would never even pull permits for a client or go to a [Covenants, Conditions & Restrictions] Association meeting." So he said, "OK." I took the little piece of paper home and I thought, well, it wouldn't be that bad — maybe it would be kind of bad; and then I thought, maybe it wouldn't be kind of bad, maybe it would be alright; and then I thought, maybe it would be better than alright. And then it was, huh, I'm kind of interested in this. So I went to a monthly meeting and I sat in the back and I stayed for the entire meeting and I was absolutely gobsmacked because these were my peeps. They were talking about things that were interesting to me: sense of balance, color, design, graphics, aesthetics and proportion. I could weigh in and I could follow along. I'm not trained in topography, but I could pick it up as a designer. I'm not trained as a technical architect, but I can tell when the mullion spacing is out of scale or when a corbel crowds a window or when signage does not lay out with the architectural proportions—I've picked it up. I could sense what feels right to me. It's an intuitive balance that I think, as a designer, resonates to me. And afterwards I met the commissioners and I went for an interview.

You launched your landscape architecture business more than two decades ago. Tell us about that.

I worked for two firms prior [to that]. I went to UC Berkeley and sought a degree from there in 1977 and I became a licensed landscape architect in September t 1983 and my license number is 2356. I worked for two firms and really cut my teeth on doing high-end residential work along the Westside. I had a wonderful experience working my way up through the ranks and I started my business where I took on projects where I really had to like the people because designing is just this fun, magical process that also has—if you take a pie, and you cut the pie up, you have the creative, wonderful frosting of designing but you also have the other elements which are [the] budget, the actual site that you have to deal with, you have the mechanics of making something that's Disneyland fit into a corner strip mall, so to say. You have to make it work. And what can be exciting on the paper may evolve with a lot of reasons to have to finish projects. [I mostly did] high-end residential [projects,] but I also did the historic library in Hollywood, I worked at the Jules Stein Eye Institute, I worked at some other schools and hospitals. There was a hospital down in the South Bay, I think, and they wanted people to feel like they were checking into a hotel, not a hospital, so we made it very resort-like with palm trees in the front. Every project is different, and it's not Lucy at the conveyer belt with the chocolate. Having my own business also allowed me to raise two kids. My clients didn't know that my 3 o'clock appointment was picking my kids up and taking them to basketball. So I was really able to make my own schedule-it was really a great way to also be a mom.

How has the drought impacted your work as a landscape architect?

If I had been working, it probably would be very different: who is going to get a pool in their backyard, which might take 10,000 gallons of water? That just seems to go against the push of being drought conscientious. In my own backward, we have a synthetic lawn and the lawn in my front yard looks horrible, but I haven't dug it up yet. I think we do have to be wise about that. There are many more advances with types of awareness that homeowners have now; when I was doing it, people didn't even know how to program their sprinkler clock. Now, instead of having one valve for, let's say 10 minutes, if you can get a more sophisticated clock and have it spray for two minutes, and be off for three minutes, and then spray for three minutes, it will allow the water to-instead of running off-it will allow the water to be absorbed into the soil. So you've saved yourself four minutes of water and you've been more efficient.

In the Weekly's interview with former Chair Barry Bernstein in issue #774, he said, "We're very fortunate to have people willing to attempt new avenues of design rather than a straight, up and down, vertical building. It's something that's good for the city. When you look at it, it evokes an emotion. You either like it or don't like it." How do you define good architecture?

I think that [good architecture] is just a feeling; it elicits something and it just gives you a sense. There wasone project that came before us as a preview and when I first saw it I thought it was horrible, and then, when I looked at it again, it elicited a feeling out of me. By the time it got to us, I had seen it four or five times, and I thought This is making me think, it's creating a sense in me, and I like that it's doing that.

What is the commission currently working on?

We have a few things that are coming up. Some are [placed on what's called] a consent calendar, which means that we think they could pass without creating controversy. We have three or four projects that are going to go right on the consent calendar. You know the old IHOP on Olympic Boulevard? There's a restaurant group that wants to bring an easy, family-style, dining [restaurant] to that southeast corner of Beverly Hills that is so empty of dining choices. So that's coming before the commission this Wednesday. There's another project on Olympic—I don't know whether it was the Ford dealership, but it had been empty for a long time. A car company, O'Gara Coach Company, is coming into 8955 Olympic [Blvd.]; it will be a wonderful addition to that skeletal area in need of revitalization.

How do you select the recipients of the Architectural Design Awards?

We went out for a bus tour, which was really fabulous, and the planners were allowed out of their buildings to come with us. We looked at all the properties that have been improved since the last [Architectural Design Awards.] which were sometime in March 2011; "I think that [good we must have looked architecture] is just at around 40 properties Then we tried to a feeling; it elicits decide how we would something and it just categorize them. Do we do large retail, gives you a sense." small retail; large restaurants, small restaurants; innova-Commission Chair tive; office? And it Andrea Gardner kind of came together and then we said, "There are so many stupendous projects on Rodeo Drive, let's > have that as a separate category." So we came up with seven, and then we all voted, and then it was culled down, and then we voted again. So it really was the five of us deciding which ones we really liked for the various categories.

Tell us about your family.

-Architectural

Apatow

My husband is Doug Apatow and we've been married 35 years. We met on the beach in Venice and we were engaged two weeks later. Our daughter, Lindsay, attended the Archer School for Girls in Brentwood and the Art Institute of Chicago. She buys and sells midcentury furniture and does refinishing and she's in Los Angeles. Our son, Ben, went to New Roads School in Santa Monica and Pratt Institute, which is also an art school; [he studied] graphic arts and advertising design. He's been working in Manhattan for an invention company and he just quit his job and wants to go traveling—he took his motorcycle from Brooklyn to Montreal this last weekend. I have two rescue dogs: one is a Great Dane who is terrified of loud machinery and the other is a husky who howls. I grew up in [BHPO], so I did learn to swim at Beverly Hills High School as a kid and got my back-to-school shoes from Harry Harris. We live in Rancho Park. As a landscape architect and as an architect, we are [not required to live in] Beverly Hills. Coincidentally, the architect [on the Commission, Vice Chair Gidas Peteris,] lives a block away from me.

A year from now, what do you hope to have accomplished as Chair?

I don't frankly know that I have any more of an ability to steer this boat than any other commissioner, we really are a five-pack together. We're a wonderful team and I'm just so appreciative when businesses and production companies and offices choose Beverly Hills as their address and I really always thank them. I'm just so proud of Beverly Hills.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST DATED 5/10/2007. UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDING AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER.

A public auction sale to the highest bidder for cash, cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, check drawn by a state or federal credit union, or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, or savings association, or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the Financial Code and authorized to do business in this state will be held by the duly appointed trustee as shown below, of all right, title, and interest con-veyed to and now held by the trustee in the hereinafter described property under and pursuant to a Deed of Trust described below. The sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, expressed or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining prin-cipal sum of the note(s) secured by the Deed of Trust, with interest and late charges thereon, as provided in the note(s), advances, under the terms of the Deed of Trust, interest thereon, fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee for the total amount (at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale) reasonably estimated to be set forth below. The amount may be greater on the day of sale.

Trustor: CARL BISHOP, A SINGLE MAN

By the fountain located at 400 Civic Center Plaza, Pomona, CA 91766

Estimated amount of unpaid balance and other charges: $695.815.42

Note: Because the Beneficiary reserves the right to bid less than the total debt owed, it is possible that at the time of the sale the opening bid may be less than the total debt owed.

Street Address or other common designation of real property: 850 N KINGS ROAD #103

WEST HOLLYWOOD, CA 90069

Described as follows: As more fully described on said Deed of Trust.

A.P.N #.: 5529-004-083

The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address or other common designation, if any, shown above. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auc-tion. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale post-ponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (800) 758-8052 or visit this Internet Web site www.homesearch.com, using the file number assigned to this case 15-37250. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to admin-ister the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. tion, you should appear at the hearing and state your ob-jections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a gen-eral personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to con-sult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of es-tate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.
