"Tower of Hope"

To Mayor Lili Bosse and the Beverly Hills City Council:

Board President Lisa Korbatov and the and the Board of Education:

Please be aware that the graphic skin panels that were painted in year 2000, panels that cover the oil well tower, have mostly faded, some have peeled away and have become an eyesore that anyone and everyone sees when walking or driving on Olympic Blvd. next to Beverly High.

When is this debacle going to be totally removed? How much longer do we have to look at this eyesore and watch it slowly continue to deteriorate before something is done to remove it? For a city that spent roughly $3 million to beautify and enhance the business district for 2017 holiday decorations and a school district that has spent and diverted an estimated $10 million from school district bond funds (according to the Metropolitan News-Enterprise) while filing futile lawsuits against the Metro purple line subway extension.

If you would really like to beautify our city, and improve safety, please appropriate the necessary and available funds to tear down the oil well tower. Please make this a priority.

Richards Files Complaint Against Gardner and Hearty

Vis-Lago resident Ronald Richards has filed complaint against lobby-Sherman and Gardner Alan Hearty, alleging that sub-Gardner mitted false information to the City and Hearty that has aided and abetted Gardner by perpetuating that information.

According to Richards' complaint, among other things Gardner lied about his employer, work phone number, fax number and office address. Gardner is registered as an employee of Allen Matkins law firm, but he is not listed on their website or phone operator list.

Hearty said in an email to Richards that his firm hired Gardner as a consultant.

Richards—who has been outspoken about his opposition to Hillside overdevelopment—contends that Sherman has been shadow lobbying, and didn't formally register as a lobbyist until recently.

"Mr. Gardner does not enjoy the benefit of anonymous lobbying with Mr. Hearty masking his current 'employer.' If that is Mr. Gardner himself, then he has to state so under penalty of perjury," wrote Richards. "The entire purpose of these transparency laws is for transparency. Mr. Hearty and Mr. Gardner are doing the exact opposite."

This lack of transparency, Richards asserts, is also that Gardner is a longtime friend of Councilmember Lester Friedman and donor for Vice Mayor Julian Gold's campaign.

"I have no reason to believe that there was any violation, and am addressing this with the City," Gardner told the Weekly in an emailed statement.

Public Works OKs 2018-2019 CIP Budget

Last Thursday, the Public Works Commission unanimously agreed to recommend that the City Council approve the Capital Improvement Project (CIP) Budget for fiscal year 2018-2019.

The budget will fund the following seven projects: miscellaneous and unplanned construction projects, security system upgrades, City Hall tower rehabilitation, replacement of UPS equipment, urban design/streetscape, asset management system, and reinvesting in the Hollywood basin

The approval of these projects follows a staff presentation to the commission on January 18 on the proposed projects to be included in the budget. The commission proceeded to discuss the merits of two suggested projects, landscape irritation stub-outs and emergency water storage, and agreed to exclude them from the budget consideration.

Instead, the former project is grouped into a broader incentive program for the overall water conservation efforts. The latter will be evaluated as part of the 2018 Water Master Plan update scheduled to commence in April.

Commissioner Jeff Wolfe asked staff on Thursday to clarify that the project outlined in the presentation are consistent with what the subcommittee filtered through and agreed upon.

An instrumental tool in initially pushing the process forward, Wolfe said he wanted to make sure the commission agrees that they got an "appropriate level" of review.

"This whole process was the genesis of the commission wanting more input into this process, and I just want to make sure we're at a point now where the commission is comfortable that we've achieved that goal."

Commission Chair Jerry Felsenthal, who supported the tabled emergency water storage proposal, expressed his disappointment for the exclusion of several issues in the CIP Budget. He also, though, stated his appreciation for the comprehensiveness of the process.

"Apparently the cost of those just didn't necessarily make sense in the short run, and I'm satisfied that we were able to at least address those so they are now part of other considerations which hopefully will be forthcoming."

The total 2018-2019 CIP Budget will cost approximately $12 million.

Board Still Unsure on Parcel Tax But Bond Likely

Although they opted against taking a formal vote on Tuesday, the Board of Education continued discussion of potentially placing a bond and parcel tax on the June ballot.

While all members expressed support for placing a bond on the next ballot, several were less convinced of the effectiveness of a parcel tax.

Student board member Jonathan Artal said that a parcel tax, if approved, would have to be viewed as a temporary means of keeping the school system running for the short term. During this time, he urged, the Board must "seriously study" options for reconfiguration.

"I personally do not want to a parcel tax that goes longer than a few years," said Artal. "A parcel tax can sustain us for a couple years, but I'm not happy with the current educational system and I'm concerned that we would allow a parcel tax to allow us to continue a system that is less than ideal."

Board member Mel Spitz agreed with this sentiment, stating that parcel tax revenue would serve three main purposes, none of which benefitting the students: 1) funding the continuation of $3 million of overstaffing to operate the four middle schools; 2) the district may continue the contractual formula of linking salary to property tax revenues; and 3) relieve Board of reducing non-essential and overlarge expenditures.

The BHUSD's annual revenue per student is about $15,000 per student—about 54 percent more than Palos Verdes Peninsula and South Pasadena Unified School Districts. Spitz pointed out that both of these districts perform better than BHU-SD academically.

"Rather than solving the problems in our budget, the parcel tax would fund the continuation of the problems and make a sick budget even worse," said Spitz.

But other members contended that the parcel tax would provide the financial means to refurbish the buildings, create more electives, and give the community a voice.

"A parcel is an excellent way for the community to speak to us and say, 'Until you have your reconfiguration plan a little more solid, we would like to maintain our four campuses."

Margo, who at a previous meeting suggested consolidating a campus in 2019, did concede that a parcel tax is not a long-term sustainable plan.

The bond is likely to appear on the June ballot but the future of a parcel tax remains less clear, with the Board currently scheduling a study session to discuss the matter further.

Planning Commission OKs Whittier Minor Accommodation Request

The Planning Commission unanimously approved last Thursday a request for a Minor Accommodation at 907 Whittier Drive.

The accommodation will allow a 370-square-foot, second-story addition that exceeds 14' to be installed in the side yard setback.

Although Community Development Director Susan Heeley Keene maintains the authority to review for a Minor Accommodation, they may delegate this task to the Planning Commission if it merits further review.

In this particular case, adjacent neighbor Madeline Gussman, who lives at 909 Whittier Drive, expressed concerns regarding the project's construction, which Keene felt the Planning Commission should review.

In a letter to staff, attorney Timothy Martin argued that Gussman would be "adversely impacted by both its construction and operation, in a manner that is qualitatively and quantitatively worse than will be experienced by any other neighbor or member of the general public."

The letter goes on to say that the project would cause additional shading of the outdoor space and first floor of Gussman's home

The commissioners discussed the definition of "adverse," which Commissioner Alan Block looked up and found is synonymous with "unfavorable. They agreed that subjectivity is necessary when looking at this case, as the definition is "vague."

"Either you get more shade or you get more sunlight on one little piece of a very beautiful, very large home," said Commissioner Peter Ostroff. "I think that subjectively, some people might find more sunlight to be a terrific thing; others might

The Beverly Hills Police Department has made an arrest in connection with a homicide investigation.

Maple Counseling Center to Host Men & Women in the Workplace Workshop

Maple Counseling Center (TMCC), a Los Angeles-based nonprofit community mental health facility that provides treatment services to anyone regardless of their ability to pay, is holding a town hallstyle group discussion that will explore effective ways men and women co-workers can better interact with each other in today's charged environment.

The clinical staff members Sharon Schwartz Ph.D, and Jessica Herzog, PsyD, will lead the group discussion, inviting participants to engage in an interactive dialogue and share their experiences, addressing the potential impact to relationships and communication that are a result of the current social climate.

The reason behind the workshop is due to recent uptick in reports of high profile sexual harassment and sexual misconduct cases. "Aside from following employer HR guidelines, men and women in today's highly charged workplace are looking for guidance on how to be sensitive to their co-workers, while maneuvering the 'gray areas' of social interaction," said a press release.

Starting at 6:30 p.m., the event will take place on Wednesday, April 28 at the Maple Counseling Center.

Malibu High School Principal Michelle Nye on Malibu's unique 6-12 configuration

As Beverly High looks at a possible 7-12 reconfiguration, the Weekly spoke with Michelle Nye about Malibu's combined middle and high school.

Tell us about your experience as a principal at a 6-12.

I've been [working at the] high school [level] for the majority of my career—a traditional 9-12 [grades] model. So this has been a bit different. The biggest thing I would say though is that for us, we do keep our kids pretty separate between bell schedules and classrooms. [Some] go to school a little later; some end school a little earlier. They have a separate lunch schedule. Right now we're under construction so that's a bit crazy, but we have a middle school building, which is strictly middle school. We have a strictly high school building, and then there is a little crossover in the middle. There are limited interactions between each other. There is some overlap; logistically we can't completely keep them separated. Sixth grade we try to keep as separated as possible, but the seventh and eighth graders [see] some overlap. They cross paths is the best way to put it. We have a small school, so our music rooms are used for middle and high school—that kind of thing.

What are some advantages of using this model?

I think the biggest advantage is that kids feel really comfortable on campus, because [they] don't have to have that transition time from eighth to ninth grade, or wherever your transitions are in different school districts. Kids feel more connected to the high school once they get there because they've been there for so long. And then just having kids around for so long, you really do get to spend a lot of time with them and get to know them for even longer. So, in Malibu I feel like we see a lot of families easier, because even if they're a few years apart, they're all on campus together. You get to know the families more. On the other side, they know each other [too]. They say hi to each other. The high school is pretty much [separate] from the middle school, but when the kids say hi, they're totally friendly. They've grown up together; that's the [thing] about being a small, small school—they all know each other.

How common is it for a 6-8 student to take advanced classes in the 9-12

We don't have any mixed classes besides in music, [where] a few kids will overlap. But right now, other than prob-

[in music classes], we don't have mixed classes. One of the reasons is that we don't have many boys in our middle school choir, so instead of having one or two boys in our middle school choir, we actually just moved the kids up to the high school because it just makes more sense. It doesn't make sense to have two boys and then all girls. It's easier to just have an all girls choir. Right now it's rare, although they have had in the past maybe a foreign language class that's traditionally separate—they may mix the classes. It [would] only be eighth graders with ninth graders; it's not eighth grades with twelfth graders. That's the only [other] place they've seen it in the past, to my knowl6-12 is a unique configuration for ${\bf public\ schools.\ \bar{W}hat\ kind\ of\ feedback}$ have you received from faculty?

Well they're used to it. They started out as a middle school and then added their high school. Their reasoning be> hind [founding the school in 1991] mostly had to do with the fact that we were sending out kids to Santa Monica and the drive was too much. I mean, you're spending so long just getting to your high school and it just didn't make a lot of sense for kids. [Founding Malibu High] made the most sense for them, so I don't think it was a hard decision. The total body of students is about 1,100—with middle and high school. I know that down in Tustin [in Orange County] they're doing the same thing. I actually came from there. They're planning a 6-12 also; they're just gonna have a STEAM [Science, Technology, Engineering, Art, Math] focus. They're a pretty big district, so theirs is going to be more of a magnet type school program where there are applications.

"They've grown up together; that's the [thing] about being a small, small school they all know each other."

Tell us about the awards you will be receiving on April 25.

Jan: Ours [Mine and Alan Block's Humanitarian Award] is based on the fact that we've been with the temple for over 35 years and all that we've done with the temple.

Alan: We've both served on the Board of Directors. We did two sports nights; Jan has really spearheaded honors for the temple for the past 14 years.

Jan: Honors are during the High Holidays—people that have volunteered, done things above and beyond. They get asked to go on the bema to carry the Torah, to read from the Torah.

Alan: To be recognized for what they do for the temple during the year.

Judie: They're not just being recognized for the temple, although that is the award. They've been very active in the community, which has been very good for the temple, so they're kind of an allaround couple that has served the City

Jan: I've been president of the Beverly Hills Education Foundation as well as president of the Beverly Hills High School PTA.

Judie: My award is the Community Spirit Award. It has been my deep commitment to the community for the past 30 years—the Chamber of Commerce named me a long time ago the go-to person-everything kind of starts here and ends here. I was also very active in the schools. I was the president of the PTA; I was president of the PTA Council. I was the founder of the Little League T-ball and slow pitch. We've petitioned for the City to have the field across the street from La Cienega Park made into a field for the younger children to play. Before [my husband] Frank passed away, they named it the Frank Fenton Field.

Tell us about some of the programs Temple Emanuel offers.

Jan: It's a multi-generational. They have the Sunday School Programs and programs for kids.

Alan: They have a lot of programs for adults; they have a Study Session with the Rabbis about the Torah or about learning to speak Hebrew. They reach out to different religions and have joint sessions.

Judie: Our clergy is also really unique. Laura Geller, our senior rabbi, had been there for over 20 years. She retired.

Alan: She was one of the first female rabbis in the country.

Judie: So Jonathan Aaron, who was the second senior rabbi just became our senior Rabbi. He's just a kick. He's a good guy, he's friends with everybody. He's more like your friend than your rabbi. Sarah Bassett is a new female rabbi. And then we have a cantor [whose] name is Lizzie Weiss. She's a local product who went to Beverly High. Her family lived here for many, many years.

Judie, you're on the Recreation and Parks Commission. Alan, you used to serve on the Recreation and Parks Commission and are currently on the Planning Commission. And Jan, you previously served on the Charitable Solicitations Commission. What have these experiences been like?

Alan: Well we've lived here for 35 years. We've really enjoyed the community and I've always enjoyed the parks. I was very active in the Little League with coaching. I was interested in the Parks [commission]. It's a feel-good commission and I was on it for five years. I was on it during the time when the dog park came about. That was one of our ideas. I was on it when they built the new senior community center, and from that I [went to] the Planning Commission. I've been there for five years. [With Planning] it's hard to keep everybody happy, whereas with the Parks it was a feel-good commission. But I enjoy Planning; in my business I'm a land-use attorney, so I find Planning really interesting.

Judie: I was on Traffic and Parking for eight years 20 years ago. That was a hard commission because there were just so many issues, which are still there. I enjoyed Traffic, but it was very challenging because that was when we discussed having humps and bumps in the Southwest, and we almost got a death threat. That was very challenging because in the eight years [that I served], we must have had six or seven public hearings, and this community in the Southwest was very adamant about it. At that time, we just couldn't get it passed [besides on La Peer], which turned out very advantageous. So that was 20 years ago, and then Frank was on the Board of Education for eight years, president twice. Then he became the treasurer, and then he became a City Councilmember. He's the only person in this community that has been elected to all three offices. After he passed away I gave it some time, but then I really wanted to get back involved with the City. And the commission I really wanted to be on was Recreation and Parks. I wouldn't have applied for any other commissions. It's working with your people. It's working with fellow vour commissioners and trying to build consensus and trying to get things passed. But we are only Band-Aids. We can only do so much, and then if we present a good enough case we take it to the City Council. It doesn't matter how long you've studied it; if they don't think it's good enough [it doesn't get passed]. Being on a commission—if you like your commission and you're passionate about it, it can be very enjoyable. But it can also be challenging.

Jan: [Charitable Solicitations] was reviewing all the events we have in the City, and making sure the money was allocated to the charity or whatever it was. Sometimes we found it wasn't, and that the percentage they were giving back to the charities was minimal. I was on it for six years and came off it probably about eight years ago. [Overall] it was a very enjoyable experience. The people that are on it make it easy to [enjoy].

What can guests expect from the event, "A Swingin' Affair"?

Alan: We want everyone that comes to have a good time.

Jan: Lots of dancing. We don't want a lot of talking.

Judie: This is the first year without speeches, just award-giving. I'm going to be given my award by Bruce Corwin, and Rabbi Geller is going to present their award. Those are the only speeches. And my daughter-in-law Lee-za Gibbons is going to be the MC, which is really nice. And we'll also have our great band, the Hodads. So that's what we want: dancing, no speeches, maybe a live auction just to raise a little bit of extra money, and a great cocktail hour. We hope everyone has a fun time.

What does the award mean to you to be honored by Temple Emanuel?

Alan: It's very humbling. It makes you feel very good. I feel very grateful and I'm happy that Jan and I had the opportunity to participate in everything with the City and give our time. I think back, because now I go to my grandkids' Little League and soccer games. They really good years when I came out here and coached. I don't know how I had all the time to do it, but I think back and it was a lot of fun to participate and live in a City where it really is a small community. It's a great feeling to be recognized. It's really nice.

it is an honor, but it is coming from more of a Judaic type of honor because I'm first generation. My parents came from Hungary. For me, it's the continuation of Judaism and that's why it's so important and that's why I'm so humbled to receive this award. For me it's an honor of my mother and family because of what they went through.

Judie: I have two temples. I belong to Wilshire Boulevard Temple and my children belong to Wilshire. But when my husband got very sick, for some reason—and I don't know what it is—I turned to [Temple Emanuel]. Spiritually, I just felt the connection. When Frank was so sick with all the things he had gone through, I had Rabbi Geller and Rabbi Aaron right there by my side. So my connection to this temple is spiritual. I'm very honored that they asked me. And I'm honored to be honored with Jan and Alan.

Jan: It's such a blending. It really is. We've been friends for a long time.
