"Beverly Hills Red Light Cameras"

The red light camera monitoring eastbound Olympic at Beverly is out of control. Again.

Beginning in early 2017 and ending early last year, that camera produced 34 percent of all the camera tickets generated by the City's 17-camera system. That camera alone produced 8499 tickets bearing $4.2 million in fines during the thirteen months ending last March. Averaged, that was 654 tickets a month. During that same period, the other camera at the intersection, which monitors westbound cars, produced 72 tickets a month.

Then, there was a respite: In April 2018 ticketing began to drop, and in July thru October ticketing was less than a quarter of what it had been during the thirteen months ending in March. But in November, ticketing went up, and by December and January 2019 ticketing was three times the July to October average. The 946 tickets issued in December and January will cost motorists $464,000.

That heavy enforcement was never justified by a high rate of accidents. In October 2015, five months before the Olympic/Beverly cameras began operation, a staff report submitted to the city council stated: "Based upon review of accident data, the average collision rate is equal to the statewide average for comparable intersections."

I contacted the BHPD about the heavy ticketing, and in August 2018 Lt. Moreno of the BHPD replied, "Thank you for your e-mail. Our photo red light program is in compliance with all state and federal laws. All who are issued a photo red light ticket are afforded the opportunity to dispute them in a court of law. Thank you again for your inquiry."

Since then I have written to the city council, twice, most recently on February 14. Earlier today I heard from Chief Spagnoli, who addressed two unresolved records requests that I had mentioned in my February 14 email to the city council. But she didn't write even one word about the heavy ticketing at eastbound Olympic/Beverly, even though it was the sole subject of the first two paragraphs of my email to the city council and that email was right there in the thread of the email the Chief sent to me.

The City has $192 million of unallocated funds, "... available for spending at the City's discretion." That's from page 24 of the City's annual audit book (the "CAFR"), which came out in December. May I suggest that 1 percent of that Mad Money be used to refund the City's cut of the fines so unfairly imposed at eastbound Olympic/Beverly?

Members of the Planning Commission have the responsibility to uphold the Beverly Hills General Plan. This is similar to the Supreme Court Justices upholding the Constitution.

Applicants come to the Planning Commission asking for an Overlay Zone (Spot Zoning) to the General Plan because they think they have a deserving project.

The Planning Commission can and on occasion accommodates minor deviations to the General Plan, but adding two stories to the three story building at 100 N. Crescent Drive is not a minor deviation.

Therefore, without going into details and there are many, such as structural safety, shading on nearby residents, and parking, this project should not be approved.

City Subpoenas Markowitz in Relation to Spagnoli Lawsuits

The City of Beverly Hills subpoenaed Vera Markowitz on February 22 in relation to the lawsuits against Beverly Hills Police Department Chief Sandra Spagnoli and the BHPD Crisis group, which formed to make the community more aware of the lawsuits.

The subpoena orders Markowitz to turn over documents related to communications between herself and Renato Moreno, Michael Foxen, Shan Davis, Dona Norris, Karen Ocamb, Lorri Jean, Jasmyne A. Cannick, any member of the press, attorneys at Goldberg & Gage (the law firm representing many of the officers who've filed lawsuits against the department), former BHPD captain Mark Rosen, any employee of the BHPD about Mark Rosen or Chief Spagnoli, and "any person who had or has any role whatsoever in the development or maintenance of BHPDcrisis.com or any other website [she is] involved with that concerns the City of Beverly Hills, its Police Department or current or former employees" of the BHPD, including but not limited to David Hamel, David Snowden, and Dominick Rivetti.

The requested documents are all related to communications Markowitz had about, with, or between those involved with the lawsuits, the BHPD Crisis group, or the BHPD.

Under the subpoena, Markowitz is required to share all documents that consist of content curity services for the Beverly Hills Unified School District from January 1, 2013 until the present.

"All written or printed matter of any kind, including the originals and all non-identical copies" pursuant to the subpoena are due to ACE Imaging & Technologies, Inc., the company hired by the City to recover the documents, by March 14 at 10 a.m.

The types of documents and communications subject to the subpoena include diaries, reports, contracts, videotape, records, invoices, emails, notes, text messages, and several others.

Beverly Hills City Attorney Larry Wiener told the Weekly that the subpoena was a routine part of civil litigation.

"It is routine in civil litigation to seek relevant information possessed by third parties, something the plaintiffs in this matter have done on numerous occasions. We are seeking relevant evidence, and as Ms. Markowitz has indicated she is aware of facts that we are not, we are hopeful she will produce that evidence soon," Wiener said. "The City continues to believe very strongly in the Constitutional right of all citizens to speak and write freely and to criticize their public officials."

William Brody, of Loeb & Loeb LLP, who is reportedly representing Markowitz, has returned a request for comment at this time.

The subpoena comes shortly after reports that Lambda Legal, the Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund, a civil rights organization that advocates for the LGBT community, penned a letter to the City requesting a full, independent investigation into the allegations against Chief Spagnoli.

In the letter, Lambda Legal Regional Director Shedrick Davis and Senior Counsel Jennifer Pizer questioned whether or not the City Council would be able to fairly investigate the allegations, stating that they felt there was a "shared belief among the Council that the discrimination allegations, as a whole, compromise a baseless smear campaign."

"If the result of the investigation is a vindication of the Chief, then only a truly independent investigation will be viewed as credible. Anything less likely will be seen as specious, which would be counterproductive for all concerned," Davis and Pizer wrote.

City Public Information Manager Keith Sterling provided a statement from the City confirming that the City has "commissioned outside and independent inquires into the allegations" and that none of its commissioned investigators had a prior relationship with the police chief.

"We appreciate Lambda Legal reaching out to the City. The City of Beverly Hills is committed, not only to adhering to anti-discrimination laws, but also to operating a Police Department that reflects the highest ideals. We have commissioned outside and independent inquiries into the allegations and these investigators had no prior relationship with Chief Spagnoli," Sterling said. "It was based on these investigations that the Council made their public statements on February 5. In the event that we receive information that would lead to a different conclusion, we are confident the Council will act accordingly."

Council Establishes Rent Stabilization Commission

At its meeting on Tuesday, the Beverly Hills City Council voted unanimously to establish the city's first-ever Rent Stabilization Commission, which will soon takeover the task of finalizing key parts of the Rent Stabilization Ordinance (RSO).

The commission will be composed of size voting members and three alternates, all appointed by the City Council, and they will serve staggered four-year terms. Two of the six voting members will be landlords who "own one or more multifamily residential rental properties within the city", another two will be tenants in the city, and there will be two "at large" members who are not tenants, landlords, or property managers. Originally, commission the was to be compromised of five voting members, only one of whom would be an "at large" member, and six alternates, but the 2-2-2 configuration was selected after Councilmember Lester Friedman questioned how ties would be dealt with under the original structure.

"What I fear is going to happen is that we'll have a 2-2 vote with one person left to make the decision. You're potentially making a 'Super Commissioner' that way," Friedman said. "I would just like us to consider having it as one tenant, one landlord, and three neutral people because then at least you'll have the discussion."

Neither Councilmember Bosse nor Vice Mayor John Mirisch supported Friedman's suggestion of a 1-1-3 structure, however, because they felt it was more important that tenants and landlords who will be directly impacted by the RSO have the most say in what a finished ordinance might look like.

"If we did that what we would essentially be doing is creating another commission like the ones we have right now," Bosse said. "There are people serving on other commissions right now who are tenants and landlords. You'd basically be creating a commission that could be anything, but this needs to represent exactly what and who it's for."

Friedman then suggested making it into a 7-person commission with three "at large" members, but Bosse objected because she felt that having more "at large" members than tenants or landlords was unfair. Mirisch later suggested a 3-3-3 makeup. Bosse supported that suggestion, but it was ultimately show down in favor of the final 2-2-2 configuration.

All of the commission's meetings will take place in the evening, pending any future changes, to accommodate the schedules of residents who may not be able to attend daytime meetings.

"I really feel we need to allow for people to be part of this and it's very hard for people to come during the day, so that's a conversation we need to have," Bosse said. "During the afternoon is very difficult for people who work, people who are going to serve, and people who are going to come."

Deputy Director of Rent Stabilization Helen Morales will be the secretary for the commission.

Mayor Julian Gold and Councilmember Lili Bosse will serve on an ad hoc com-

> Once selected, the commissioners will begin finalizing key aspects of the RSO, which has been debated publicly for more than two years. On Tuesday, the Council identified the specific areas within the ordinance that should be looked at by the commission including what percentage of relocation fees should be applicable for owner occupied evictions, whether or not relocation fees should be offered for Chapter 6 tenants who are evicted within a 1-year probationary period, what the maximum allowable annual rent increase should be, and which pass-throughs should be allowed and in what amount.

> Though finalizing the RSO is undoubtedly an important task, the Rent Stabilization Commission as established on Tuesday appears to be an early-days iteration of its future self.

> Throughout the development of the ordinance, the Council discussed other duties the commission may take on in the future, including handling disruptive tenant applications, hearings related to habitability violations, and rent reduction applications. Until the RSO is complete, however, disruptive tenant applications will go to the Council subcommittee.

Any other duties the commission might be given in the future must be added through an amendment to the ordinance passed on Tuesday.

Chavez Confirmed as City Manager

The Beverly Hills City Council unanimously confirmed on Tuesday that George Chavez, who currently operates as Assistant City Manager, would take over as City Manager when Mahdi Aluzri retires from the position this May.

Chavez's employment agreement is for a term of three years, starting June 1 and ending May 31, 2022, and guarantees a base salary of $325,000. It also includes deferred compensation in an amount equal to three percent of the base salary. Chavez will also receive "Management Incentive Pay" in the amount of $625 monthly or $7,500 annually, retirement benefits, and medical benefits.

As City Manager, Chavez will be responsible for developing policies to present to the City Council and overseeing the nine City departments.

"When Ι began my career in Beverly Hills more than 30 years ago, I never imagined this would day come," Chavez said when it was first announced he work is based on the foundation of providing the highest level of service to this community. For a city that has given so much to me and my family, I am humbled to be asked to continue to serve."

The City of Beverly Hills first hired Chavez in 1988 to serve as a Building Inspector. In the years since, he has worked in a variety of positions including Assistant Director of Community Development/City Building Official and Director of Public Works before being named Assistant City Manager in 2016. He is a recent recipient of the City's Fred C. Cunningham Award for Distinguished Service.

Planning Commission Requests Beverly Hills Media Center Project Return in May

The Beverly Hills Planning Commission voted unanimously last Thursday to revisit plans for the proposed Beverly Hills Media Center, a controversial project which some have opposed due to privacy concerns and the potential for shade and shadow on adjacent properties, again on May 9 before taking a final vote. The rescheduled meeting, to be held at 7 p.m., will allow the applicant to present plans for a version of the project that aligns with recommendations made by the commission and incorporates measures to benefit impacted residents.

According to City Planner Ryan Golich, the revised plans will not include an updated environmental review, but will give the commission enough information to vote on the project's merits.

"Part of this is going to depend on how much time the applicant needs to put together some revised drawings," Golich told the commission when asked about how soon the project could be brought back. "We wouldn't have all the updated environmental documents, but I don't know that it would be required at that time since we would just be looking at the would add two new stories of commercial office space to the existing building. An existing screening room within the building would also be upgraded as part of the project, and some office space on the ground floor of the building would be converted to create a restaurant, which Beverly Hills Chamber of Commerce CEO Todd Johnson said he expects would be "world class."

Other proposed renovations included the re-striping of the existing three-level subterranean parking area to create "compact, tandem, vertically stacked and valet-operated aisle parking spaces" within the garage and the addition of new outdoor terraces on the proposed fourth and fifth stories of the building. The exterior of the renovated building would also differ from that of the current building-it would consist of clear glass curtain walls with floor-to-ceiling glass facing Wilshire Boulevard, Crescent Drive and the Crescent Drive Mini Park.

Previous renditions of the project allowed for a discretionary height of 80 feet total, though that provision was removed from the version presented last Thursday.

The currently allowed height for buildings in the area surrounding 100 Crescent is 43 feet

In order to exceed that limit for a total proposed height of 72 feet, the developer requested a General Plan Amendment that would change the entitlement for the property to Medium Density Commercial with a maximum allowed height of 75 feet. Such an increase in height and the effect of it on the Crescent Drive Mini Park was a topic of much concern for both the commission and residents, particularly a group of seven residents on North Rexford Drive who said they would be directly impacted by the project if it were built as presented.

One of these residents, Dora Arash, told the commission she felt the City was applying different standards to different people," and that developers are often given more advantages than residents when it comes to planning and construction. The attorney representing the Arash family, Robert Silverstein, of the Silverstein Law Firm, argued that creating an overlay zone that would allow for entertainment and media uses, as the developer requested, would require more environmental assessment than has been done thus far in the planning process.

'All of the incentives that are built into this, all of the additional height and the additional stuff, are things that will inevitably physically impact the environment.

Angeles County. Rendering of Beverly Hills Media Center project from the The addition intersection of Wilshire and Crescent

So, according to what the law says...you must not stop as this EIR does at looking only at the impacts from the specific project," Silverstein said. "You must analyze the reasonably foreseeable probable future impacts from creation of the zone. The EIR before you, the recirculated EIR fails to do that. In fact, it admits that it fails to do that and we've cited to you the pages where the staff report and EIR say they have not done that larger analysis."

Former mayor and North Homeowners Association President Robert K. Tanenbaum also argued against the project in a trio with Southwest Homeowners Association President Ken Goldman and Municipal League Chairman Thomas White. They too thought that allowing an increased height for the building would be unfair.

"Why is this property different from all other properties? The Rexford families and all of us are entitled to rely on our city law," Goldman said. "No one should benefit from spot zoning and certainly not at the expense of their neighbors. I tried to think of an adjective that would adequately describe this proposal and the one I came up with is simply 'wrong.' It's wrong for this parcel. It's wrong for the general plan. It's wrong for the precedent. It's wrong for the neighbors and residents, and it's wrong for our city."

Another former mayor, Nancy Krasne, said she too was concerned about spot zoning in relation to this project and its allowed height.

"An oxymoron is a word like military intelligence. It is a magical change. An overlay zone is another oxymoron for spot zoning. Period," Krasne said. "The history of spot zoning has been a fight for years, from the Montage to William Morris to Wanda to the Schneider project and the rooftop uses that these places have asked for at a later date."

Commissioner Alan Block expressed his concern over the height increase as well, noting that he understood why residents might be upset by the project.

"I have a problem when there are property owners who buy properties understanding there is a 45-foot height limit behind them and who, relying on that, build and improve their homes, and then are confronted with a building that could be 30 or 40 feet taller than the 45-feet,"

Block said. "I think when you add two floors of height it's obviously going to put more shade and shadow on the residences behind it. That's just going to happen. If I lived in those homes, I'd be very concerned and upset about that as well."

Studies presented at the November 29 Planning Commission meeting revealed the mini park would experience "an increase in the increment of shade and shadow on the park for a period of time exceeding the three-hour threshold between 9:00 A.M. and 3:00 P.M. during the winter months." There were also concerns about the effect of shade and shadow on the single-family and multi-family residences adjacent to the park, which includes the homes of the seven North Rexford residents; it was determined the impacts for those properties would be "less than significant" at that time.

Subsequent shade and shadow studies conducted by a third-party consultant hired identified errors in the model used to conduct the original study and the models were corrected to account for a two foot error in the height of the building. A different company based in Canada was hired by the residents on North Rexford to conduct an independent shade and shadow study. That study also found errors with the original study, according to last week's meeting. The commission did not order a new study be conducted at this time.

Commissioner Peter Ostroff said he was concerned about how many residents spoke out against the project and reiterated that he believes working with the residents is paramount to getting the project off the ground successfully. Ostroff asked the applicant's attorney, Ben Reznik, if he thought more time to have "productive, constructive" discussions with the residents would be worthwhile.

"I get the sense that [the residents] would rather fight the project," Reznik said. "It takes two to be able to meet and discuss and to agree to meet and discuss. To answer your question of if we would be willing to, absolutely yes, of course we would. My only concern is about whether or not we have a real negotiating partner in this group right now."

Ostroff said the residents previously suggested former Planning Commissioner Craig Corman could serve to represent their interests in discussions with Reznik, though both Ostroff and Reznik noted a different mediator might be more appropriate.

Before any construction or further work on the Beverly Hills Media Center project can begin the proposal must return to the commission in May and, if approved at that point, seek further approvals from the City Council.

Nick Kroll and John Mulaney to Perform at The Wallis

On Tuesday, March 19, Emmy Award-winning writer and comedian John Mulaney and noted film and Broadway actor Nick Kroll will perform a special, one-night only live read of the 1981 comedy My Dinner with Andre at Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts.

Film Independent Curator Elvis Mitchell will host.

Written by and starring Andre Gregory and Wallace Shawn, My Dinner with Andre depicts the actors playing fictionalized versions of themselves and sharing a wide-ranging conversation in a restaurant over the film's 110 minutes. Critic Roger Ebert named the film the best of the year when it premiered in 1981. It has since been parodied or referenced in such wide-ranging television shows as "The Simpsons," "Frasier," "Touched by an Angel," and "Family Guy" as well as Gary Larson's "Far Side" comic strip.

"The Wallis is pleased to collaborate with Film Independent to bring to the stage a live read of this wonderfully urbane and charming cult classic," said The Wallis' Artistic Director Paul Crewes. "The dialectic structure of My Dinner with Andre lends itself beautifully to this format, particularly in the hands of the talented and hilarious John Mulaney and Nick Kroll.'

Tickets for the live read are available for $50 and can be purchased online at TheWallis.org/Andre or in person at the box office, located at 9390 North Santa Monica Boulevard.

"Malpaso Dance Company has earned an international reputation for its bold and exhilarating performances, diverse repertoire and exceptional skill," said The Wallis' Artistic Director, Paul Crewes. "The Wallis is pleased to showcase this superlative dance company."

Emphasizing a collaborative creative process, the company tours with 11 dancers and is led by its original three founders - resident choreographer and Artistic Director Osnel Delgado, Executive Director Fernando Sáez and dancer and co-founder Daileidys Carrazana - who left the state-sponsored Danza Contemporanea de Cuba in 2011. When they created the independent modern dance company, friends expressed concern that it was a "misstep" or "malpaso" to launch a new troupe since they would possibly loose government funding and have to assume fundraising responsibilities. But, instead, the global-facing company has expanded the concept of what Cuban culture can be when it reaches outward and embraces the myriad styles of dance

Cedars-Sinai Ranks No. 1 in Adult Heart Transplants for 2018

The Smidt Heart Institute at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center ranked first in the country in 2018 for completing more successful adult heart transplants than any other medical center in the United States.

According to the United Network for Organ Sharing, the nonprofit organization that manages the U.S. organ transplant system and collects data on every transplant performed in the nation, the Smidt Heart transplant team completed a total of 122 heart transplants last year, including two heart and kidney transplants.

"Behind every heart transplant patient is a doctor who gave the ultimate giftlife," said Eduardo Marban, director of the Smidt Heart Institute. "On average each week, we are able to give two or three patients more time and moments with their families and friends. It's both an honor and privilege we take great pride in."

Every year since 2010, the institute has performed more adult heart transplants than any other U.S. medical center. Despite Cedars-Sinai's transplant achievements, the need for organs remains great. According to UNOS, more than 114,000 people in the U.S. are waiting to receive a life-saving organ transplant.

"No transplant procedure is merely a surgery," said Fardad Esmailian, surgical director of the Heart Transplant Program. "We realize each procedure as a gift of life for the recipient and a selfless act made by a willing donor."

The achievement also is accompanied by outstanding patient outcomes that surpass the national average, as reported recently by the Scientific Registry of Transplant Recipients.

"These prestigious achievements could not happen without the dedication and outstanding care provided by our multidisciplinary team, of surgeons, physicians, pharmacists, nurses, and other health professionals," said Jon Kobashigawa, director of the institute's Heart Transplant Program. "We are grateful for the steadfast trust our patients put in us, knowing our ultimate goal is to provide life-saving, excellent care to every patient we come across."

The Scientific Registry of Transplant Recipients also recently named Ce-

Cedars-Sinai's Liver Transplant Program is one of only six in the U.S.-and the only program west of Texas-to receive the designation of "better than expected" results.

"Patients transplanted at Cedars-Sinai can rely on our specialized, compassionate teams who follow each patient through their entire treatment journey," said Andrew Klein, the Esther and Mark Schumann Chair in Surgery and Transplantation Medicine and director of the Cedars-Sinai Transplant Center. "And post-transplant, patients can expect this same level of care for the rest of their life."

The Weekly's Exclusive Interview with the New Health and Safety Commission Chair

By Kelcey Caulder

You're an attorney. Tell us about your background.

Educationally, I went to college at UCLA where I studied history and political science. After graduating, I applied for and attended law school at USC, our cross-town rivals. It was a fantastic experience. I was taught to hate USC in undergrad and that didn't end up happening.

As far as my practice goes, I am a labor and employment attorney specializing in human resource law and employment rights. I represent companies to deal with their employment and human resource issues, drafting policies and practices and things like that, and simultaneously I work with individual employees to draft employment agreements and represent their other interests. I make sure there is balance in the workplace and evaluate issues like harassment and wrongful termination. So, that's my background.

What first drew you to serving on the Health and Safety Commission?

I have always found investing time and effort into my community to be very gratifying. It makes life more interesting and more rewarding. I am an active participant in the organizations I get involved in. I like to participate and I believe that the more you put into things, the more you get out of them. That's my philosophy. I grew up here in Beverly Hills and I'm very proud of this city, so I consider it to be a privilege to be able to serve here as a leader.

To answer your question about why

I was drawn to the commission, it just made sense. As far back as high school, I was one of the people who got involved in student government. I helped plan events and figure out the logistics for different activities that we wanted to put on or that the school was doing. My interest in that continued in college, where I was the head of the in

As far back as high school, I was one of those people who was involved in student government. My interest in that continued in college as the head of the Inter-Fraternity Council. There was a health and safety aspect to that as well. I was responsible at UCLA for overseeing a program that mandated the installation of smoke detectors and fire alarms in fraternity houses and other buildings across campus. So, health and safety has always been part of my background. It's kind of funny, actually. At the time that we mandated that, it was kind of a groundbreaking thing. I was actually met with some resistance, whereas today that is a health and safety measure that is commonplace.

As an adult, I also took on roles related to health and safety. I was on the Board of Directors for the Beverly Hills Basketball League, where I ensured the safety of our youth participants by making sure we had emergency medical kits at all of our venues. Professionally, as I indicated, I am a labor and employment attorney. I volunteer my services on the employment side to workers who have cancer or other serious medical conditions who might need time off from work to take care of their surgical needs from an accident, or who need other accommodations in the workplace. I do that pro bono. I also serve on the Board of Directors for the Cancer Legal Resource Center and the Disability Rights Legal Center, tection for people who have disabilities. As part of my career I also draft policy and procedures on safe workplaces and give lectures on workplace safety and emergency preparedness. So, when I saw the opening on the health and safety commission, I thought it was a good fit for me and for my background.

Tell us about some of your specific goals as the Chair of the commission?

It starts with the general basis that our role as a commission is to promote a healthy and safe city. You may recall that our former mayor and current councilmember Lili Bosse branded our city as a healthy city. It's under that umbrella that we operate. Our mission statement is to improve the health and safety of our community, so our work starts with that.

Our current number one priority and charge from the City Council is to be a point of contact for smoking outreach, smoking education, the reduction of smoking, and hopefully the cessation of smoking in our community and beyond. That started years ago with recommendations from us about where people should be able to smoke in the city and where they should not be able to smoke in the city. Those smoking limits were extended to include apartment buildings and

We also chose secondarily to focus on youth health and safety, which overlaps a little bit with our goal of educating people about smoking. Vaping and Juuling has become a big issue across the country and is a growing issue, unfortunately, at our high school in Beverly Hills. That's a very big issue as relates to youth health and safety because it causes nicotine addiction. We are going to be warning children about other issues as well, like suicide prevention, depression, safety issues in youth sports, and anti-bullying.

Our third area of focus would be to continue to be a venue for health and safety issues. We start every meeting with an open session, consistent with our mission statement, and we hear from the public on any and all health and safety issues that they want to bring forward. Our hope is to raise awareness of those issues as they come up and advise the Council on those issues. One of the ways that we're hoping to continue being a venue for these issues is by inviting a

In Issue #915, former Health and Safety Commission Chair Daniel Nazarian said, "Enforcement has been one of the challenges with the smoking regulations." How do you think a total ban on smoking could be enforced in the city?

I want to be really clear on this. Our entire approach to smoking is a process. It started with the limits that were imposed over the last several years regarding the place and manner of smoking in both an effort to educate our public on the harm of smoking and also because of the hazards of second hand smoke. So, as we move along that continuum and recommend the implementation of stronger measures, the first step in that process is to reduce the availability of tobacco in our city. That's what we're focusing on right now.

We are very respectful of the health and safety imperative and the hazards of smoking and second hand smoke, but when we start talking about banning smoking in total we have to be mindful and respectful of our business community. The commission is providing an open forum to hear all points of view, so that we can balance the health and safety part against the business part. We have 28 permit holders currently in the city who sell tobacco and every one of them has the right to be heard. That said, our charge by the City Council is to propose an ordinance at this juncture relative to the banning of the sale of tobacco products. So, yes, the long-term goal is for this to be a smoke-free city, but that will take time. It is a process. It will require careful consideration of various interests of various stakeholders, some of whom are for a ban, some who are against it.

We will actually be holding multiple meetings so that people in favor of and against a ban can come speak to us and share their opinions. On March 25, we will have a session where people can speak to us on that issue, and we'll hold another session like that on April 22. May 22 is when we will start formulating our recommendations at our meeting. I can't encourage people enough to come and speak to us before then.

Enforcement of our smoking ordinances is a priority. Enforcement of any ordinance is a difficult task, whether it's jaywalking or speeding or people smoking where they shouldn't be. Our enforcement mechanism for the smoking limits currently in place is that smoking is monitored by our city's ambassadors. One of their tasks is to politely advise people who are smoking where they shouldn't be to put out their cigarette. Then, they tell them about the law and where smoking is prohibited. Longterm, if there was a total ban on smoking in the city, that would almost be an easier thing to enforce because it would be black and white if and when that was to happen. Any smoking would be prohibited and the combination of ambassadors and law enforcement would make it easier to stop people from smoking.

Did you receive any advice from former Chair Myra Demeter when you took over in January?

I was advised by all of my predecessors to remember what our mission is and that our mission is to enhance the health and safety of our community. They said if we as a commission are open-minded and encourage community participation and listen carefully, we pick the right action to make the right action and deliver the right recommendations.

In December, you said that one of your main focuses for the commission would be youth health and safety. What initiatives are you working on related to that area?

My intention is to honor a youth health and safety organization at every meeting we have. We have done that for the last two months now. The first group we honored was the Beverly High Medical Science Academy (See Issue #1010).

The second group we honored was the high school boys and girls soccer team. They played a fundraising match against another high school. The match was called 'Imagine a Cure,' and they donated the money from that game to cancer research. We brought in the boys and girls teams, coaches, captains, and the high school athletic director and honored them at our televised meeting.

Secondarily, we are trying to raise the level of health and safety among our youth by promoting the 'Every 15 Minutes' program at the high school, which raises awareness of drunk and distracted, by which I mean texting, driving. We are huge supporters of that program. We lated topic before us every month, whether it's a teen suicide hotline that we will partner with and discuss, a youth blood drive organization that we want to promote, or something else.

We are planning a middle school art competition as well, which is intended to have students depict in some artistic or literary fashion something about the health and safety of Beverly Hills. We will nominate winners from those participants. We want to weave our city's youth into what we do at the commission because, simply stated, the youth of our city is the future of our health and safety.

Tell us about your family.

I grew up in Beverly Hills and graduated from Beverly High in 1977. I met my wife there. She was a 1979 graduate. Her name then was Nancy Marantz. Many people still know her that way, even though she has been Nancy Ross as long as we've been married. She is a very successful residential realtor in the city. -Gary Ross

He will graduate in 2020.

One year from now, what do you hope the commission will have accomplished?

I hope that we make the correct and responsible recommendations to City Council relative to a ban on the sale of tobacco in our City, and that City Council adopts our recommendation. But equally important is raising the level of awareness of health and safety issues, emergency preparedness, and raising the profile of our commission, which in turn will help to raise the level of awareness of health and safety issues in our city.

The results of BEVERLY HILLS UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICTS'S evaluation and ranking of the Vendor Proposals will be final.
