Ronen, Stuart File Candidacy for School Board; Stern to Seek Re-election

Dela Ronen

Mandy Stern

Russell Stuart

Dela Peykar Ronen, an estate planning attorney and 2007 Beverly High graduate, announced her candidacy for the Board of Education in the upcoming November 5 election.

“As an experienced estate planning attorney, I bring a comprehensive understanding of fiduciary responsibility and financial stewardship—essential qualities for guiding our district’s governance effectively,” Dela said. “My passion for educational excellence drives me to ensure that every student in our district receives a top-tier education. We must continue to enhance our district’s programs and facilities while maintaining a strong focus on academic excellence and student well-being.”

Board President Mandy Stern, a Licensed Educational Psychologist, will seek re-election.

“I am thrilled to run for another term, using decades of experience as a school psychologist and Beverly Hills resident for the benefit of our families and learners! As board member and president, I have spearheaded action for: campus safety, Mental Health, Math and reading achievement, and Digital Citizenry. I wholeheartedly believe BHUSD is thriving,” Stern said.

Russell Stuart, who works in security entertainment and previously came in fifth place in the March 5 City Council election, also filed his candidacy on Monday. He did not respond to a request for comment.

Candidates will vie for three available seats.

City Council Discusses Tree Removal Permit

The City Council discussed a request from Councilmember John Mirisch regarding the Planning Commission’s approval of a tree removal permit to remove three heritage trees at 1001 North Roxbury Drive, and declined to review the project further, as the council is awaiting an appeal that has already been filed.

The project site is located within the western side of the 1000 block of North Roxbury Drive in the central area of the city, with Lexington Road to the south and Whittier Drive to the west. The site is currently vacant and the construction of a new single-family residence is proposed, which has yet to be reviewed.

“The trees associated with this request are not listed on the city’s list of native trees. However, as the circumference of the identified trees is 48” or greater, they are considered heritage trees and are protected by the city’s tree protection ordinance,” according to a city staff report.

The project site contains 44 trees. The commission’s approval of the permit included the removal of two Coastal Redwood and one London Plane Sycamore.

The Planning Commission imposed additional conditions to further minimize the impact by requesting larger, more mature replacement trees. This was also intended to minimize the impact the removals may have on the streetscape, however, a past staff report indicated the replacement would not affect the garden quality.

The City Council was not tasked with making any assessment of the project or the action taken by the commission. The council ultimately declined to bring the project up for review, as an appeal has already been filed and would make the decision void.

City Council Adopts Position in Support of Senate Bill 1381

The City Council adopted a position of support with amendments on Senate Bill 1381 due to recent, significant changes made to the bill, at its Tuesday meeting. Councilmember John Mirisch was the sole vote against.

On Monday, July 1 state lawmakers significantly amended Property crimes: regional property crimes task force (SB 1381) to SB 1381 (Aisha Wahab D - Hayward) Crime, becoming the vessel in which the state legislature could have placed a crime related proposition on the November 5 ballot. However, just two days later, the proposition was removed from the ballot

The City Council previously supported SB 1381 prior to the amendments, as it would have created a regional property crime task force.

During the last week of June, the Secretary of State's Office waived a portion of the California Elections Code to add measures after the June 27 deadline. Subsequently, SB 1381 was significantly amended to SB 1381 (Wahab) Crime, which contained the newly proposed ballot measure.

This would have competed with a citizen-backed initiative, Prop 36, which aims to repeal Proposition 47, that was passed 10 years ago and reduced certain crimes from felonies to misdemeanors. This included reclassifying specific drug possession offenses and theft crimes involving property valued under $950 from felonies to misdemeanors.

If passed, Prop 36 aims to enforce stricter penalties for repeat retail theft offenders and individuals involved in trafficking hard drugs. It would make a third offense of theft a felony, regardless of the amount stolen.

Additionally, it mandates that individuals with repeated convictions for possessing certain drugs, including fentanyl, either seek treatment or face up to three years in prison. It also provides an opportunity for those who successfully complete treatment to have their records expunged.

While Senate Bill 1381 is currently not moving, the City Council still took action due to the significant amendments. This included removing any references to the ballot initiative and any

City Council Approves Water Pass-Through Charges

The City Council approved an on-going appropriation of $210,244 from the water enterprise fund to increase the water purchases budget, at its Tuesday study session.

The City Council previously approved rate adjustments concerning water and wastewater charges, which enables the city's water utility to pass through increases in wholesale water charges from the Metropolitan Water District (MWD) to customers if these charges surpass the adopted budgeted costs. This is intended to ensure that actual needs dictate adjustments, rather than budgeting for potentially higher costs during rate studies.

On April 9 the MWD Board of Directors approved a two-year budget totaling $2.4 billion to ensure the reliability of water supplies in Southern California amidst inflation challenges. This budget incorporates rate hikes effective January 1, 2025, and January 1, 2026, affecting all 26 member agencies, including Beverly Hills.

The increase in wholesale water rates impacts Beverly Hills' current rate structure, as the city spends over $10 million annually on water purchases, comprising nearly one third of its total water utility expenses. The rates include fixed service charges for water and fire meters, alongside tiered charges based on water consumption.

The City Council supported moving forward with the proposed water pass-through charges due to an increase in water purchases and authorizes an on-going appropriation of $210,244.00 from the Water Enterprise Fund.

City staff will prepare customer notifications, which will be distributed at least 30 days before the rate implementation date.

City Council Approves Water Will Serve Process

The City Council discussed an update on the Water Will Serve process and development guidelines and approved the general form of the Agreement for Water Services (AWS), which is a part of the development Water Will Serve guidelines and process, at its Tuesday study session.

The city extends its water services to developers within its jurisdiction and a portion of West Hollywood under its water service area. The procedure outlines the requirements for developers seeking access to water services. Developers must submit an application detailing the types of water services they require and the water demands.

The city determines meter sizes and fees for developers based on water demand assessments through this process. These fees include connection costs, one-time water capacity fees for ongoing maintenance, and water supply fees for future developments.

Developers must design and construct required offsite water infrastructure as specified in the agreement, including items like upgraded water mains, pressure-reducing stations, pump stations, reservoirs, and related facilities.

The agreement stands apart from entitlement processes and parcel map approvals, thus bypassing the need for Planning Commission approval. It outlines conditions for planning, designing, and constructing additional water infrastructure, especially for larger private developments. The agreement mandates compliance with the city's design standards, construction specifications, and oversight requirements during infrastructure installation. While applicable to major Beverly Hills projects, it is particularly useful for some developments in West Hollywood, where water-related projects are not formally part of the city's planning process, according to a city staff report.

DuPont and San Francisco

This column is mostly about San Francisco but first I want to address the litigation by the DuPont Clinic against the city and five city officials.

The Dupont claim includes that the defendants intentionally interfered with and caused the termination of the lease between DuPont and the owner of the 8920 Wilshire Building. DuPont intended to operate a clinic that would provide, among other things, abortion services. Essentially DuPont claims that city officials caused or persuaded the landlord to cancel DuPont's lease.

The litigation has been pending for a number of months and the city has filed a motion to dismiss some or all of the claims. That motion will be argued in September.

The situation has been widely publicized in part due to the actions of a group of city and nearby residents, "Bhforchoice." The leaders of this group include Gay Abrams, Heather Fels, Andrea Grossman and Amanda Smith. Bhforchoice is advocating several things including a resolution of the lawsuit satisfactory to DuPont Clinic and an independent investigation into the conduct of city officials. They want to know about city officials' communications with anti-abortion groups who were protesting the establishment of the Clinic.

Almost all litigated cases are resolved before trial by settlement or other action. There will be a settlement that is satisfactory to DuPont, sooner or later. It should have been sooner, much sooner.

The city will not and should not conduct a public investigation because that could be contrary to the city's litigation interests. Bad facts uncovered would only hurt, good facts would be viewed as self-serving.

It is not my intention to express a view about the litigation.

Rather, my focus is on principle.

In the wake of the SCOTUS Dobbs decision overruling Roe v. Wade which had precluded state and local legislation unduly restricting abortion, the City Council was very vocal in opposition to the decision and in favor of a woman's right to choose.

After the draft Dobbs decision leaked, the Beverly Hills City Council unanimously adopted a resolution in support of abortion rights. The City issued a press release stating "[t]he City of Beverly Hills has a long history of supporting everyone's right to equality and freedom of choice." Then Mayor Lili Bosse said: "This is something I wholeheartedly support with all my soul."

After the Dobbs decision was released, the Beverly Hills City Hall was lit up in lights in protest of the overturning of Roe v. Wade. Mayor Bosse stated: "Today's decision is absolutely devastating... These are human rights being taken away in a show of disrespect to women and my heart breaks for those who sacrificed so much to bring us those freedoms."

Yet when protests erupted about DuPont's prospective opening, city representatives apparently met with representatives of the landlord and the protesters. What happened during these meetings is a subject of dispute in the litigation. During this period, the landlord rescinded the lease. And DuPont has not opened a clinic in Beverly Hills.

The question now is: What is the city doing now in furtherance of the eloquent expressions of views and to facilitate a woman's right to choose in our city?

As we were visiting our San Francisco home for ten days recently and traveling around the Bay area, I decided to share some impressions about this very special place.

I approach this task with some hesitation because so many have written so much about the area. Yet I am encouraged by the fact that one of the most evocative descriptions was written by another trial lawyer, Jake Ehrlich, in his book "A Life in My Hands". Ehrlich, a successful lawyer to the stars from the 1930's to his death in 1970 details San Francisco in a way that makes you want to go back in time to experience the city as he did. But there is no need to go back in time because experiencing it today is every bit as engaging.

As a disclaimer, as much as I love the Bay Area, I love Southern California more. But this is about the Bay Area.

We always drive the 376 miles door to door from Beverly Hills to our condo immediately west of the beautiful Grace Cathedral. Anne drives, I doze. I won't specify the travel time for this journey in case a California Highway Patrol officer is reading.

After the Grapevine and the underappreciated beauty of the Central Valley, we emerge into the approach to the Bay Bridge.

On the south is the endless Port of Oakland handling 99% of the containerized goods coming into Northern California and is the ninth busiest in the US. From the endless forest of cranes and containers it is hard to believe that there are eight other ports that are busier. No matter – it exemplifies the importance of the role of the region, the state and the country in globalization. On the north, there is the first vista of San Francisco Bay viewed from the highway that seems at or below sea level. The Bay views are almost endless from the hills behind Oakland and Berkeley to the Larkspur Bridge to Alcatraz to Sausalito and Tiburon to Mt. Tamalpais to the Golden Gate Bridge. Globally unique.

Then at the middle of the Bay Bridge after passing the rapidly developing former US Navy outposts on Yerba Buena and Treasure Islands, is the spectacular view of the San Francisco skyline from the Coit Tower to the Transamerica Tower to the new Salesforce Tower. Unbeatable. Entering the city we pass through the concrete canyons of the Financial District (sadly decimated by COVID) up California Street to the always elegant top of Nob Hill. Our views are so mesmerizing that I never want to venture out. But I do.

And almost everything is within walking distance. We have found a good new pizza place, Back to Back, and across Taylor Street is the Nob Hill Cafe, which has been around for more than 35 years. There are dozens of restaurants also nearby on Hyde Street and Polk Street including German, Italian, Thai, Japanese, and an outstanding oyster bar. There is even a branch of the Crustacean.

One of my first stops is City Lights Bookstore, a half mile away, which was founded by beat generation icon Lawrence Ferlinghetti in 1953. It has every book that you ever wanted, and many that you did not know you wanted.

My route to and from City Lights (which is on the border between Chinatown and Italian North Beach) is along the two main Chinatown north/south streets, Stockton and Grant, one block away from each other and a world apart. Stockton has a myriad of Chinese grocery markets and shoppers on a Saturday morning. The sidewalks overflow with foot traffic and the feel is of a market street in Taiwan or China. Grant, made famous by the song "Grant Avenue, San Francisco, California USA" in "Flower Drum Song" is a much quieter, but not quiet, street full of shops and souvenir stands catering to tourists. Our favorite nearby Chinese restaurants are the R&G Lounge on Kearny and the Osmanthus Dim Sum Lounge on Broadway. There are lots of good, inexpensive restaurants in other neighborhoods.

Other important venues, like Trader Joe's and Whole Foods are close by, as is the most important, Oracle Park, home of the San Francisco Giants. Despite being an avid Dodgers fan and hating the Giants, Oracle is vastly superior to Dodger Stadium. The sightlines are better, the concessions are better and more varied and the seats are not nearly so expensive. Most importantly, Oracle is much more accessible. I can walk there in 30 minutes and get there by Uber in 20. There is also good public transportation that brings you to the gates.

I live around 10 miles from Dodger Stadium and must leave home no less than two hours before gametime. Once there, general admission parking is at least $35 in the vast unmarked lots. The lack of signage in the lots assure at least high anxiety about whether at the end of the game you can find your car which in any event is a 10 to 15 minute walk to the gate. While getting into Dodger Stadium is a nightmare, going to a game at Oracle is a pleasure.

Berkeley is clearly the crown jewel of the East Bay and the home of one of the best universities in the world, UC Berkeley. The University and the nearby city parks, including the Rose Garden, provide excellent places to hike and walk. The west side of Berkeley is flat and largely uninteresting in contrast to the University area and the neighborhoods to the north and east. Those areas are full of mature trees of all types and homes that are largely dark wood and old. Because of the trees and the dark wood, most of the homes are probably not as old as they look. Berkeley has a very large Hillside Overlay Zone that covers nearly 50% of the city. Any new construction of more than one story requires discretionary approval that must protect existing trees, minimize grading and land form alteration.

However, given current pressures for housing, Berkeley is considering limiting or eliminating single family residential zoning and providing for a staggering 100,000 new housing units in a city that currently has less than 50,000 housing units and a population of around 125,000. This makes our current concerns about builder's remedy or mixed use projects seem very minor in comparison.

The cities of Sausalito and Tiburon are also very different from San Francisco. To get there from SF requires a trip across the bay either driving over the Golden Gate Bridge or by ferry—either way a 30 minute or so journey. Both provide terrific vistas of San Francisco from the Presidio to Coit Tower. Both are small cities. Sausalito is built on the slopes of the Marin Headlands. Most of the residences are built on very narrow streets on the steep hillside. They have views of the city or the Sausalito yacht harbor. There are two or three commercial streets along the waterfront with lots of good restaurants. Tiburon is across the Richardson Bay from Sausalito offering views to the south of Angel Island State Park, Alcatraz and the city. These are both bedroom communities of fewer than 10,000 residents. They are very affluent and have very strict development standards which limit development.

And then there is Silicon Valley. This is one of the most important areas in the United States and includes cities from San Jose to Palo Alto and beyond. And, with the exception of Stanford University, its commercial and residential areas, while attractive, are largely uninteresting.

Tell us about your new role as chair with the Beverly Hills Chamber of Commerce.

I've been on the board of the chamber for over 10 years, maybe even closer to 15 years. I've been a member of the chamber for more than 20 years, so this is nothing new, other than the fact that I am now taking the helm. It's kind of scary, in a way, but by the same token, I'm ready for it because I've seen so much change in Beverly Hills over the last 50-plus years that I've been here. I think I have so much to offer now that I wouldn't have had 10 or 15 years ago.

I started with Jon Peters, who was a very popular, very-of-the-moment hair-stylist on Rodeo and Brighton Way. I had a corner there and a makeup studio, which was in 1975. So I remember Rodeo back in those days. I didn't know anything about the chamber at that time, but I knew it was something very special and different. The more I traveled and saw how important Rodeo and Beverly Hills were to the rest of the world, the more interested I became in wanting to be a part of the city.

The actual story goes like this: I was at an Evening with the Mayor at Greystone, probably around 2000. I had a store on South Beverly Drive, and I was sitting and listening to the mayor speak about how fabulous Rodeo Drive was and all the things the city was going to do in the triangle. Everything was about North Beverly Drive, and here I was with a store on South Beverly Drive. I raised my hand and said that I had a business on South Beverly Drive and it felt as if the city regarded us as the poor stepchild.

Upon leaving, a couple of people from the chamber [approached] me and said, "Wait a minute, wait a minute. We need you to join. We need you to speak out." So I joined the chamber and eventually became the president of the South Beverly Drive Merchants Association. We tried very hard to get the city to pay attention to us, and at one point, they actually did. We were able to close South Beverly Drive to through traffic so we could have an event. We still have our events to this day, and it helps bring the city's small businesses together. I'm proud that I had something to do with that.

You had a makeup salon in Beverly Hills for many years. Tell us more about being a business owner on South Beverly Drive.

When I opened on South Beverly Drive, it [felt like] my neighborhood. It was where the residents went, so I figured it would be the best place to [attract people who needed] what I had to offer. That's who my clientele started out being. Of course, as time went on and I got more publicity, my business grew exponentially. I became a part of the entire city and got involved in many different areas because I discovered how much I really love and care about Beverly Hills. I only wanted the best for it. That's how my makeup studio started, and I had it there for 20 years.

There was a woman when I was on the second Team Beverly Hills. I remember being in the bathroom and talking to a lady who overheard me saying that I was going to open a store on South Beverly Drive. She asked where I was opening, and I told her. She responded, "Oh, I don't go below Wilshire." She was one of the women who lived North of Santa Monica. I thought, 'Wow, that's fascinating.' It said a lot about how we were not reaching out to the entirety of the city. We pay taxes just like everybody else, and we should be honored with the city making something important out of us as well. Now, the city is doing much more than they did before. We have lights for Christmas and many things we didn't have before. I'm very proud of whatever I could contribute to that.

"I think that smaller businesses need help, especially with the changes happening in the world right now, [like the] increase in online shopping. The chamber needs to focus on letting businesses know that we are here for them in many different ways"

Bobbe Joy Dawson, Ian Dawson, and Portia Dawson Marks

In Issue #1187 past Chairperson Kathleen Chapman said, "[The chamber is the] backbone of the community in terms of outreach, networking, and as liaisons to the city, I think that people will continue to be with us and we'll grow our membership." Do you agree with that?

I think that smaller businesses need help, especially with the changes happening in the world right now, [like the] increase in online shopping. The chamber needs to focus on letting businesses know that we are here for them in many different ways. We need to list [these ways] so that businesses are aware of [how the chamber can help them]. I think many are not clear on that, and it's something I am seriously [committed to addressing.]

Another important [aspect] is getting committees together, similar to the Rodeo Drive Committee, we need a South Beverly Drive Committee and a Robertson Committee. Promoting these unique businesses requires more [support] than we've been [providing], and I am dedicated to improving that. It's not just about having people visit different businesses and exchange cards. As the liaisons to the city, we have to ensure that we are helping businesses in every way possible.

Your husband Mitch recently passed away. Tell us about him.

He was very much a city leader who loved being involved in the growth of Beverly Hills. He was on the Planning Commission for seven years and was president of the Maple Counseling Center. He held many positions, including president of Beverly Hills Rotary and he was also on the chamber board.

It was cute; he once told someone, "I'm going to get off the chamber board so my wife can get on it because she's the better Dawson." He was definitely a leader. It was very important to him that as we traveled, we brought back ideas from different places, like Europe, to share with the city and the chamber. We were also part of the Beverly Hills Sister City Committee. He was extremely involved in improving and doing whatever he could for Beverly Hills.

You are in a support group for spouses of people with dementia. Tell us about that.

When I was no longer capable of caring for Mitch, I had to place him in a care facility. When I did that, I realized that I also needed [support]. So, I contacted a day care center for people with dementia and Alzheimer's, which offers support groups for spouses. I joined the support group, and I'm still in it. One of the other women in the group lost her husband about three months ago, but we don't want to leave because we feel a kinship with the others who are still dealing with it. It's quite a fabulous program with very interesting people involved.

Tell us about your book, "Raising Eyebrows: Confessions of a Beverly Hills Makeup Artist."

What I initially [planned] to do was tell a story for my grandchildren, so when I was no longer here, they would have known what their granny did. It ended up being so much more than that. Besides talking about how I got to where I am today, it covers the 20 years I spent in television and film, all the celebrities I worked with, and the cute stories I have about them. And, to not disappoint those who wanted to know more about makeup, the last several chapters are all about makeup. So, it turned into a mix of an autobiography and fun stories.

What's your strategy for attracting new businesses and retaining existing businesses?

Today, [it's very] difficult to bring new businesses to Beverly Hills. A lot of it has to do with the aftermath of COVID, the high rents, and the costs of doing business here. This makes it more difficult.

We go on trips to New York, and now we've just gotten approval to go to Miami to search for different businesses. I try to bring back businesses. I'm going to Paris soon, and I'll be looking around to see if there's anything I can bring back from there. I want the businesses that are here to be successful.

I know there are many rules and regulations, so I'm working with my team at the chamber and the city to see if we can make it a little easier for business-

If you think back to the beginning of Rodeo Drive and Beverly Hills from so long ago, the places we had were so unique and different, and you couldn’t get what they offered anywhere else except here. The Team Beverly Hills program will select 50 residents (30 appointed by the City Council, 18 selected by a random lottery, and two selected by the Beverly Hills Unified School District) for its upcoming class. Five representatives from the business community will also be selected for the program, which kicks off later this year. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid on a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of the outstanding lien that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 844-477-7869, or visit this internet Web site www.stoxposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case T.S.# 87203. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the

The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.” For sales conducted after January 1, 2021: NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an “eligible tenant buyer,” you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an “eligible bidder,” you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (844) 477-7869, or visit this internet website www.STOXPOSTING.com, using the file number assigned to this case 87203 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid; by remitting the funds and affidavit described in Section 2924m(c) of the Civil Code; so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an “eligible tenant buyer” or “eligible bidder,” you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase.
